Rebels Seize 2 'Key' Cities, Claim 1,000 Rivals Killed

2,000 Loyalists Taken Prisoner in Seville Province.

Lisbon, Sept. 21.—Rebel successes in the Spanish civil war continued today, with the fate of Madrid and the loyalist government itself becoming more precarious hourly.

Gen. Emilio Mola announced rebel occupation of Santa Olalla, termed a "key to Madrid and Toledo," and claimed more than 1,000 loyalists were slain in the assault. Fighting was intense, he said, and many loyalists were taken prisoner.

Rebel headquarters later announced that insurgent forces had captured Maqueda, a junction point on the highways between Toledo and Madrid. Maqueda is 45 miles from Madrid and 25 miles from Toledo.

Capture of Maqueda followed the fall of Santa Olalla, which capitulated last night, rebel headquarters said.

As the loyalist forces made their strongest and most desperate stand on the outskirts of Santa Olalla, they had nothing left to resist the rebel advance on Maqueda, which is 7 miles away. Bitter fighting preceded their retreat, however, and as the loyalists scurried toward Madrid the rebels walked into Maqueda without encountering much resistance.

Capture of Maqueda, also a key point on the road to Toledo and Madrid, was considered of tremendous importance.

Simultaneously, Mola's columns on the north coast advanced 11 miles, taking three villages, pressing closer and closer to Bilbao, the loyalist seaport of 250,000, which Mola has given until Friday to surrender or be reduced by artillery bombardment.

Ninth Week of Defense.

The rebel garrison of the Alcazar at Toledo, called heroic even by the Madrid government, inaugurated the ninth week of its epic defense by withstanding heavy day-long bombardment from six-inch guns, bombs and bullets.

Neutral Latin-American diplomats in Madrid made a final effort to obtain an armistice at the Alcazar in order to evacuate women and children. They had small hope of success.

The provisional government at Burgos announced occupation of Huermeces Pass, on the Guadalajara front, enabling rebels to dominate the Madrid-Zaragoza road and isolate the town of Siguenza.

In Seville Province, more than 2,000 loyalists were captured when a rebel column under Capt. Navarette attacked and defeated a big loyalist concentration at Segura Leon, causing heavy losses after many hours of fighting.

Oviedo, Huesca Besieged.

Rebels besieged at Oviedo and Huesca, far from being in danger of capitulation, sallied out and attacked encircling government forces.

Mola's columns investing Bilbao, after taking the villages of Zumabraga, Azpeitia and Ascoitia, were in striking distance of the Eibar munitions plants near Bilbao. Loyalist militiamen deployed to resist Mola's advance, despite the evident desire of Basque nationalists to heed Mola's ultimatum and surrender the city to prevent its destruction.

In Madrid, the government frankly admitted the gravity of the situation. It was admitted officially that Santa Olalla, former loyalist headquarters on the southwest front, had been abandoned. The war ministry issued urgent orders for all militiamen, with or without arms, to report immediately to their barracks. The streets were crowded with youths hurrying to obey.

Official government communiques claimed minor victories and said loyalist aviation bombed several im-

Merrill Withholds Story of Richman Gasoline Dumping

By the United Press.

New York, Sept. 21.—Charges that all had not been told of their argument 6,500 feet above the Atlantic when 500 gallons of gasoline were dumped, were made tonight after Harry Richman and Dick Merrill completed aviation's first round trip flight to England.

Asked to tell his version of why Richman threw the gasoline overboard a few miles off Newfoundland, causing the Vultee monoplane, Lady Peace, to crash in a bog, Merrill, a veteran transport pilot, said upon their arrival from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, today:

"I'd like to, but I can't."

The $85,000 blue and silver ship touched ground at Floyd Bennett Airport at 2:16 p. m., Eastern standard time, ending the 7,000-mile flight begun September 2 from the same field. The Broadway crooner and the flying ace left Harbor Grace at 6:18 a. m.

3 Loyalist Women Arrested For Protest at Franco Auction

Bargain Hunters' Cries Vie With Heckling of Anti-Rebels as Personal Effects of Spanish Revolt Leader's Brother Go on Sale Here.

Echoes of issues at stake in Spain's civil war were heard yesterday when the personal belongings of Maj. Ramon Franco, former air attache of the Spanish embassy and brother of Gen. Francisco Franco, rebel leader in Spain, went on sale at the Washington Art Galleries.

At 1 o'clock, the time set for the sale to begin, three women appeared in front of the gallery bearing huge placards printed to protest the sale of the Franco effects. Policemen, previously notified that such a demonstration was expected, arrested the three self-styled "defenders of democracy."

At police headquarters, the women identified themselves as Mildred Egan, 27, of 513 F street northwest; Mrs. Cecelia Rowe, 37, of 419 Hobart street northwest, and Mrs. Minnie Weinstein, 42, of 1449 Oak street northwest. They were charged with attempting to entice persons away from a place of business and

G.O.P. Aid Says He'd Favor Foe If He Were Red

Ex-Senator Allen Assails New Deal Spending in Address Here.

Former Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, took a hand in the controversy over Roosevelt and Reds last night, saying that if he were a Communist he would vote for the New Deal.

Appearing under the auspices of the Landon and Knox Campaign Club, Allen addressed a crowd that jammed and overflowed the small ballroom of the Willard Hotel. He said:

"I am not going to say that the New Dealers are Communists, but if I were a Communist those are the chaps I would be voting for on the third of November."

Allen, who had Alf M. Landon as his secretary when he was Governor of Kansas before coming to the Senate, denounced the New Deal for its relief program, its lack of a program with respect to the unemployed and its reckless spending.

He said too much money was being spent on the administration of relief, and not enough was going to the needy. Most of it, he said, was going to "a set of political grafters."

"Nobody resets relief," he said. "The resentment is due to the waste of the millions that have gone into the political administration of relief."

He accused the New Deal of encouraging unemployment nad of creating a permanent army of unemployed.

Clarifies Knox's Statement.

Alluding to the much-discussed statement of Vice Presidential Nominee Frank Knox about tiasurance policies and bank deposits, Allen said that what Knox meant was that, while these might not be in

New Receiver Appointed for Fidelity Loan

Barnett Admits He Has Been Replaced; Nolan Hinted Successor.

A shakeup in the receivership management of the Fidelity Building & Loan Association has resulted in the removal of M. L. Barnett and the installation of James H. Nolan as new receiver, it was learned last night.

The Fidelity has been under a receiver's management since July 18, and to date no announcement of the Federal Government's plans for the institution has been made.

About 18,000 shareholders in the city have been registering claims. The work has been long and tedious, causing considerable dissatisfaction among many of the larger claimants, workers said.

Don A. Loftus, chairman of a shareholders' committee, publicly has denounced the delay in clearing up the affairs of the closed bank, and the delay in announcement of whether the $5,000,000 institution's assets are to be liquidated or the bank permitted to reopen.

Admits Change.

Nolan, the new receiver, could not be reached for a statement last night, nor could Gibbs Lyons, deputy comptroller in charge of the Fidelity case.

However, Barnett, the outgoing receiver, admitted that the switch had been made, and that he is returning to his duties as a national bank examiner with the Government.

Dr. Ralph W. S. Bonnett, president of the board of trustees, who was elected last March 13 to succeed Fred Rhodes, now under indictment, is hopeful that the bank will be allowed to reorganize and continue in business.

There have been persistent rumors that the comptroller's office was planning to liquidate the bank, but Gibbs Lyons has stated that no decision of any kind has been reached.

Veterans Gay As Last Rally Opens in City

Affiliated Organizations Send Delegates to Encampment.

Back in the town from where "Uncle Abe" called them to war 75 years ago a company of 900 Civil War veterans, merrily set about their final encampment yesterday.

With fifes shrilling all day long and drums rolling, interspersed with round dances, kissing, handshaking and vocal renditions of "Marching Through Georgia," they converted the lobby of their headquarters, the Mayflower, into an old-folks jamboree.

Dozens more blue-clad warriors, their buttons shining as bright as their eyes, arrived yesterday to join hands with their former comrades in their seventieth and last convention. With them came hundreds of relatives, most of whom are members of organizations affiliated with the G. A. R.

A few of the officers devoted themselves for a few minutes here and there to the more or less perfunctory business of the convention, but the majority swarmed through the lobbies and streets, which the city had emblazoned in flags and bunting in their honor.

Youngest Fighter.

The youngest man to fight in the war, Capt. Eugene Merrick, of California, was among today's arrivals. Capt. Merrick is a mere lad of 81, and says that he "likes to get around with the older fellows once in a while." He enlisted at the age of 11.

The California delegation likewise boasts the oldest man still living from the war, William Reynolds, 107, who was unable to come, not because he wasn't ready and anxious, but because his aged housekeeper in Los Angeles was unwilling to tackle the trip. Reynolds sent a telegram of congratulation to his 18 comrades who made the long journey across the continent without a mishap.

Oley Nelson, the 93-year-old national commander, was called upon for numerous official and unofficial speeches. In the morning he visited Walter Reed Hospital and presented the staff with a silk flag. In the afternoon he made a lengthy speech upon the occasion of the dedication of a tree to him near the Lincoln Memorial. In the evening he presided at a mass meeting at Constitution Hall.

One of the less conspicuous events of the day was the reunion of Mary Logan Tucker, daughter of the famous Gen. John A. Logan, and Alexander Hamilton Roberts, 92, last surviving hero of Logan's command. They met in a hotel room where Roberts' wife, who accompanied him here, was sick abed, stricken with a heart attack. She presented him with a hitherto unknown photograph of Logan.

Previously Mary Logan Tucker had assisted in the dedication of a new bronze tablet at the Soldiers Home.

Tried Six Times.

Young Capt. Merrick, the 81-year-old "boy" of the encampment, related that he had tried to join the Boys in Blue six times before he was accepted. He succeeded the seventh time, much to the surprise of his Illinois farmer parents, who had taken his attempts as a harmless childish notion. He is an active salesman today.

He got into the last year of the fighting and marched through Georgia with Gen. Stedman as an infantryman, mopping up after Sherman. He was in many skirmishes, but no major battles.

"I wanted to join the army," he chuckled, "because my older brothers had gone away to war and I wanted to go, too."

Asked how old his brothers were then, he answered: "Thirteen and fifteen."

"I voted for Lincoln at the age of 11," he said, "probably the youngest person to ever cast a ballot in this nation. And it was legal, too. Under the army regulations every man who carried a musket was allowed to vote.

"One day in Virginia we were called together on a battlefield and told we might vote, and every man in my company voted for Lincoln. There was great rejoicing in the camp when the news was received that Lincoln had defeated Gen. George McClellan, his Democratic rival."

6 Indictments Back Senate Labor Inquiry

Detective Firm Officials Accused of Failing to Answer Subpenas.

La Follette Will Resume Study of Reported Violations Today.

By the Associated Press.

Six grand jury indictments yesterday strengthened the hand of the Senate committee investigating charges by organized labor of violations of civil liberties, on the eve of the resumption of the inquiry today.

Contumacy indictments were returned in Federal District Court here today against six officials of the Railway Audit and Inspection Co. for failure to answer subpenas at the committee's original hearing August 31. They were the first indictments under a new law enacted at the last session of Congress.

An open inquiry into the industrial detective firm's activities will be resumed today, investigators said, when they will present a mass of tattered records they said were seized from the company's waste baskets in seven cities.

Failure to turn over these records in response to a committee subpena was charged in yesterday's indictments, which also accused the officials of "wilfully, knowingly and unlawfully" refusing to appear as witnesses.

Those indicted on the two counts were: W. W. Groves, company president; W. Boone Groves, vice president; James E. Blair, secretary treasurer; and operative J. C. Boyer, all of Pittsburgh; L. Douglas Rice, general manager of the Philadelphia office, and Robert S. Judge, New York attorney.

Trial Early This Winter.

Their trial in Federal District Court here probably will be held early this winter, court attaches said. Conviction would carry a fine of $100 to $1,000 and imprisonment of from one to 12 months.

Bench warrants for the arrest of six officials were issued by Justice Peyton Gordon. He fixed bond at $1,000.

Efforts of the committee to obtain telegraphic correspondence of the firm and its affiliate, the Central Industrial Service Co., were dropped yesterday, when Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat of the Federal District Court was informed that subpenas for the messages had been withdrawn.

As a result of the withdrawal he dismissed the suit brought by the two companies and a group of their officers and employes to enjoin seizure of the telegrams from the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Co.

John J. Abt, committee attorney, said investigators were "not interested in seeing messages at the present time."

Will Seek Explanation.

Chairman LaFollette (Progressive), Wisconsin, said the committee today would seek an explanation of the Railway Audit and Inspection Co.'s activities from employes and former employes.

It also will study the restored records, pasted together by investigators from thousands of torn scraps of paper, he said.

Later in the week officials of four other corporations are scheduled to testify, President E. E. McGuffin and Secretary-Treasurer L. W. Huffman, of the National Corporations Service, of Youngstown, Ohio, have been summoned to appear Wednesday. Officers of the Lake Erie Chemical Co., of Cleveland; the Manville Manufacturing Co., of Pontiac, Mich., and the Pinkerton National Detective Service were listed as witnesses at other sessions this week.

Smudgeless Cubes Of Coal Make Bow In Wrapping Paper

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Coal cubes—"You can feed the furnace with them in your dinner clothes"—were put on the fuel market today.

The cubes were so clean, salesmen boasted at the American Coal Week Exposition, that:

Snow white trucks delivered them.

White liveried drivers carried them into the house.

Husbands tossed them into the furnace without smudging their clothes or even their hands.

They were placed up beside the fireplace in the living room, and used instead of logs.

The secret of it all was that the cubes were wrapped in heavy paper.

Made of fine coal—known as "screenings" or "slack"— mixed with water and glucose binder, the cubes were pressed into shape just as sugar cubes are.

Each package held six 3½-inch cubes, and weighed 10 pounds.

Farm Tenant Aid Aim Of President; Landon Backs Crop Insurance

Address Is Revised On Eve of His Trip

Announces Part of Talk After Roosevelt Plan Is Disclosed.

By Felix Bruner.
A Staff Correspondent.

Topeka, Kans., Sept. 21.—Gov. Alf M. Landon tonight was ready for his third campaign trip, a swing through the farming area of the Central West, during which he will make three major speeches and more than a score of short talks from the "back porch" of his special train. During this swing, lasting nearly a week, the Republican Presidential candidate is expected to expound in detail his farm relief policies.

President Roosevelt's announcement last night of the appointment of committees to work out crop insurance and land-use programs was upsetting to the Landon camp, although some of the Governor's advisors said that, in view of similar anticipation by the New Deal of Landon's moves, it was not unexpected.

The Kansas Governor will base his farm program on the insurance plan. He said today his Des Moines speech, scheduled for tomorrow night and containing the first mention made by him of crop insurance, was written several days ago. The speech, however, has undergone some revision during the last few days.

Know His Attitude.

"All of the farm leaders," Landon said, "have known my attitude for a long time."

Referring to the Roosevelt announcement, he said:

"I am glad to see any well-considered approach to crop insurance."

It was pointed out here that several weeks ago Louis J. Tabor, of Ohio, master of the National Grange, had gone over in detail with Landon a plan of crop insurance. He later conferred with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, presumably on the same subject.

Persons close to Landon said that much of the President's statement bore a close resemblance to a farm plan submitted to the President by the Kansas Governor two years ago and discussed with him again at the drought conference in Des Moines recently.

In view of the President's action, described here as an attempt to "steal Landon's program," the Republican candidate made public a portion of the speech he will make in Des Moines. He will say to his audience there:

"I am going to mention a subject that is in neither platform—crop insurance. It is a question in which we have long been interested in Kansas. In fact, some of our Republican leaders in farm legislation have been in the forefront in working on it.

"We realize that there are difficulties; but insurance companies are writing policies today covering risks that they didn't consider feasible a few years ago. I believe that the question of crop insurance should be given the fullest attention."

An announcement some time ago by Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, that he would introduce a crop insurance bill at the opening of the next Congress had been considered a "tip-off" that Landon would come out for the plan.

Farm Relief Plan.

Landon, in addition to discussing crop insurance, is expected to go into detail concerning a farm relief plan. He has insisted that President Roosevelt has no such program. It was recalled that in his speech at Springfield, Mass., a week ago he said:

"You may search in vain for a national land-use program. Our need today is for a sound soil conservation, erosion control and water resources program."

The President's announcement of crop insurance and land utilization was the second time he has anticipated Landon on the eve of an

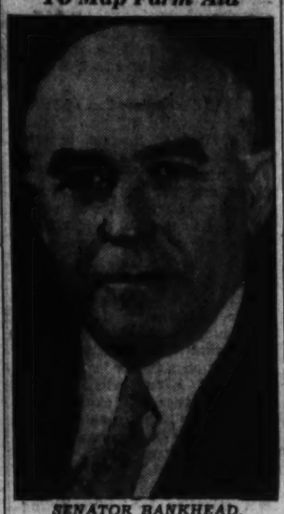
To Map Farm Aid



SENATOR BANKHEAD.

Help in Land Purchase Suggested to Jones, Senator Bankhead.

Westbrook Urges End of Tenancy

By Robert C. Albright.

Following commitments of both major party candidates to fullest consideration of "all risk" crop insurance, President Roosevelt last night hammered again at the farm issue with a proposal for Government financing of land purchased by farm tenants.

Government aid for farm tenants was suggested by the President in letters written from Hyde Park to Senator John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, and Representative Marvin Jones, of Texas.

In Washington, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace threw new light on the crop insurance proposals of the President by espousing insurance of the "payment in kind" variety, which he said ultimately must involve a return to production control.

"I do not like to use the term production control," Wallace said. "Actually, the land would be used for soil-building crops, rather than for crops that are not needed."

Wallace said a committee named by the President to study the proposal will meet with him today. Although only one or two crops would be covered to begin with, he suggested wheat, cotton and corn offered the best possibilities.

Meantime, in Topeka, Gov. Alf M. Landon disclosed that previous to the Administration's latest crop insurance proposals he had included "fullest consideration" of crop insurance, and approval of "any well considered approach" to the problem, in a speech prepared for delivery in Des Moines, Iowa, tonight.

President Roosevelt's suggestion for Government financing of tenant land purchases came as both major parties drove intensely on all fronts for the farm vote, apparently striving to checkmate or anticipate opposition moves.

Back in Hyde Park.

Back at Hyde Park, N. Y., to celebrate the eighty-second birthday of his mother, President Roosevelt released through White House officials the letter he had written Bankhead, sponsor of farm tenant legislation at the last session of Congress, and to Jones, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

The President asked Bankhead to meet with Jones, and called on the two to co-operate in preparing plans for meeting the farm tenancy problem which might be undertaken by the Federal Government.

Coincident with the release of the President's letters, Gov. J. M. Futrell, in Hot Springs, Ark., told his farm tenancy commission the United States would make it possible and practicable for an industrious and thrifty farmer to purchase and pay for a small farm of productive land.

Following within 24 hours his crop insurance suggestions to Wallace, the President in his letters to Bankhead and Jones declared "any long-time improvement of the welfare of the Nation and of the farm people involves improvement of the tenancy situation."

"The tenancy problem in the United States," the President wrote, "cannot be solved overnight. But through Government financing of land purchased by tenants, other countries, notably Ireland and Denmark, have substantially increased farmer ownership of land. I think we need some such approach. It should give the tenants who have demonstrated their ability to manage land an opportunity to buy farms on long-time terms at moderate interest rates."

Cites Tenancy Increase.

He said that "thoughtful people everywhere have been gravely concerned with the steady increase in farm tenancy from 1880 to 1935."

"I realize," he told Bankhead, "your long interest and that of Congressman Jones in this important problem and wish that you and he would arrange to meet with me early in December, when we can complete our recommendations to Congress for legislation designed to bring about improvements in the tenancy situation."

He said that "since the earliest

Alliance Sealed By Progressive Labor Leaders

Berry, La Follette Groups Will Co-ordinate Efforts to Re-elect President.

A political alliance of the Progressive National Committee with Labor's Non-Partisan League was completed here yesterday by a group of liberal labor leaders meeting with Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr., of Wisconsin, to "synchronize" farm-labor campaign backing for President Roosevelt.

With the avowed objective of re-electing Roosevelt, the two groups started out to enroll in their joint cause all other farm and labor groups with a similar aim. The All-Party committee, an agricultural group, will be approached in a few days, and later, the Good Neighbor League.

"My personal feeling is that this is a very terrific campaign," Senator La Follette said, in announcing the coalition movement. "I believe this is a real fight."

Seated with the short, swarthy Wisconsin Progressive as he received the press were Maj. George L. Berry, president of Labor's Non-Partisan League and the President's industrial co-ordinator; John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and head of the Committee for Industrial Organization recently suspended by the American Federation of Labor, and Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

See New Party in 1940.

Observers saw a deeper significance in the announcement—possibility of a new party farm-labor alliance in 1940. Berry in organizing the Non-Partisan League recently announced his group wanted to be ready if such a party is formed. La Follette was asked if his group is looking forward to a new party movement. He said he was not authorized to speak for the delegates who met recently in Chicago to form the Progressive National Committee.

Both Lewis and Hillman, members alike of Labor's Nonpartisan League and the insurgent Committee for Industrial Organization, attended the Chicago conference of Progressives as delegates.

"We are going to carry on as effective a campaign as we know how," La Follette said. "Here are two organizations supporting President Roosevelt in this campaign. We want to co-ordinate efforts and exchange information. And we want to make certain that our activities dovetail and there is no duplication of effort."

Lewis, Hillman and La Follette all will take the stump, and the Wisconsin Senator said the alliance would insure against speakers going into the same territory and

Roosevelt Attends Quiet Fete On His Mother's 82d Birthday

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 21.—From affairs of the Nation, President Roosevelt turned tonight to a quiet party in the huge dining room of the family home on the Hudson River in honor of the birthday of his mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt.

Four generations of Roosevelts, several in-laws and a few close friends assembled for Mrs. Roosevelt's eighty-second anniversary around a big mahogany table in the white-walled dining room.

The President's mother sat at one end of the table, brightened by flowers from the gardens of the estate; the President at the other. Gift packages—their contents were not revealed to any but the guests—were heaped beside her and opened as the dinner began.

In keeping with family tradition that there is no counting of years after 21, the birthday cake carried 21 candles. They were offered later to the guests, who blew out the flames and made wishes for Mrs. Roosevelt.

For the 56 years since she came there as a bride she has lived in Hyde Park House. The President was born there in a second-story corner room.

The mistress of the huge old dwelling was described as in good health, having recovered from a fall some time ago in which she injured a hip.

Four great-grandchildren attended the party with their mothers. They were "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, children of Mrs. John Boettiger, the President's daughter, and Kate and Sara, daughters of the Chief Executive's son, James.

League Dodges Issue of Ousting Ethiopians; Selassie Flies to Session, Italians Stay Away

By the United Press.

Geneva, Sept. 21.—Led by Emperor Haile Selassie, who made a dramatic airplane flight from London, Ethiopia tonight won an indefinite stay in its fight to remain a member of the League of Nations.

While the Emperor, without an empire was en route, the League Assembly, fearing to create a precedent which might work against other nations, delayed an anticipated decision to eject the Ethiopians. Pending a report by the League credentials committee, the Ethiopian delegations will be allowed to participate in discussions.

Another source of worry for the delegates is the question of foreign intervention in the Spanish civil war. Foreign Minister Julio Alcarez Del Vayo of Spain has indicated privately he will protest before the Assembly Wednesday that foreign nations have been supplying the rebels with arms and munitions, and were sending them through Portugal.

Dodging the Ethiopian issue was attributed to fears of many powers who feel their territories may be overrun in war time. They do not want to set a precedent which would justify the League rejecting them. Some members of the credentials committee hinted the World Court might be consulted regarding validity of the Ethiopian credentials.

The Assembly's decision may mean a long delay, causing postponment of Italy's return to Geneva. The Assembly's rules provide that credentials must be signed by the heads of a state or the foreign minister. Ethiopia's credentials were signed by Selassie. The committee now must decide whether he still is head of a state.

Selassie's arrival caused a sensation. Most observers agreed his move would be hopeless, but admitted his presence might possibly help Ethiopia's cause.

Previously the Ethiopian delegates planned first to demand a secret ballot of the credentials committee so that the Assembly would not be intimidated. Then, if the committee rejected their credentials, they were to ask for a roll call so that each nation would be obligated to state publicly its decision.

Outside the Ethiopian flurry the opening of the Assembly was normal. Italy's row of seats were not occupied.

Ethiopia was allowed to participate in voting for a president in which Carlos Saavredra Lamas, of Argentina, was elected.

Wallace Sees Reds Favoring Landon Victory

Asesrts Capitalistic System Has Been Helped by Roosevelt.

Expressing doubt that the Communist Party seeks the re-election of President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace told reporters yesterday that Roosevelt has rendered a great "service" to the capitalistic system.

"If the Communists have come out for Roosevelt, and I don't know whether they have or not, I think it was for the subtle political purpose of helping to elect Landon," Wallace declared.

Wallace's statement was in reply to questioning on charges in the Hearst newspapers that the Communist Party, under instructions from the Soviet, is throwing its united support to Roosevelt.

Would Prefer Landon.

"I think the Communists would much rather have Landon for President than Roosevelt, and I think the capitalistic system is much more likely to be perpetuated under Roosevelt than under Landon," Wallace said.

"I think Roosevelt has rendered a service to the capitalistic system that is not likely to be fully appreciated for another 20 to 30 years.

According to the Associated Press, Col. Frank Knox, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, was asked in Los Angeles if he approved of the statement of Wiliam Randolph Hearst that Roosevelt receives "the support of * * * enemies of the American system of government."

Backs Statement.

"Absolutely," the dispatches said Knox replied.

Following announcement of a new farm-labor Progressive political alignment here, Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr., of Wisconsin, was asked if he thought the course of the campagin had been changed by the Hearst charges.

"I don't see that it has," La Follette replied. "It hasn't anything to do with the issues in this campaign."

Structure Sound, Insurers Declare

Boston, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Resolutions asserting that the financial structure of the Nation's life insurance companies is "in excellent condition," but calling for "a balanced Federal budget, curbing of public expenditures and reduction of taxation to avoid "uncontrolled inflation," were adopted tonight by the National Council of the National Association of Life Underwriters at its forty-seventh annual convention.

"Many policy holders," the resolution added, "fear that the possibility of unlimited inflation might result in the reduction of the purchasing power of the proceeds of their policies, the income from annuities or income settlements. This is of great concern to them.

"The way to avoid such uncontrolled inflation is plain. It is by the balancing of the Federal budget, the curbing of public expenditures and the reduction of taxation."

The association's nominating committee presented the following slate for approval:

For president, Alexander E. Patterson, of Chicago, now vice president; for vice president, O. Sam Cummings, of Dallas, now secretary, and for secretary, Philip C. Young, of San Francisco.

Health, Welfare Unity Aim of U. S.

By the Associated Press.

Reorganization of the inter-departmental committee to consider means of better co-ordination of health and welfare activities of the Government was announced yesterday at the White House.

President Roosevelt, in a statement, said that "in view of certain personnel changes" he was reconstituting the committee as follows:

"The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Josephine Roche, to continue as chairman; representatives of the United States Department of Agricture, Interior and Labor, including assistant secretaries already serving on the committee and such bureau representatives as may be designated by the Secretaries of the respective departments; a member of the Social Security Board to be designated by the board.

"It is understood that the committee will continue to utilize the services of special technical committees which it sets up from time to time."

danger now, they would be if President Roosevelt were re-elected and continued to pile up the national debt.

Allen said that New Deal expenditures already amounted to a billion and a half dollars more than it cost to run the United States Government for the first 127 years of its existence.

He praised Gov. Landon's record as chief executive of Kansas, and particularly his record of economy.

Says Records Are Issue.

"The issue on November 3," he said, "will be Roosevelt's record as President as against Landon's record as Governor of Kansas."

He told his audience that it would not see Gov. Landon's wife during the campaign, since she was the type to stay at home.

Paul E. Lesh, president of the Landon and Knox Campaign Club, presided at last night's rally. He told the gathering it would be surprised to know how many Democrats were members of the club. Contributions to the club's treasury, he said, were running $1,000 ahead of those to the Hoover-Curtis Club in 1928, one local anti-New Dealer having sent in a check for $3,000.

Politics and People

Democratic Leaders, Showing Concern Over Landon's Activities, Seal Political Armor.

By Franklyn Waltman

DEVELOPMENTS over the week-end clearly indicate that President Roosevelt and the Democratic strategists are far more concerned over the activities of Gov. Alf M. Landon than they are willing to admit publicly. This does not necessarily indicate a state of jitters, as some observers believe. More likely it is the exercise of political astuteness, for it is always smart politics to take your opponent seriously and seek to anticipate him.

WALTMAN.

This is the explanation of President Roosevelt's apparently sudden revival of interest in crop insurance, long-range plans for land utilization on the Great Plains and the disturbing problem of farm tenancy, which was exhibited in the letters just made public, one after another, by the White House.

Obviously Mr. Roosevelt designed his letters to close up chinks in his political armor on those subjects. Obviously he believed that Gov. Landon would discuss such subjects in his farm speech at Minneapolis and he sought to take the edge off of whatever the Kansan said, by saying something on the same subject in advance. Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt had another objective in mind. Perhaps he wished to distract attention — by projecting these new proposals for farm relief—from the defects and faults of the AAA.

But whatever the President exactly had in mind, the circumstances under which he launched studies into crop insurance, farm tenancy and land utilization indicate with reasonable clarity that politics dictated his action—and that may be unfortunate for the country.

In the law books there is an axiom that hard cases make poor law. It might be said that measures inspired by political necessities frequently are economically unsound. An outstanding illustration of that was former President Hoover's promise, during his 1928 campaign, to call a special session of Congress to deal with farm relief and to give the farmer greater tariff protection. Out of the fulfillment of that promise came the Hawley-Smoot tariff act and the Federal Farm Board—two measures which did far more harm than they did good.

It is entirely possible that once the election is held, the new Roosevelt programs for crop insurance and farm tenancy may be relegated to the limbo of forgotten things, as have so many proposals born in the heat of political campaigns. But that is unlikely since the President seems to be bound on a course of definitely committing himself to some form of crop insurance and some kind of an undertaking to reduce farm tenancy. What Gov. Landon proposes to say on the subject of crop insurance is far more cautious than the President's declaration.

In themselves crop insurance and a reduction in farm tenancy are highly desirable objectives. But whether they can be achieved through governmental action without creating more serious problems than those solved—if any problem is solved—remains to be demonstrated.

There is something very appealing and attractive about proposals for crop insurance. It seems the essence of common sense that in the fat years when farmers have bumper crops they should lay aside a portion of their harvest to be used in the lean years when droughts and insects reduce their production. The same reasons which compel the urban worker and his corporate employer to lay aside a part of their earnings for the rainy day point to the advisibility of the farmer taking steps to safeguard himself against the drought.

But as a practical proposition crop insurance is not so simple. If the Government is going to establish a system whereby the farmer can avoid loss, as the President suggested, from both price fluctuation in the fat years and crop failures in the lean years, why should he exercise any prudence on his own part? Why should he not plant all the wheat and corn he wishes to plant, year in and year out, and let the Government hold the bag for him?

The answer is that unless the Government does hold the bag in connection with crop insurance, there must be some form of production control—those who benefit from the crop insurance must agree not to take advantage of that system. Thus we get back to governmental restriction of agricultural production, which, if it works, means price-fixing of food by the Government.

But can it be made to work on a purely voluntary basis? The Administration found out in its efforts to bring about a voluntary reduction in the cotton crop under the AAA that there were a number of planters—a minority to be sure, but sufficient to undo the plan—who would not subscribe to acreage reduction contracts, but actually increased their plantings in order to take advantage of the higher prices resulting from the restrictions to which their neighbors submitted. Thus the Bankhead cotton control act became necessary to force this minority to fall in step.

Undoubtedly there are many farmers who would prefer to forego the security that might come from crop insurance rather than restrict their acreage—fellows who would sooner gamble with the vagaries of nature and take their gains in full measure this year and let next year take care of its losses. Their activities conceivably might bring the crop insurance system to disaster.

Is it proposed that they be forced into line? And if so, how could it be done without amending the Constitution to place agriculture directly under the control of the Federal Government—since it is clear by this time that compulsory legislation of this kind is now unconstitutional?

These obstacles may be circumvented in the formulation of a crop-insurance program. But they are questions which naturally arise and they should not be overlooked before the country starts cheering. Many able and wise men remain dubious of the soundness of the insurance of bank deposits—but compared to crop insurance that really is a very simple problem. It may be that President Roosevelt is entering on the greatest of his many experiments to set aside the forces of human nature and economics.

La Follette said he planned to go to Chicago in a few days to negotiate with W. H. Settle, of the All-Party committee, in an effort to bring that group into the new political alignment. La Follette said he was "booked up" to speak in Wisconsin the first two weeks in October and had not carried his plans beyond them.

Asked if he would stump for Senator George W. Norris, Roosevelt Republican, who is running as an independent for re-election in Nebraska, La Follette said "if there is anything I could do to help him I would be delighted to serve." Berry said his organization would support Norris.

Although LaFollette declined to be "tied down" on what States he and his associates will campaign in, Lewis said that "obviously" he Lewis, was going to be "very active" in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Both La Follette and Berry denied that their organizations would seek or accept any campaign contributions from the Democratic National Committee, although their joint objective is the re-election of Roosevelt.

"We feel that closer co-operation between non-partisan groups with the same objective, will make the outcome more certain," said La Follette.

"I am not much on political prediction. I believe, as in other campaigns, there is always one more vote to get and to be after until the polls close. I am convinced of this—that if all of the Progressives are united in this campaign, there will be no doubt about the re-election of Roosevelt."

Berry said the alignment was the result of an all-day conference, after recent developments convinced both groups of the existence of "a very common cause."

Storm 500 Miles Off Florida Coast

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 21. (AP).—Another tropical storm, small in area but nearly a hurricane in intensity, tonight moved northwestward through the Atlantic Ocean about 500 miles east of Florida.

The Weather Bureau said the storm, which developed northwest of Puerto Rico yesterday, was central about 430 miles northeast of Nassau, capital of the Bahama Islands, at 1 p. m.

Advising ships to use precaution, the forecasters said the storm was moving northwestward about 10 to 12 miles an hour attended by gales and squalls and by "near hurricane winds" over a small area near center.

Meteorologists said the disturbance is "small compared to the one last week."

Portugal Fears War If Reds Win in Spain

Geneva, Sept. 21 (AP).—Foreign Minister A. Monteiro, of Portugal, today said in a signed article in a Geneva newspaper "A Communist victory or anarchy in Spain would mean war for us."

He added, however, that Portugal rigorously was observing a policy of nonintervention.

Roosevelt Gets Colored Units Support at Rally

Mass Meeting in N.Y. Hears Message of President on Anniversary.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 22.—A mass meeting of colored persons, gathered in Madison Square Garden tonight on the seventy-fourth anniversary of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, declared their support for "the social and economic program" of President Roosevelt.

Proceedings of the meeting, held under auspices of the Colored Committee of the Good Neighbor League, were broadcast to 25 similar gatherings in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, New York, West Virginia, Kentucky and the District of Columbia and over a national radio hook-up.

A message from President Roosevelt was read which declared "in the truest sense freedom cannot be bestowed, it must be achieved; and there must be constant vigilance if it is to be maintained."

Donald Richberg, former NRA head and principal speaker, assailed the Liberty League and asserted its program could lead to dictatorships such as exist in Europe—"regimented ranks of black shirts and brown shirts marching under the banners of Fascism and just as hateful to us as regimented ranks marching under the red flag."

Other speakers were Bishop R. R. Wright, jr., national chairman of the colored committee; Representative Caroline G. O'Day, of New York; Dr. Stanley High, director of the Good Neighbor League, and the Rev. A. Clayton Powell, of the Abyssinian Baptist Church.

The resolution, prepared by Bishop Wright's committee and called "A Second Emancipation Proclamation," reviewed the progress of the American colored race, and said:

"We therefore call upon the forward-looking citizens * * * to join with us in this most forward-marching movement, and carry forward the real spirit of Abraham Lincoln by supporting the social and economic program of our great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Ex-Minnesota Athlete Dead; Suicide Hinted

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Arthur H. Laemmle, 31, of Watertown, S. D., former University of Minnesota athlete, was found dead from knife wounds in a Columbia University dormitory today with two blood-stained razor blades and a souvenir dagger at his side.

Police said they found a note in Laemmle's room indicating that he planned to kill himself.

Laemmle arrived here Sunday to register for a post-graduate course at the university, where he had studied in the summer of 1935.

President's Letter

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 21 (AP). Following is the text of President Roosevelt's letter today to Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, suggesting preparation of plans to meet the farm tenant problem:

Thoughtful people everywhere have been gravely concerned with the steady increase in farm tenancy from 1880 to 1935. Since the earliest days of their history, it has been an ideal of the American people that every American should have an ownership interest in land or in some other means of production."

Despite this fundamental objective, we have seen farm tenancy increase relative to farm ownership decade by decade. An enduring agricultural civilization must be built on the firm foundation of home and farm ownership.

Any long-time improvement of the welfare of the Nation and of farm people involves improvement of the tenancy situation.

The tenancy problem in the United States cannot be solved overnight. But through Government financing of land purchased by tenants, other countries, notably Ireland and Denmark, have substantially increased farmer ownership of farm land.

I think we need some such approach. It should give tenants who have demonstrated their ability to manage land an opportunity to buy farms on long-time terms at moderate interest rates.

I am asking you, therefore, to meet with Congressman Marvin Jones, chairman of the Agricultural Committee of the House of Representatives, and co-operate in preparing plans for meeting the tenancy problem that might be undertaken by the Federal Government.

I realize your long interest and that of Congressman Jones in this important problem and wish that you can and he would arrange to meet with me early in December when we can complete our recommendations to Congress for legislation designed to bring about improvements in the tenancy situation.

The Campaign Arena

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 21 (AP).—Secretary of State Orville E. Atwood accepted tonight the petition of Louis B. Ward, Pontiac, for a recount of all votes cast in the Democratic primary for United States Senator.

Ward, former representative of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin in Washington, ran less than 4,000 votes behind Representative Prentiss Brown, of St. Ignace.

E. J. Steiner, Ward's business associate, filed the petition and deposited a check for $17,335 to cover the cost of the recount. Ward had stated earlier in the day that Father Coughlin would furnish the deposit required.

The Secretary of State said the recount would begin within two weeks.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 21 (AP).—The National Council of the Veterans of Future Wars today mailed out to the five candidates for the Presidency of the United States a set of seven questions headed with: "Were you in favor of the bonus?"

Declaring that the bloc rule of organized minorities is the great threat to the American system of government, a letter with the questionnaire asked:

"Were you in favor of the bonus?" "Are you in favor of an increase in pensions for widows and orphans of those veterans who died in the war?" "Are you in favor of general dependent and individual pensions for all veterans?" "Are you in favor of veterans preference?" "Are you in favor of the draft in time of war?" "Are you in favor of conscription of capital in time of war?" and "Are you in favor of conscription of labor in time of war?"

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 21 (AP).—Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, declared today "relief of unemployment is a matter of right and not of charity," in an address dedicating the $200,000 grandstand at the Arizona State Fair Grounds.

"This is boondoggling project No. 1 that you are looking at," he said. "This is what they say is a waste of money."

"I have seen 300 projects in my trip through the West, and I haven't seen one that wasn't good."

Declaring that "we are going to have some unemployment for a long time," Hopkins said it "is time we developed a permanent program for the relief of unemployment."

Charging a "campaign of intimidation," Charles H. Cook, Iowa Republican chairman, was quoted yesterday by the Republican National Committee as saying New Dealers "are threatening criminal action against citizens who are telling the truth about the 'consumers' taxes."

A statement by the committee quoted Cook as saying New Dealers "are concerned about the tax postings on meat because they do not want the public to know the truth."

The Cook statement charged Democratic National Chairman Farley with "hurling epithets which threaten fines and jail sentences to any merchant who dares reveal to his customers the truth that the Government is collecting from him Federal taxes in the prices of the commodities he buys."

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, will speak at the Workmen's Circle Lyceum, 1802 Fourteenth street northwest at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

The Socialist standard bearer will be introduced by Broadus Mitchell, professor of economics at Johns Hopkins University. Ray Cook, national secretary of the Workers' Alliance of America, will be among the speakers.

Preceding the rally Thomas will be the guest of local Socialists and independent supporters at a dinner. At noon he will be the guest speaker at a special luncheon of the National Press Club.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—United States Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Ohio, said today party differences in Ohio have been settled and that this would result in President Roosevelt carrying that State.

"We have had some pretty bitter squabbles among ourselves in the past, but these differences have been all settled," he said after conferring with Chairman Farley.

"President Roosevelt will carry the State by a big majority as he had in 1932, but we have got to keep going. We mustn't take anything for granted."

days of their history it has been an ideal of the American people that every American should have an ownership interest in land or some other means of production."

"Despite this fundamental objective, we have seen farm tenancy increase relative to farm ownership decade by decade," his letter continued. "An enduring agricultural civilization must be built on the firm foundation of home and farm ownership. Any long-time improvement of the welfare of the Nation and of the farm people involves improvement of the tenancy situation."

Earlier, Gov. Futrell, keynoting opening sessions of his Farm Tenancy commission, declared complete annihilation of tenancy, center of social unrest in east Arkansas for two years, is a dream. Although worthless persons cannot be helped, he asserted, substitution of farm owners for farm tenants "as far as possible" should be the objective.

Statements were distributed to every member of the State commission, which has been trying to unionize Arkansas sharecroppers. The union statement reiterated charges of terrorism, and declared farm tenant status could best be improved by organization.

Col. Lawrence Westbrook, special assistant to WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, told the commission sooner or later farm tenancy will have to be abolished or "5,000,000 people will have to find something else to do." He said industrialization of the South should be considered in any program to uplift sharecroppers and tenant labor.

As crop insurance and tenant farm financing became the two-edged sword of the Administration's latest farm thrusts, Secretary Wallace in Washington told reporters acturial studies by the department, financed by Bankhead-Jones law and AAA allotments, show the Government can "calculate, according to approved insurance methods, a sound basis of approach."

Green Directed Study.

Wallace said the studies had been made by experts working under direction of Roy M. Green, chief of the financial division of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, and a former Kansas State farm economics professor.

The AAA chieftan tied the Administration's crop insurance proposals into his "ever normal granary" plan, dormant in departmental files for three and a half years. Wallace said yesterday it could operate in two ways—first, through crop insurance, with payments in kind, and second, through commodity loans, such as the corn loans of 1933, 1934 and 1935. One plan, he said, could be used to supplement the other.

There have been four private ventures in crop insurance, all of which have failed. Wallace told of the experience of a Hartford insurance company, which insured prices as well as crops, and which lost several million dollars.

"It is too big a thing for private companies," Wallace insisted. "The Government has the responsibility. It can help by sound insurance to tide the farmers over the lean years."

He said the Government could "afford to take a slight loss and still be ahead of the game." He said he meant in part that the Government through crop insurance might guard against expenditures for farm relief.

Workers Hold Factories In Vosges Despite Pact

Paris, Sept. 21 (AP).—The government tonight faced new obstacles in its effort to crush "occupation" strikes. Despite a union agreement to evacuate 65 factories in the Vosges region, some mills were still occupied as strike settlement negotiations were begun.

important speech by the Republican candidate. On the day before Landon's acceptance speech, the President issued an executive order placing under civil service nearly all of the postmasters not already under its provisions. This move was advocated in one of the planks in Landon's personal platform.

In his speech at Minneapolis Thursday night, Landon is expected to attack the reciprocal trade agreements made by the Roosevelt Administration. He will be speaking in an area where these agreements are not popular. He is expected to call attention of large imports of farm products competing with the products of American farmers.

Incidentally, there has been parading the streets of Topeka for the last week a truck built like a circus wagon with a glass front, behind which are exhibits of canned and cured meats, grain and other foodstuff imported from Canada, South America, Europe and the Orient. The truck is being sent around the country by the Republican organization as a graphic argument against the Roosevelt farm policy.

Landon appeared in good spirits today as he greeted correspondents in his office and discussed his forthcoming speech with them. He had changed his gray suit for a dark coat and light trousers and smiled when someone remarked that he was "all spruced up." Topeka weather, by the way, has become scorchingly hot again.

The Governor, commenting upon the public indorsement of his candidacy made by Felix M. Warburg, prominent New York Jew, said:

"It is heartening to have the support of such a fine American as Mr. Warburg."

Landon declined to comment upon the current controversy between President Roosevelt and William Randolph Hearst in which the latter is accusing the President of having the backing of interests connected with the Communist movement.

At the last minute the Governor canceled plans for a fishing trip in northern Wisconsin following his Minneapolis speech and decided to make a campaign tour, including a number of rear platform speeches, through that State Friday. Although the schedule has not been completed, it was probable that he will spend Friday night in Oshkosh. On the following day he will make more rear platform talks on his way to Milwaukee, where he is expected to talk on social security Saturday night.

He will leave immediately after his Milwaukee speech for the farm of former Gov. Frank O. Landon at Sinissippi, Ill. On Monday he will start back to Topeka, with another series of short talks scheduled.

Fatal Dynamite Blast in Havana Laid to Radicals

By the Associated Press.

Havana, Sept. 21.—A Cuban colored man, responsible sources said tonight, confessed his own participation and named a group of Spaniards in Havana as the "intellectual authors" of the dynamiting of the newspaper El Pais in which four persons were killed Sunday.

He was reported to have made the statement after almost 24 hours of continuous questioning by police. A white man—another Cuban—was questioned along wtih the colored man, but refused to admit any part in the dynamiting.

Another development which brought the Spanish radical theory to the fore was an informal statement by a police official in which the officer said that the investigation was "progressing" and that "we are making more arrests right along especially among Spanish Socialists."

The colored man was said to have related a complicated story of dealings between professional Cuban terrorists and Spanish radicals.

He said he knew a group of Spanish radicals in Havana had put aside $5,000 for the purchase of trucks and dynamite. Approximately $4,800 of the money was spent for that purpose.

The money, according to the colored man's statement, was paid by the Spaniards to the leader of a Cuban radical secret terrorist organization. He gave the leader's name—the name of a man with a long record of bombings charged against him but who has repeatedly evaded police traps.

The colored man said he was paid a small sum of cash by this man and ordered to drive the truck to El Pais and park it. He claimed the leader told him he would be killed if he failed to comply with orders.

Edward Acheson To Teach at G. W.

Edward Acheson, economist and for the last two years foreign correspondent for The Washington Post, has returned after six years of travel and study in Europe to join the faculty of George Washington University as a lecturer in economics.

A brother of Dean Acheson, Undersecretary of the Treasury during the early days of the New Deal, he is a graduate of Williams College, studied at the London School of Economics, and ish a specialist in the field of monetary theory.

Since 1929 he has been engaged in travel, research and writing abroad. He spent much of his time in Russia studying the ecenomic and monetary structure of the Soviet Union.

Among the eminent scholars under whom Acheson has worked are Prof. T. A. vonHayek, Prof. T. E. Gregory and Prof. Harold Laski. Laski has called him "one of the best of the younger American economists."

2 Held, 2 Released In Seizure of Arms

New Orleans, La., Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Two men were placed under bond and two were released as the Federal Government lodged charges of conspiracy to export arms for a Central American revolt today.

Willard Campbell, of Atlantic City, N. J., formerly of Miami, Fla., and Bjorne Olsen, New Orleans amusement machine operator, were held in $5,000 bail.

Thomas Murray, Atlantic City, and Alexander Ritchie, Brooklyn, N. Y., were released. All except Olsen were captured on a truck near Biloxi, Miss. Coast Guard officers found the truck contained 200 used army rifles and 21,500 rounds of ammunition.

Customs Supervisor Edward Gleason said Campbell and Olsen admitted they planned to ship the arms to Nicaragua or Honduras, and if a revolt had been successful, certain commercial concessions would have been granted. Olsen allegedly was contact man for the operations.

Autopsy Ordered In Woman's Death

An autopsy will be performed today by Coroner A. Magruder McDonald on the body of Mrs. Elizabeth Zegowitz, 63, 612 Q street northwest, who was found dead in her home yesterday.

Mrs. Zegowitz was found on the floor of the kitchen by her two sons, John and William. They told police three gas jets were open when they entered the room.

On complaint of her family that a suicide certificate should not be issued and that she had been suffering with heart trouble, Dr. McDonald decided on the autopsy to determine the cause of Mrs. Zegowitz's death.

Trapped for 2 Weeks, Vessel Conquers Floes

Moscow, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Russian icebreaker Rusanoff tonight broke free of the ice jam which held her prisoner for two weeks, and floated in open water.

Officials in Moscow were advised of the little vessel's successful fight against the floes by a radio message from the icebreaker Sadko which had gone to the Rusanoff's aid.

The Rusanoff was caught by shifting ice packs September 9. An expedition of Soviet citizens is on board the ship.

Doctors Deny Titulescu Deliberately Poisoned

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Sept. 21 (AP).—Doctors attending Nicholas Titulescu, former Rumanian foreign minister, issued a statement today designed to dispel rumors he has been poisoned deliberately.

The statement said the Rumanian was suffering acute anemia as het result of "a spontaneous malady" contracted late in July.

A third blood transfusion, the doctors said, was successful, although Titulescu still is in a "very serious condition."

Germany Issues Mobilization Instructions; Russia Massing Submarine Fleet in Pacific

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—Millions of Germans between the ages of 25 and 45 are carrying in their pockets a secret order telling them exactly when and where they must report in the event of war.

The order is causing admitted anxiety, especially among the older men, who themselves experienced the horrors of the World War. Outwardly they display enthusiasm, but in private conversations, their beliefs of then are quite different.

The order is a blue sheet of paper, eight by five inches, written crosswise on the face of it are the words:

"This order serves in lieu of a ticket on the railways to the point where the addressee must report."

Text of Order.

The text of the order follows:

"As soon as the mobilization order has been given, you must report on the —— day of mobilization by ——, o'clock in —— at the —— barracks, without awaiting a new order.

"The military papers must be brought along. The regulations on the reverse side of this order must be observed.

"Should a new order be handed to you this kriegsbeorderung (order to take part in war) becomes null and void, and must be destroyed by the addressee. As regards what is to be done in the event of your moving to some other defense district, see paragraph 3 on the reverse side."

Regulations Listed.

Page 2 contains the regulations and reads:

"1. This kriegsbeorderung is to be kept secret and in a safe place. When the defense passport has been handed you, add this document to it.

"2. The loss of this kreigsbeordung must be reported at once to the district defense command. Failure to do so will be punished.

"3. In case this kriegsbeorderung is marked 'immediate' it becomes void at once in case of removal to another district. In that case it must be returned to the office of issue when you report your change of residence.

"If it is marked for a particular day of mobilization, it retains its efficacy in the event of removal into another district until the new district command issues a new order. In that event the old order is to be handed back to the new command.

Liable to Punishment.

"4. Failure to live up to the terms of this Kriegsbeordeurung will be punished by martial law.

"5. The person thus summoned is subject to martial law from the first day of its becoming effective."

These regulations are followed by "remarks," which reads:

"Insofar as you possess them and they are still good for use in war, bring with you:

"Two undershirts, two drawers, three pairs of stockings, marching boots, a woolen cover; in winter especially an underjacket, ear protectors, gloves with fingers, pulse warmers.

"Moreover: Army kit, pup tent, military belt, bread bag, field bottle, cooking utensils, knife, fork and spoon.

"Insofar as these articles can be used they will be paid for in cash. In addition, containers for your own civilian clothes must be brought along."

Japanese Landing Party Prepares to Enter China

Tokio, Sept. 21 (AP).—Japanese naval officials tonight prepared to send a landing party into China to protect Japanese nationals and property.

In announcing the decision, the details of which were not disclosed, a navy office communique said:

"Anti-Japanese terrorism has extended across the whole Chinese continent and is becoming rampant."

The communique listed a long enumeration of killings and bombings, which it alleged were suffered by Japanese in China during the past year.

A spokesman, however, insisted "our demands to China are very moderate."

The landing party was decided upon at a conference presided over by Admiral Osami Nagano, minister of the navy. It was said the conferees decided the Nanking government had not proved itself able to prevent anti-Japanese incidents in China.

Secret Ships Reported Part of Defense From Attack by Japan.

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

Vladivostok, Russia, Sept. 21.—Russia is concentrating a new and secret submarine flotilla here, reliable sources disclosed today—to guard against the possibility of attack from Japan.

The submarines are the "mystery fleet" of the Pacific. They are unlisted in regular naval manuals. No prying eyes are permitted to fathom their design.

Soviet officials admit no specific number. Informed sources estimate that between 40 and 50 undersea craft are stationed here. Japanese sources state 80 are based within the Vladivostok area.

Easy to Conceal.

The submarines are new, small and easy to conceal, capable of quick maneuvers—this much is known, observers here say.

They are believed intended chiefly for defensive purposes because of their small size. They are subject to no restrictions or treaties, however, because the Soviets retained a free hand on construction in the Pacific.

Intended for the Pacific, informants related, they were manufactured in European Russia thousands of miles from this Asiatic port. Knocked down for delivery, they were transported 6,000 miles to secret shipyards here and assembled. New personnel is being trained constantly to handle the craft as their number increase.

Tonnage Limit Unknown.

What the eventual tonnage limit is intended to be is not known here—Soviet sources say only that their submarine fleet in both Pacific and the Baltic Sea has been increased 400 per cent the past few years.

Some observers profess the belief concentration of the subs, with a huge airforce in the Far East, means these two types of warcraft are intended to comprise the backbone of defenses in the Pacific.

The Soviets have no capital ships, cruisers or destroyers in the Pacific, it was stated. But an army estimated at 500,000 men is stationed in the Far Eastern territory to back up submarine and aerial defenses.

Final Fort Drive Near.

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

Toledo, Spain, Sept. 21.—Government military leaders tonight rested their men for a final assault to drive out or kill the besieged rebels who have held out in the ancient Alcazar during 62 days of shot, shell and dynamite.

Their forces wearied to the point of exhaustion by three days of incessant fighting, the government leaders at the last moment delayed their planned dawn attack today.

The government militiamen slept on floors exhausted—but there was no rest for the men, women and children still alive in the Alcazar.

There were 1,700 who first took refuge in the ancient fortress. How many still live after the bombardments and explosion of two tons of dynamite, no one professed to know.

The women and children, it was believed, were herded into the dank underground dungeons beneath the fortress' crumbling walls.

Only one thing appeared certain—the male defenders still alive within the citadel would die rather than surrender and be executed as the government assured them they would be.

Their machine guns hot from almost steady firing during the last three days, the garrison's defenders tonight were subjected to another artillery bombardment.

Case Is Up to Skipper.

By the Associated Press.

Whether Seaman Kenneth Fitch, of the destroyer Kane, is disciplined for erroneously—as the Navy Department contends — informing a relative he was wounded in the attempted bombing of the ship by an airplane is a matter for the skipper of his ship.

Navy Department spokesmen last night said the department took no action in such cases, the jurisdiction being entirely that of the ship commander. They said the commander of the Kane could invoke disciplinary measures ranging from withholding of shore leave to court-martial—but that he also need take no action at all.

The department officially denied a statement of Fitch in a letter to his mother in El Paso that a fragment of shrapnel struck him in the leg when an unidentified airplane off the Spanish coast last month sought to bomb the destroyer.

League to Meet.

The monthly meeting of the Democratic League of the District of Columbia will be held at the Hamilton Hotel at 8 p. m. today. Guest speakers will be Representative John T. Nichols, of Oklahoma, and Representative Frank Boykin, of Alabama. Mrs. Helen Rubichaux will be soloist, and Arthur Clarendon Smith, the president, will preside.

2 Agents Injured Chasing Suspect

Stephenville, Tex., Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Richard Harbin, of San Antonio, and D. E. Robertson, of Fort Worth, Federal narcotics agents, were injured today in a battle with a suspected narcotics runner. Harbin was shot in the left hand and left leg. Robertson suffered a fracture of the ankle when run over by the smuggler's automobile.

The suspect escaped after abandoning his automobile.

The gun fight occurred at a bridge here where Federal and local officers attempted to blockade the highway and trap the suspect. Two automobiles were driven onto the road, but the suspect's speeding car scraped between the machines.

Robertson, who was to jump onto the smuggler's car when it was stopped, was in the path of the machine when it shot out of the trap. The other officers opened fire on the suspect, and Harbin was shot in the answering fire.

Suspect Denies Selling Stolen Bonds for Ring

Man Seized by U. S. Agents After Theft of Over $2,000,000 Worth.

Arraigned in Federal Court in New York as a participant in the disposition of more than $2,000,000 in stolen securities, Pete Metropolis, whose arrest by G-men in Haverhill, Mass., was announced earlier in the day by the Department of Justice, pleaded not guilty late yesterday.

Bond for Metropolis, accused of being the seventeenth member of an alleged gang dealing in "hot" bonds to be brought to book, was fixed at $4,000. The specific charge against him was transporting stolen property from one State to another.

According to Federal authorities, the gang stole securities valued at $1,456,000 from the Bank of Manhattan Co. January 28, 1935, and others valued at $590,000 from the U. S. Trust Co. December 13, 1934.

The loot was disposed of, the investigators said, through the opening of "brokerage accounts" in Boston, New York and Washington.

When the bonds were examined in the technical laboratory of the Department of Justice, they were found to bear spurious serial numbers.

The examination further revealed the genuine numbers of the securities, which were determined to be part of the loot from the New York banks.

Pleas of guilty have already been entered by three members of the ring. They are serving long sentences for their part in disposing of the securities.

In addition to the numerous arrests, more than $1,000,000 in securities has been recovered.

Flood Curb Parley Opens Here Today

By the Associated Press.

The problem of floods and soil erosion, hitherto studied chiefly wtih relation to down river volumes of water, will be approached from another angle today with the opening of an up-stream engineering conference under auspices of the Department of Agriculture.

Engineers from throughout the Nation will contribute papers on the control of floods and erosion by regulating tributaries, small streams run off and infiltration.

Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the soil conservation service; Morris L. Cooke, administrator of the Rural Electrification arministration, and F. A. Silcox, chief of the forest service, organized the conference.

Dr. H. A. Morgan, vice chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, said in a statement that the fisherman had a stake in up-stream engineering and control of "little waters." Muddy streams, the result of erosion, are killing off fish, he said.

Churchill Joins Sister In U. S.; Keeps Silence

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—A transatlantic cross-word puzzle, involving Sarah Churchhill, daughter of the British statesman, and Vic Oliver, American comedian, brought her brother to American shores today on the liner Queen Mary.

But there the matter stood.

Whether Oliver and the daughter of Winston Churchill had a romantic relationship evoked only this comment from Randolph Churchill:

"I'm terribly sorry, but I am not going to give out an interview now. I may have something to say later."

Reich's Army to Start Largest Maneuvers

Fulda, Germany, Sept. 21 (AP).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler tonight surveyed the new German army he created.

The Reich's armed forces will participate in elaborate maneuvers for the next five days, covering virtually the entire province of Hesse. Two complete corps, containing about 100,000 men, comprise the contending "armies" under Generals Geyer and Dollmann.

The maneuvers are said by the German high military command to be the largest in 23 years.

Romeo's Tires Slashed.

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP).—After finding all tires of his car slashed beyond repair, O. A. Ranbeck has decided to be more choosey about his parking places on his next visit to Chicago. Police consoled him with this explanation: "It's undoubtedly a mistake. There's a lady living in this building who has had trouble with a former boy friend, who likes to cut the tires of her new admirers."

Policeman Shot In Row to Face Homicide Trial

Two Others Are Accused in New York; Fight Fatal to Cafe Owner.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 21.—A mounted patrolman lay wounded in a hospital bed tonight charged with homicide, aftermath of an early morning gun duel in the heart of Greenwich Village's "hot-spot" section.

The wounded officer was John B. Buckley, charged with killing Harold Sullivan, 42, owner of Sully's Show Boat, a cafe on Seventh avenue south, a block from the scene of the gunplay outside Hymie's Bar.

Police said Buckley was shot by another patrolman, Richard Mahar, 33, who was booked on a charge of felonious assault.

James Bell, another patrolman, said to have participated in the fracas, was suspended.

Police officials said an additional charge of felonious assault would be placed against Buckley for wounding another member of the party, Peter Dunn, 22.

Assistant Chief Inspector John A. Lyons said this was what he had been told happened:

Sullivan, the cafe owner; Mahar, Dunn and a man known only as "Chopsey" left the bar in front of which the shooting took place shortly after 4:30 a. m. and were accosted by Buckley, Bell and an unidentified man, the latter group asking Sullivan where they could find a drink.

Lyons said the man known as "Chopsey" advised Bell "to go up to Harlem" if he wanted a drink.

A fist fight between the two men then followed, it was reported, and the fighting became general. Some one drew a revolver. Buckley, according to the inspector, shot Sullivan and Dunn, the latter receiving a bullet in his right leg. Then Mahar allegedly shot Buckley once in the left shoulder and once in the left thigh.

Union Demands Close Schools

Jasper, Ala., Sept. 21 (AP).—More than 1,000 Walker County children remained away from classrooms today while school authorities studied demands of labor leaders that teachers be required to join the American Federation of Classroom Teachers.

Dr. J. A. Keller, State superintendent of education, discussed the movement with A. S. Scott, county superintendent.

Union sources said classrooms virtually were deserted at three schools at Parish today, adding nearly 1,000 to the ranks of children who remained away last week.

A union mass meeting has been called for Friday night, when the county board of education will be in session. Union sources claim 110 members out of 375 teachers in Walker schools.

Tin Magnate Leaves $1,500,000 to Charity

Attorneys estimated his estate amounted to $3,825,000.

Crawford instructed that "first consideration" be given in his charity bequest to employes of the tin plate company who have "suffered through illness or misfortune."

Berlin Urges Shavers To Save Cream Tubes

Berlin, Sept. 21 (AP).—Now is the time, the government says, for all good shavers to come to the aid of the foreign exchange.

The purchaser of toothpaste or shaving cream in Germany today, finds the tube wrapped with a note which says:

"Please don't throw away this tube when you've opened it.

"For it is made of metal that we need most urgently and that, in part, we must import from abroad.

"Preserve this tube, which is worthless to you, for your old metal picker. He will bring it to the metal utilization center. You will help save the foreign exchange."

who are members of the Sons of Union Veterans appeared in the lobby in midafternoon with a set of bones, cello, mandolin and guitar and in no time had half the entire crowd of 500 stamping and singing to "Turkey in the Straw," "Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!" and "Marching Through Georgia."

More Pep Than Rest.

The urge to "hay-foot, straw-foot" got the best of some of the veterans and they set about a lively round dance, ably assisted by some of the elderly ladies. Martin Warner, of Grand Rapids, his old blue coat encrusted with medals, had more pep than the rest and outlasted them, winding up his performance with a tap dance, which drew rounds of applause from delegates and highly amused hotel guests.

"Col." Roberts told a tale to Mary Logan Tucker about her father which she had never heard before. He recounted how Logan used to ride along urging his men on with "Give 'em hell, boys! Give 'em hell, boys!" With the general rode the battalion chaplain. The churchman, Roberts said, was always shocked at Logan's profanity, but once in the heat of a charge he called out, "Do as your general tells you, boys; do as the general says!"

Roberts is an undertaker and still practices his profession in Murphysboro, Ill. He heard Lincoln and Douglas debate at Jonesboro and the town was so strongly Democratic that Lincoln didn't dare tell his point, but contented himself with telling jokes, he said. Roberts fought three and a half years, was in 18 major battles and never received a scratch. He nursed yellow fever and smallpox victims in the South and was unscathed by disease.

He had not seen Mrs. Tucker since 1870, when he was a young man of 26 and she was a girl of 16. "I thought right much of your looks then," he told her yesterday with a laugh, "and I still do. I always thought I should have grabbed you at the time."

Women's Unit Dedicates Elm To G.A.R. Chief

Oley Nelson Accepts Tree in Potomac Park Near Lincoln Memorial.

In the shadow of the shrine of the man he served, Oley Nelson, commander of the G. A. R., yesterday afternoon accepted an American elm tree in Potomac Park, near the Lincoln Memorial, dedicated to him by the Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the G. A. R.

Pointing his hand at the massive white marble monument, Nelson said he was just as proud of the tree bearing his name as he would be of a mausoleum, because the tree was a living thing which would grow on through the years, giving shade, beauty and rest to mankind.

It was one of four elms dedicated at the ceremony by the auxiliary. One was marked for Mrs. Mary Love, president of the organization, and the other two for presidents now dead, Abbie Lynch and Sarah E. Fuller.

Earlier in the day the Women's Relief Corps journeyed to Soldiers' Home for an impressive ceremony at which was dedicated a bronze tablet bearing the famed order of Gen. John A. Logan which created Memorial Day. This order which made of May 30 a national holiday was compared in importance with Lincoln's Gettysburg address by speakers. The tablet was accepted by Col. John Harris for the Army.

Only one other women's organization met yesterday, the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic. After committee meetings in the morning, this group met at Hotel Washington for an executive business session.

Daughters of the Union Veterans of the Civil War banqueted last night and will open their first business session today. The auxiliary to Sons of the Union Veterans of the Civil War joined with the Sons in presenting a memorial bench to the public library, Georgetown branch.

Farm Boy Kills Father; Is Exonerated by Jury

Reidsville, N. C., Sept. 21 (AP).—A 17-year-old farm boy, Ray Madrine, shot and killed his father, W. M. Madrine, 50, with a shotgun yesterday.

A few hours later a coroner's jury returned a verdict of "justifiable homicide," and freed the boy, who said his father threatened his life.

Other witnesses asserted the elder Madrine had often abused his son.

British Fascist Jailed.

London, Sept. 21 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Arnold Leese, publisher of The Fascist, organ of the Imperial Fascist League, today was sentenced to six months in prison for publishing in the July 4 issue of the weekly that Jews practice ritual murder. The publication's printer, Walter Headhead, was fined $100 on the same charge.

Jesse Jones Unable To Talk to Bankers

San Francisco, Sept. 21 (AP).—Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, telegraphed here today in response to an inquiry that, although his health has greatly improved, he still felt unequal to the task of addressing the American Bankers Association convention here.

Jones en route to Washington, filed the telegram from Sparks, Nev., to the Associated Press.

"After a quiet rest in California of several weeks, my health is greatly improved," the R. F. C. head said, "but I concluded that to address the convention, and personally greet so many friends, would be taxing my strength too much and that prudence prompted my avoiding this.

"I asked President Robert V. Fleming (of the American Bankers Association) to express my regrets to the convention and am returning to Washington."

Argentine Women Plan Conference for Peace

Buenos Aires, Sept. 19 (AP).—Thirty-five Argentine women's organizations completed plans today for a peace conference here November 6-8, intended to arouse interest in the inter-American peace conference the following month.

With racial, religious and political issues barred, the five-point program for the national conference will be, the danger of war in the world; economic factors of war in America; women in wartime; education and war; organization of women in anti-war societies.

Hull Denies Knowledge Of Italian Debt Funding

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Hull said yesterday he had no information concerning reports that Italy might soon seek to refund its war debt to the United States with a view to obtaining new loans in this country. He declined to make any comment.

Subpena Is Sought In Seattle Strike

Seattle, Sept. 21 (AP).—Hearst interests today demanded a subpena for Dave Beck, Pacific Coast representative for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, in an effort to prove he furnished some of the pickets whose blockade closed the Post-Intelligencer here August 13.

Edwin S. Smith, National Labor Board member conducting a hearing into the American Newspaper Guild's complaint against the P-I, deferred action on the subpena.

Edward G. Woods, of Chicago, heading Hearst counsel, demanded Beck be summoned as a witness after Smith sustained objections to Woods' three offers to prove through cross-examining Frank M. Lynch, discharged photographer and Guild member, that Lynch asked aid from Beck and was given it.

Beck has filed a $250,000 libel suit against the Seattle Times for an editorial seeking to connect him with the newsroom strike and the indefinite suspension of Post-Intelligencer publication.

D. of A. Orchestra Set For Request Concert

In response to many requests, the Department of Agriculture Orchestra, directed by Dr. Walter Bauer, will give a concert tomorrow night in the South Building, Fourteenth street and Independence avenue, repeating the program presented September 15.

The all-Russian program will consist of Borodin's second symphony in B minor, the "Andante Cantabile" from Chaikovski's string quartet in D, Rimski-Korsakov's "Legend of Tsar Saltan," Musorgski's "A Night on Bald Mountain" and "Gopak," and Lyadov's "Music Box."

Last Rites Are Held For Ensign C. W. Coit

Funeral services for Ensign Charles W. Coit, United States Naval Reserve, who died at Pensacola, Fla., Thursday, following a fall from a horse, were held yesterday afternoon in Arlington Cemetery. Chaplain Alfred D. Vogler officiated.

The following were honorary pallbearers: Lieut. Comdr. E. W. Rounds, Lieut. M. Johnson, Lieut. T. Dalton, Lieut. H. J. Henster, Lieut. J. E. Sullivan and Lieut. H. A. Lamar.

D.C. Attorney Is Reindicted In 2 Robberies

Tomlinson Is Cited Again After He Objects on Name Technicality.

Alleged to have led a group of colored men in two robberies which netted loot of approximately $3,800, J. William Tomlinson, Washington attorney, was reindicted by the grand jury yesterday. Tomlinson had filed a technical objection to two prior indictments because he was called "John William Tomlinson." He claimed, through the law firm of O'Shea, Burnett & Goldstein, that he was never known by that name; that the "John" part was purely a guess, since he had never had anything but the initial.

The Government thereupon sought reindictments, charging the same offenses in each. In one, Tomlinson was charged with robbery, along with Philip John Pratt and Walter Smallwood. The case involved the theft of about $3,000 from the Fairfax Farms Dairy March 14. The other indictment charged Tomlinson, Pratt and Charles Henry Bass with robbing Sam Siratonis, proprietor of a tailor shop at 3003 Fourteenth street northwest, last August. The tailor was robbed of $765 after being severely beaten.

In both cases Tomlinson's alleged accomplices were colored men. They were arrested first and on their statements, police said, the lawyer was seized.

Others indicted yesterday were Joseph L. Carlill, housework; Paul F. Brewington, false pretenses; Raymond Donlsdson, bigamy; Edgar Mooney and Otis Peak, assault with intent to commit robbery; Howard M. Price, Bruce C. Lawrence, Fred Albert White, Lawrence Taverner, robbery; W. W. Groves, W. Boone Groves, James R. Blair, L. Douglas Rice, Robert S. Judge and J. C. Boyer, contempt of the United States Senate; Richard T. Little, grand larceny; Peter J. Williams, Simon Lutsky, Henry J. Montgomery, Samuel Reynolds, George Wester, Clarence Brooker and Prince E. Foster, joy-riding; Henry Flowden, Bennie Foster, John T. Rose, Julius Williams and Howard E. Sheppard, housebreaking and larceny.

Ernest Jones, Thomas F. Day, Claude Johnson, assault with a dangerous weapon; Howard Earl Gibson and Lotie J. Newton, forgery and uttering; John W. Hamilton, manslaughter; John W. Hamilton, violation of the national motor vehicle theft act, and Edward Lee Newsom, manslaughter.

Those against whom the grand jury ignored charges were Charles C. Summers, false pretenses; George W. Miller, violation of the Mann act; Samuel Green, grand larceny; Edward Gravette, Cordell A. Johnson and Nettie B. Frye, joy-riding; Joseph H. Reid, William Nelson and Joseph F. Branscill, robbery; Thomas E. Hatton and Evelyn A. Williams, assault with a dangerous weapon.

'Loneliest Boy' Freed From Jail To Begin a New Lease on Life

Tommy Soward Rescued by Rehabilitation Bureau's Director.

He had been called the "loneliest boy in the world."

But yesterday, as he strode from the prisoners' dock in Police Court, the title was changed to "happiest boy."

Tommy Soward, 17, tall and blue-eyed, was starting a new life—with friends and new hopes.

A few days ago in Nashville, Tenn., he was arrested. He had violated the curfew law, requiring minors to be indoors by 10 p. m., authorities said.

Then he came to Washington. He hadn't been here long when the law again stepped in and accused him of being a vagrant. And Police Court Judge Robert Mattingly had no other course than to send him to the workhouse at Occoquan, Va., for six months.

The youngster's plight was reported to Joseph E. Dayton, director of the Bureau of Rehabilitation. He interceded, and yesterday Tommy was recalled before Judge Mattingly. The judge released him to Dayton, remarking:

"You will not have to roam around the world any more. You are going to be given a chance."

Tommy grinned. Those were the first words of encouragement he had heard in many months. Some new clothes even made the grin broader.

In Dayton's office, Tommy admitted he had been "pretty lonely" during his ramblings around the country. He said he never associated with the men he had met "on the bum."

"They didn't appeal to me as friends," he said.

Tommy wants to be a barber. He wants to study the trade and settle down in Washington. Dayton said he would get that chance.

"But first," said the rehabilitation chief, "we must find him a job. He wants something to do while he is learning. I am depending a lot on this youngster—I think he has the makings of something."

Saul Is Named Red Cross Aid In City's Drive

John Saul, president of the B. F. Saul Real Estate Co., yesterday was named chairman of Red Cross solicitation in local business circles.

The appointment was made by Lloyd B. Wilson, president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., chairman of the campaign which starts Sunday and lasts until October 1st.

Saul, past president of the Washington Board of Trade, long has been associated with civic and philanthropic activities in the District.

In order to cover local business circles, Saul has divided his group into three divisions, with Robert J. Cottrell, executive secretary of the Washington Board of Trade, heading Division A; James E. Colliflower, of the Colliflower Coal Co., Division B, and Preston W. Perkinson, classified advertising manager, Washington Times-Hraid, Division C. In turn, these three divisions have been divided into 27 sections with a section chairman in charge of each. They are:

Division A—Herbert Gill, J. Hawley Smith, W. Gwynn Gardiner, Earl Ready, Thornton W. Owen, Diller B. Groff, James B. Edmunds, Loran L. Chaster and William H. Press.

Division B—Archie Shipe, Charles W. Pimper, Henry W. Owens, Elmore T. Burdette, John F. Schleiterbeck, Ford E. Young, Francis X. Callahan and Frank Bell.

Division C—Francis Kane, Harry Merrick, John M. Beane, L. Ray Yorpe, Fenton H. Schlosser, Robert C. Varela, Edward E. Swan and Karl Jarrett.

Charles H. Doing, jr., president of the West End Branch, Washington Loan & Trust Co., was named treasurer of the roll call campaign. His appointment was made by Wilson, who announced at the same time that H. S. Pitz, of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., and Mrs. Margaret E. Robbins, assistant treasurer of the District Chapter, would assist in auditing and financial activities.

Smith to Speak ToIndependent Women Oct. 1

Former Governor Makes First Campaign Talk at New York Rally.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 21.—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will address a mass meeting at Carnegie Hall, October 1, under auspices of the Independent Coalition of American Women, which is working to defeat the New Deal.

It will be Smith's first speech in the campaign, the coalition office announced today.

The former Governor is speaking at the invitation of Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith, of Des Moines, Iowa, national chairman of the organization.

The coalition, its headquarters said, is made up of Democratic and independent women voters and Republicans not affiliated with any political organization, and is pledged to support Alf M. Landon for President.

Members of the coalition from 22 States will be present, headquarters said.

Pope Elevates Father Burke, Paulist Pastor

Cleric First Member of U.S. Religious Order to Win Domestic Title.

For the first time in Catholic Church history, an American priest of a religious order—Father John J. Burke, C. S. P. T.—was made domestic prelate by the Pope yesterday.

Father Burke was invested by the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic delegate, in a ceremony at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University.

The Apostolic Delegate, clad in cardinal red vestments, read the investiture first in Latin, then in English. In a sermon, the Most Rev. Edward Mooney, bishop of Rochester, N. Y., praised the work of Mgr. Burke. Benediction by the Most Rev. Cicognani completed the service.

Delegates representing nearly every religious order in this country, including many members of the hierarchy were present at the ceremony.

Mgr. Burke has been general secretary of the National Welfare Conference for 19 years. He was the first to hold that office and has been reappointed every year. He is a member of the Paulist Fathers.

Heretofore, church officials said, secular priests not connected with any religious order have been appointed domestic prelates.

The Bishops present included Archbishop Mooney, Bishop John B. Peterson, of Manchester, N. H.; Bishop John F. Noll, of Fort Wayne, Bishop Emmet M. Walsh, of Charleston, S. C., Bishop Francis P. Keough, of Providence and Bishpp John A. Duffy, of Syracuse.

Wire Shock Fatal To Virginia Boy, 11

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 21.—Robert Funkhauser, 11-year-old pupil of the Hamburg, Va., graded school, died here tonight in Rockingham Memorial Hospital from burns suffered earlier today when he touched high tension wires while attempting to climb a telegraph pole. The boy was on the way home from school with several classmates, near his home in Hamburg.

Robert, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Funkhauser, of Hamburg, was severely burned on the arms and head as he was caught between the two lowest wires.

Paul Stane, linesman of the Virginia Public Service System, working nearby, heard the cries of the children and took young Funkhauser in his car to Woodstock, where he was transferred to an ambulance and brought to the hospital here. He died less than three hours later.

Maj. Joseph H. Hickey Is Buried in Arlington

Mass for the late Maj. Joseph H. Hickey, United States Army, retired, who died at Walter Reed Hospital last Friday, was buried yesterday morning in Arlington Cemetery, with Chaplain Walter H. Paschal officiating. Burial was with full military honors.

The following officers were honorary pallbearers: Col. Henry S. Coburn, jr., Lieut. Col. William W. Vaughan, Maj. William W. McCaw, Maj. Daniel C. Campbell and Capt. Allan B. Ramsay.

Crash Kills, Mother, Child.

Rock Hill, S. C., Sept. 21 (AP).—Mrs. Anna Jane Mayben, of Lowrysville, and her 5-year-old daughter, Bertie, were killed here today in an automobile accident that sent M. C. Bagley, the driver, to the hospital in a semi-conscious condition. Physicians said he was expected to recover. The car skidded and crashed into a telephone pole.

Fight to Retain Liberty, Peace Urged by Baker

War-Time Cabinet Member Tells Legionnaires They Are 'Hope of America.'

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 21.—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War under President Wilson, summoned the American Legion tonight to a peace-time battle for the maintenance of democracy, liberty and peace in a "world of strange philosophies" and "political heresy."

Baker hailed thousands of legionnaires gathered from all States and many countries as "the hope of America."

"The situation in the world at large," he said, "is one that may fill the stoutest heart with concern. There have grown up in the world strange philosophies, different from any we have seen, and they are mastering the minds and hearts of many men."

The legionnaires, garbed in colorful uniforms for their eighteenth annual convention, listened silently as the war-time Secretary spoke, then broke out in sustained applause as he concluded.

National Commander Ray Murphy already had told them "America cannot disarm in the light of existing conditions."

"Today," Murphy said, "we look upon a world of men and of nations gone mad."

Baker said "there is scarcely a nation on the face of the earth at this hour that is not fearful of renewal of conflict."

"If the American Legion has one mission above another," he said, "it is to see that the principle of liberty, of individual liberty, is not surrendered in deference to any political heresy.

"It is possible to find at least a half-dozen countries armed to the teeth which have embraced the philosophy that it is permissible for them to exhaust resources of science and united action for economic purposes.

"The inescapable consequence of the adoption of that philosophy is that the people surrender the principles of liberty and submit themselves to dictatorship."

Roosevelt Initials 103 PWA Projects

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Ickes yesterday announced President Roosevelt's approval of 103 Public Works Projects involving Federal grants of $9,531,459 and loans of $264,500.

Projects approved comprised the second batch of allocations from the $300,000,000 set aside from the revolving fund by Congress during the last session.

The total cost of the 103 projects, including the 45 per cent Federal grants, was estimated at $21,733,568.

Projects approved yesterday brought to 494 the total approved so far this month, with the whole cost estimated at $85,670,560, including Federal grants of $29,546,065.

WE GROW HAIR

THE above pictures of Thomas client Leo Stock show how Thomas re-grows hair even in extremely serious cases of baldness. This is an "alopecia areata" case and is considered unusually baffling by most authorities. The Thomas' have hundreds of such cases each year and have consistently, without a single failure, re-grown hair.

Loss of hair due to dandruff may make you just as bald as loss of hair from alopecia areata, or from any of the other 14 local scalp ills. Regardless as to the cause of your hair-loss, you must have highly specialized knowledge and treatment applied if you are to expect satisfactory results. The Thomas know how to treat effectively all of the 14 local causes of baldness. They know how to end dandruff, how to stop falling hair, and how to promote hair growth on this and bald spots.

Avail yourself of this extensive knowledge of hair and scalp science by consulting a Thomas specialist today. Without charge or obligation he'll gladly examine your scalp and advise you. You are always welcome.

Network of 400 Police Radios Will Be Sought

Association Officials See Hookup Necessary in War on Crime.

By the Associated Press.

Davenport, Iowa, Sept. 21.—Formation of a widespread network linking 400 police radio stations was described today by an official of the Associated Police Communications officers as the next probable national offensive in the war against crime.

C. J. Stanley, vice president of the association and chief communications officer of the Davenport department, said organization of the network would be undertaken at a convention here October 5, 6 and 7, bringing together police radio operators, engineers and executives.

The nucleus of the network—six Midwestern stations—is operating experimetnally on frequencies allocated September 15 by the Federal Communications Commission, Stanley said, and other police stations may join as soon as they have established facilities.

Fifty-one cities, he added, have already applied for network positions.

"Radio telephone over long distances," Stanley declared, "while practical in many instances, is extremely inaccurate for detailed police work. Under bad atmospheric conditions, too many words sound alike, and in daylight hours radio telephone is greatly diminished in carrying power."

The basic network, he said, will include "zone stations," preferably large State-operated police transmitters of high power. These will broadcast in telegraphic code, and, possibly, in a national secret police code.

Each zone station will relay information to all other zone stations, and from these it will reach the interested police departments.

"St. Louis, Indianapolis, Detroit, Kansas City, Minneapolis and Davenport are now a part of the first network authorized to operate experimentally," he said. "Those first four cities have been in communication since January.

"Recently a man was arrested in Indianapolis for vagrancy. Detectives had an idea he might be wanted in St. Louis. They radio-telegraphed St. Louis a few minutes after his arrest, and within two hours St. Louis detectives were on their way to Indianapolis to return the man to Missouri. He was wanted there for the holdup of a St. Louis filling station, and the radio description identified him."

Women Object At Franco Sale; 3 Are Arrested

paraded without a permit. They posted $25 bail each.

As these "defenders" were taken away in a patrol wagon, other loyalist sympathizers in the crowd were vehement in their protests. "This has only begun! We'll have it out inside!" cried a short, slim woman with dark hair and flashing eyes, as she fled from reporters and photographers.

Inside, the atmosphere was equally tense. The sale scarcely had begun when a tall, brown-clad young man, who later gave his name as Irwin Elber, of 231 First street northeast, arose and demanded in a booming voice, "Mr. Auctioneer, what we want to know is where Maj. Franco's money realized on this sale will go?"

"Have you spent any money yet?" Benjamin Bell, the auctioneer, came back at him.

"No, but——"

"Then sit down and keep quiet," advised Bell.

"I protest the use of American money to aid the rebel Fascists who are murdering women and children!" he shouted.

Despite the auctioneer's repeated commands of "shut up or clear out," the youth in brown continued his tirade against the sale, against the publicity it was causing, against the Fascist cause. Finally, he wheeled around, faced the crowd and shouted above the din: "I am going to walk out of this room, and I ask every believer in democracy to walk out with me!"

"We ought to all walk out!" yelled a woman who identified herself as Diana Scott. Moving up nearer the front, standing in the aisle through which Elber had just threaded his way, she continued, "Are Franco's effects duty free? Will his money go out of our country to the Spanish Fascists? Our American money—"

Her voice was drowned out by protests of men and women weary of the verbal combat, and by the auctioneer who announced in no uncertain terms, "The sale will proceed!"

Loyalist and rebel causes were for the time forgotten. Spectators whose eyes had bulged at demonstrations of loyalist sympathizers now gasped at the unbelievable bargains to be had at the sale. Whether Maj. Franco was to send the money realized from his effects to aid the Fascist faction in Spain or whether he was to keep it to take himself and his family back to Spain, apparently was of no concern to those who had come to buy sterling silver tea sets, cloisonne vase lamps, mahogany drop-leaf tables, Sheraton sideboards and fine Oriental rugs.

Canadian Catholics List Banned Music

Ottawa, Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was banned in Canadian Catholic churches by a pastoral letter read here by Archbishop Forbes.

Father L. Beaudoin, secretary to the archbishop, said today the reason for the pastoral letter delivered on Sunday, was the desire of the church for the exclusive use of the Gregorian chant and Gregorian music.

"Ave Maria" by Gounod, Mascagni, Massenet, Schubert, Rosewig or Lambilotte were on the banned list, as well as "O Promise Me."

Also banned were "O Canada," Canada's national anthem, and "God Save the King," anthem of the British Empire.

Other music placed under the ban included:

"O Holy Night" of Adam; "Nazareth" by Gounod; "Hosanna" by Granier; "the Palms" by Faure; "All Praise to St. Patrick;" Schubert's "Farewell;" Mendelssohn's wedding march from "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Buys 1,248 Snakes.

Delaware, Ohio, Sept. 21 (AP).—Cut prices brought a decline in business, but no protest from Herbert E. Manville, who had offered 5 and 10 cents each, depending on size, for snakes slain along the Olentang River. Manville said he paid for 1,248 snakes, then cut the bounties to 1 and 5 cents. And he buried every snake brought in, to prevent double payment.

5 Rush to Aid Howard; Transfusion Planned

Crownpoint, N. Mex., Sept. 21.—Five former associates of Benny Howard raced to his bedside today as doctors at the Indian Service Hospital here prepared to give a blood transfusion to the seriously injured speed and transport pilot.

Damon Howard reported his brother again was in an extremely serious condition from a crushed lung and reaction to amputation of his right foot, but that attending physicians had not given up hope for his life.

Ben Howard was injured in the crash of his Bendix Air Race plane September 4.

Road Survey Planned.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21 (AP).—Highway Commissioner H. G. Shirley today told a delegation from Staunton and Augusta County that the State highway department would make a survey of Route 250 with a view to modernization of the link between Staunton and the West Virginia line.

A Welcome And A Boon.

It has been pointed out that the average age of the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic, assembled her for their seventieth annual encampment, is 92 years. This is better than half the span of the country's independence. It need scarcely be emphasized that during their lives they have seen many changes.

The Washington they behold today resembles only faintly the city down whose same Pennsylvania avenue they marched in the grand review of 1865. The Capitol then had no dome and still reeked of the medicaments used in treating the wounded housed there—not of antiseptic, for this was then only a laboratory phenomenon. At that time, the Washington Monument was a half-finished stump, a mere 126 feet high. Where the Supreme Court now stands, a brick building was to be seen; erected as a temporary Capitol after the sack by the British in 1814, it had been used in those days as a military prison. Virtually the only familiar landmark still standing along the course of the parade is the Treasury.

Vastly greater changes have occurred throughout the Nation since 1865. The continent is now open from coast to coast and border to border. Science and invention have speeded up the whole tempo of life to a pitch almost reminiscent of the strain of civil war. In company with the rest of the world, now shrunken so that repercussions strike far more heavily from country to country, the United States today struggles for breath after its headlong rush into the future. The landscape reels, minds are fogged, nerves cry for a moment's peace.

Washington welcomes the G. A. R. with a welcome far deeper than it offers any other convention. As the Nation's most venerable gentlemen, the Capital is theirs and any assistance they may require is to be had for the asking. In return, may we derive a measure of their experience, their wisdom, their perspective—it is this last, especially, that our generation finds difficult to acquire in the hectic round of life in 1936.

The Totalitarian War.

There was a time when war was a man's game. But now, in one nation after another, the bars are being let down. The very young are being called upon to fill the ranks of armies steadily growing larger; nor are the women being ignored as potential cannon fodder.

In the Spanish civil war women, almost as a matter of course, have taken their places beside husbands, fathers and sweethearts under the black banner of reaction or the red banner of revolution.

In Russia the age of conscription has been lowered to 19 years so as to increase the Red army from 1,300,000 to 1,600,000. And there is the vast reserve of the Komsomols—the League of Communist Youth, consisting of both girls and boys in their teens—to draw upon for further recruits.

In Germany the government has lately increased the period of conscription from one year to two so that its army will soon number 800,000, aside from the millions in the militarized labor camps and the millions more in the Hitler Jugend.

In Italy, in addition to the regular army and the Fascist militia, there is the Balilla in which adolescent youths are given the rudiments of military training. And even children of more tender years have been sucked into the voracious maws of war preparation. They are now organized as Sons of the She Wolf.

Steadily Europe forms its ranks and marches into the maelstrom. In the next war, it is clear, there will be no exempt classes, no noncombatants, except those unable to bear arms; and these will have to be very young indeed, or too feeble and infirm to serve behind the lines. Everybody will be part of the fighting machine. Far more than during 1914-1918 the impact of war will be felt by all.

The bombs that will be hurled down on munitions factories, power plants, fuel depots, food storehouses, will not discriminate between soldiers and civilians. The poison gas that will be let loose against the enemy populations will not seek out only those in uniform. Neither women nor children will be spared. Already governments have begun to experiment with gas masks for perambulators.

The next war would be, as the Nazis have already begun to call it, a totalitarian war, the true product of the totalitarian state. Schrecklichkeit will be no passing occurrence but the order of the day; brutality will be elevated, as it already is being elevated in some countries, into a solemn patriotic duty. Thus, after centuries of civilization, the world prepares for a self-extinction with implications from which none can feel immune.

Men Of Little Faith.

In a speech obviously inspired by the fact that, a few days earlier, Chancellor Hitler had launched a crusade against communism, Premier Blum on Sunday took up the cudgels for democracy.

Where the Fuehrer had thundered and fulminated, the leader of the French democracy spoke quietly, with the confidence of a man who knows he can make his point without screaming and the assurance of one who knows that the outlook for his cause is bright from any long-range viewpoint.

France, he said, is prepared to live and let live. "She will undertake no doctrinal crusade, even for ideas she believes true and just against systems she believes false and evil." She will go her own democratic way, sure of her own strength and brooking no interference with her liberty of choice and no dictation from the outside. If there is in France a constant clash of ideas and programs and interests, that is not a sign of weakness but of health. It is out of such clashes that progress is made possible.

At a time when many let themselves be deluded into believing that every democratic nation is now endangered by the alternatives of fascism or communism, M. Blum brought out the fact that needs stressing: that democracy is in fundamental opposition both to fascism and communism.

In those countries where it has long been established, in Great Britain, for instance, or France, in the Scandinavian countries, in the Netherlands and Belgium, democracy is no feeble plant likely to be blown over by a blast from Moscow or Rome or Berlin. On the contrary, democracy is in those nations a sturdy and flourishing tree that is always digging new roots into the friendly soil, steadily developing and producing new branches and new fruit; a tree that because it is alive grows constantly but always retains its essential form.

What about America? Must the American people, too, make a choice between communism and fascism? Is this Nation really facing the danger of democracy's overthrow? More than one panicky individual has replied to these questions in the affirmative. Their alarm has undoubtedly grown as a result of the spectacle presented by Spain, where liberalism is now actually being ground between the upper and nether millstones. But do they really think so ill of America as to believe that it has no more social strength than Spain?

The struggle taking place on the Iberian Peninsula has, of course, tended to spill over the borders of that nation. Its repercussions have been felt in France. This week they spread to Cuba, where the bombing of a newspaper favorable both to Col. Batista, the man behind the throne, and to the Spanish rebels, was directly attributed to the division of opinion among Cubans regarding the situation in the mother country. And undoubtedly the Spanish crisis has provided the essential setting without which Hitler would not have had the opportunity to cloak purely nationalist ends in the mantle of a crusade.

In this country Mr. William Randolph Hearst, among others, with great vehemence professes to see the establishment of a Popular Front similar to that which obtains at Madrid. With a curious lack of faith in democracy he reaches the conclusion that a Popular Front is already in existence and shaping up as the weapon of revolution.

Mr. Hearst is as entitled to his fears as to his opinions. But the very fact that he can write as he does about the head of our government is sufficient evidence that Washington is not yet Moscow—or for that matter, Berlin or Rome.

That struggle which the Spanish civil war has caused to flame into life in so many places throughout the world has no basic reality within our borders. The overwhelming majority of Americans will now, as heretofore, continue to have an abiding faith in the strength of the democratic tradition in this land of ours. They will not easily be persuaded that our basic institutions are so infirm and decrepit that a paper blast from Moscow will cause them to crumble. They are not men of little faith.

Wells And The Future.

On his seventieth birthday, this week, H. G. Wells wrote his own obituary, predicting his death 27 years hence. While hoping this proves a modest expectation it is interesting to compare this document with a similar one written by Lawrence of Arabia. The Wellsian anticipation is lustier and obviously done in a jocose vein. That of Lawrence seems to have been written, as he himself once expressed it, with "pretensions toward design."

Though Lawrence mourned, "My peace must be mixed with effort, damn," he was essentially a man of action and his philosophy was rooted in personal experience. Wells' battles have mostly been intangible ones. He is a creator of castles in the air, a builder of word-utopias, and a designer of living for the future.

The self-styled epitaphs of the two men bear this out. Lawrence began his by saying, "Yes, I have run short of money." Wells does not touch on his present affluence but looks to a time when "his immediate needs" will be "relieved by a small civil list pension in 1955." A good deal of Lawrence's bitterness was due to his eyes being focused on the past. That the older Englishman is more adaptable was clearly demonstrated when he turned from outlines of history to the papier-mache closeups of the screen.

Perhaps the greatest difference in viewpoint, as exemplified in their pre-dated obituaries, is that Wells, at 70, has no intention of laying down his tools for another 27 years. While Lawrence, when he was still a comparatively young man, was always vehement in his contention that: "It's stopping short that needs skillfulness."

The Crop-Insurance Rabbit.

Governmental crop insurance is a highly technical issue. But, like any other form of insurance, it can be determined in advance whether or not the device is likely to prove sound from an actuarial viewpoint.

The fact that it has been investigated by commercial insurance companies, and that attempts to make it operative have proved abortive in the past, is not conclusive evidence of impracticability. In the first place, as the result of AAA contracts the Department of Agriculture now has much more knowledge of "crop expectancy" than has heretofore been available, at least with regard to wheat and cotton. In the second place, crop insurance like social insurance, might be deemed desirable as a governmental undertaking even if it were not entirely self-liquidating.

Consequently the research which the Department of Agriculture has been doing on this subject, under the general direction of Secretary Wallace, is wholly desirable. The properly nonpolitical character of the problem is further attested by the reference which Gov. Landon will make to it in his speech at Des Moines tonight. Following President Roosevelt's appointment of a crop-insurance committee the Republican nominee yesterday gave advance publicity to that portion of his tonight's address which touches this issue. "I believe," says Mr. Landon, "that the question of crop insurance should be given the fullest attention."

Unfortunately the solution of the problem which Mr. Roosevelt is now sponsoring cannot be said to fall under that "well-considered approach to crop insurance" which Mr. Landon has for some time been advocating.

In directing his new committee, headed by Secretary Wallace, to prepare a report the President further demands "recommendations for legislation providing a plan of all-risk crop insurance." This is obviously premature. What is wanted first is a comprehensive study of the whole subject of crop insurance, with detailed explanation of the way in which it would be applied. Not until such a report has been made, and opportunity for constructive criticism offered, will the time be ripe for drafting legislation on the subject.

By calling for draft legislation, instead of a report on the desirability of such legislation, the President discloses his hand. Whether or not governmental crop insurance is workable, and the technicians at the Department of Agriculture are themselves by no means satisfied on that point, Mr. Roosevelt is determined to throw it into the campaign pot.

To place his support behind the idea at this time may win some votes in the doubtful farm belt, and therefore the support is given, in characteristic slapdash manner. The contrast with Gov. Landon's conscientious approach to the problem is as revealing as it is typical. Equally interesting is the striking coincidence whereby Mr. Roosevelt rushes out a dramatic letter on crop insurance immediately in advance of a speech in which his opponent was expected to discuss that possible development.

Such tactics do not further the cause of crop insurance, or that of any other new hunch for which the President feels that "the time has come to work out." The trouble is that so many of these hunches do not work out. They may serve to distract public opinion from past administrative failures. But the way in which they are pulled like rabbits from a magician's hat, particularly as the election approaches, does grave injustice to reforms which may in themselves be meritorious and desirable.

The new crop insurance committee may well be more than just another flash in the pan, set up to catch a few innocent voters in key States. But if its purpose is more serious than that Secretary Wallace should immediately make one basic point clear. Why does he insist that crop insurance must be attached to his dubious "ever-normal granary" idea? As long as that Siamese-twin connection lasts it will appear that this nominal insurance plan is in reality a subterfuge for subsidizing those high-hazard areas which, other governmental agencies argue, should be gradually withdrawn from cultivation.

Reaction To Knox.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It has been my intention to vote the Republican ticket this fall, as I have done every election since 1896, not because I am particularly interested in seeing President Roosevelt ousted—he is a personable gentleman—and the Kansas Cyclone—to me he is a hick with straw in his hair and nothing else—put in his place, but because I have a deep-seated antipathy for the individual and the mass who compose the hosts of democracy.

However, I may abandon my Republican moorings and join with the sweating proletarist for once if something is not done quickly to stop the yapping of the Hearst-nursed Frank Knox, who for a reason I cannot for the life of me understand was chosen as the Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency. Of all the false-alarm, jingoistic, four-flushers in the long record of American politics—of all the stem-winders and sleep-killers, F. Knox stands indisputably and unchallengeably supreme.

The chances for my party's winning the November elections are at best none too rosy—with Knox on the ticket they will as time goes on move progressively toward nil.

Army And Navy Alternates.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A candidate for the Senate writes to me that he can not oppose our Army and Navy policy, reasoning that "we have never lost in battle because we have been adequately prepared."

This is a common view held by many otherwise well-informed people. They forgot what Secretary Dern said: "The World War was a failure, a victory for no one." The war with Spain, Minister Woodford knew, was unnecessary. Gen Grant, a lieutenant in the Mexican war, declared it was "one of the most unjust wars ever fought by a stronger against a weaker people." The war of 1812, need not have been fought had we had a cable under the Atlantic and known that Great Britain had withdrawn her orders-in-council.

The Senate candidate rightly wants adequate preparedness. But that can not be by explosives or poison gas or microbes which have no relation to justice. It must be the production of brains and ballots; of sitting around council tables; of heeding the wisdom of such men as the scholars and experts who are honoring Harvard this week by their presence. Democratic Rule.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent editorial you say that the majority rule "implies protection of the fundamental rights of the minority while the majority policy is being pursued."

This statement deserves generous emphasis. A quite too common notion of majority rule is that it is absolute, that the majority may cut loose as it pleases and the minority must come submissively in tow, that minority opinions and desires have not persuasive place in a democracy.

The minority in a democracy has more than a mere right to be heard; it has a right to influence the course of the whole.

The rule of a majority that will not so far sacrifice itself as to be influenced by minorities may be neither fascism nor communism, but it is an evil strenuously to be avoided in our systems of self-government. There is no authority for autocratic majorities in our political structure; there should be a minimum of them in our lesser affairs.

The few remaining nations that practice a wholesome democracy are trustees for the democratic ideal. Our Presidents, certainly all in our generation, have felt themselves to be the head of a majority and minorities combined, not simply the head of a dominant party. That is a wholesome attitude. It is high time to change the old rule of "the greatest good to the greatest number," to "the greatest good to everyone."

Also True To Form.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today's editorial "England Runs True to Form" merely proves that The Post "runs true to form." I recall that the editor of The Post got some kind of a prize last year for his page but if any American editor ever composed a more asinine squib than this one on today's editorial page of The Post it is not remembered. Are transfers from jails to sanatoria usually accompanied by brass bands? Anyway, England is so refined, according to this editor, that the transfer will be quiet. I shall enjoy playing the saxophone in the procession when this same editor gets his transfer. Why the year at hard labor if that poor man is mentally unbalanced and everyone knows he is from description of him ever since the incident.

If that is an example of British justice and good sense then indeed "England runs true to form." But our prize editor is demonstrating with what quiet and dignity and justice dear old mother country dispatches her ugly business. Thus "the incident closes without fuss or fanfare in typical British fashion, with dignity and dispatch to everyone's satisfaction," says the editor. The shameful and unjust sentencing of an insane man to a jail for a year at hard labor satisfies everyone—God save us.

"The contrast with what might have been Mr. Mahon's fate in another land is striking." Is the editor by any chance thinking of a man in California, whom most men consider innocent, imprisoned for life unable to get the fair trial he seeks?

"The tyrants of Germany and Russia rule by terrorism while the monarch of England," etc., etc., etc. Did the editor of The Post ever hear of Egypt and India and Ireland and if so does he dare to compare "terrorism" in England and Germany?

"To draw a pistol against the monarch of England is not the act of an assassin but of a fool." Yes and to draw a pen against the editor of The Post is not the act of a wiseman but of a fool—but I'm proud to play the fool.

Paul Revere's Bailey And Knox.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Col. Frank Knox, Republican Vice Presidential candidate, is not the first Paul Revere to sound the alarm and show red lights warning not only life insurance policy holders, savings bank depositors but all classes of people who save and invest, of the eventual disastrous consequences of reckless Government spending and borrowing.

Senator Josiah Bailey, a good Democrat and statesman of our own State of North Carolina, gave practically the same warning in just as serious language in a feature article which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post of February 2, 1935.

Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, whom I recently interviewed at Chicago, gave me an interesting memo with respect to insurance companies, as follows: "At the end of 1935 life insurance companies had $2,102,000,000 in Government securities, $2,930,000,000 in railroad securities, $2,212,000,000 in utility securities. With 11 per cent of assets invested in Government securities, the insurance companies hold 8 per cent of the National Federal debt."

The high proportion of utility securities in insurance portfolios as noted in the above memo, is very significant, and apparently not alluded to yet by Col. Knox, Senator Bailey, or President Roosevelt himself. As we all know, the public utility industry in which there is such heavy life insurance investment, has been on the frying pan ever since Mr. Roosevelt has been President, and subject to most rancorous Government competition as in the TVA, and in Federal grants to municipalities to build competing light and power plants.

A Proposal To Promote Peace.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your just defense of Mr. Hull, our farseeing and wise Secretary of State, for his address in New York before the Good Neighbor League, sets an example of high class journalism and non-partisan patriotism.

The claim that Mr. Hull in his speech was weakening the Kellogg peace pact was absurd, and worthy of the rebuke that you administered. Mr. Hull's policy in the past has strengthened the pact in several ways. As you say, the wish was the father to the thought, for it had no other father.

Mr. Hull's most valuable service is the emphasis he has put upon international commerce as a bar to war. He indicates that as long as international relations are insecure, commerce will be timid and small. He indicates that he had tried to maintain the vitality of the Kellogg pact but that strong nations had broken their treaty agreement.

The United States is in honor bound to the 62 nations which it invited to sign the Kellogg pact, to finish that world peace work which it began. The United States is in honor bound to Ethiopia, which trusted and accepted the invitation of the U. S. and promised to renounce war, to call a conference of the signatories to see what can be done to help Ethiopia and prevent another aggressive war.

The President owes it to the nations of the world in order to promote commerce to see what such a conference can do in preparation for world peace.

What President Wilson hoped to accomplish before the victory over Germany and which failed through the League of Nations, can be accomplished if our President will call the necessary conference of the signatories of the Kellogg pact, as the Emperor of Ethiopia and many British citizens desire.

The mere calling of the conference would immediately help the League of Nations. It will show that the United States is mobilizing the indignation of the world against the barbarism if war, as an antiquated, ineffective and unbearable method of settling national controversies, which all the nations of the world, except four, outlawed in the Pact of Paris.

Without the use of military force, the calling of the conference would strengthen the League of Nations and the sacredness of treaties, which in some cases are now being treated as mere scraps of paper.

The conference would be likely to provide for a system of gradual and uniform disarmament, which would permit each nation to have a military force for an adequate national defense, permitted by the Paris Pact as the inherent right of every nation.

It would probably institute an international police, with authority to use improved scientific methods to nip in the bud any plot and conspiracy against the pact, the League, and the international code, before it developed into a monster war machine. The police would have no power to call military force to its aid but merely to summon violators of the pact before a duly authorized court with powers similar to those of the Supreme Court of the United Nations with power to inflict pacific penalties, but also with power in a case of contempt of the court to call a conference of the signatory nations to determining what shall be done with a person or nation which has persistently violated the pact, the moral sense of the world, and defied the loving will of God.

The Wealth Of Presidents

SEVERAL of the Presidents have been among the wealthiest men of their time, yet Hoover is the only one who could be called a millionaire. This statement in a sense may be ambiguous, for wealth and income in the early days of the republic were much less, considered absolutely, than in the period following the Spanish-American War. A biographer of James Buchanan writes that his success was so phenomenal after admission to the bar that within three years his income rose to over $11,000. And a biographer of Benjamin Harrison says that his professional income, about $10,000, was high for an Indiana lawyer of the period (c. 1830).

In discussing the personal property of the Presidents, a distinction should be drawn between wealth and income. Many of the Presidents were lawyers who had received fees considered high in their day, yet their wealth may have been inconsiderable. On the other hand, some of the Presidents had considerable holdings of land and slaves, yet were hard put to it for cash.

* * * *

Washington, with tens of thousands of acres and hundreds of slaves, came close to being the wealthiest man of his day in the United States. Yet Mount Vernon was so thoroughly neglected during the Revolutionary War that it had become a liability rather than an asset. Moreover, Washington had received many of the sums due him in heavily depreciated continental currency. When he was elected to the Presidency, he had to borrow money to settle his debts and to pay his traveling expenses to New York.

Jefferson, successful lawyer prior to the Revolution and member of the upper social caste of Virginia, owned about 10,000 acres and over 100 slaves. Yet he was hard pressed for funds before and after his terms as President, and at his death was practically penniless.

* * * *

Other Presidents have had their financial ups and downs. That was true of Jackson, planter and businessman as well as soldier. It was also true of McKinley, who had amassed a moderate fortune by 1893, only to go under in that year by having indorsed notes for a friend. McKinley's property was deeded to a group of trustees and by the time he became President he was prosperous again.

Presidents who had been receiving a comfortable income from official salaries, without having amassed much wealth, prior to their election were the two Adamses, Taylor, Fillmore, Johnson, Grant (down and out at the outbreak of the Civil War), Coolidge, Monroe, William Henry Harrison, Garfield, and Cleveland could not be considered wealthy. Perhaps the poorest of all on entering the White House was Wilson.

* * * *

Lincoln, at the time of his election, was close to being the most eminent and successful lawyer in Illinois. His income was large for his time. The same thing was true of Madison, Van Buren, Tyler, Polk, Pierce, Buchanan, Hayes, Arthur, Benjamin Harrison, and Taft. Theodore Roosevelt left an estate of some hundreds of thousands of dollars, as did Harding. On the whole it may be said that some of the Presidents have been poor and others rich, but most of them fell somewhere between these two extremes.

* * * *

A recently published book ascribes to Gov. Landon property worth about a million. Other estimates are between a quarter and half a million. At all events, whether President Roosevelt is defeated or re-elected in November, the next President will belong to the upper economic stratum.

Did Ney Escape?

The public loves these stories that Jesse James lived out a long life under another name or that Kitchener was miraculously rescued when the Hampshire went down. Just now there is a revival of the legend that Marshal Ney was not shot in the Luxembourg Gardens after Waterloo, but escaped and came to America.

The occasion for this revival is the reported discovery in North Carolina of a packet of old papers once the property of Peter Stewart Ney, a school teacher of the early part of the last century. The papers are said to relate to Napoleon's campaigns and to be indorsed on the margin, "Michel Ney," which was the marshal's name. From this some have jumped to the conclusion that the school teacher was the great marshal himself.

However, Mme. Ney for the rest of her life believed herself to be a widow. This, of course, might not be conclusive unless one knew the degree of regard the marshal had for his wife. But if he had escaped and lived on for years in America it would be remarkable if no one in France knew it and if his wife had not found it out. It would be all the more remarkable since there could have been no reason, from the standpoint of safety, for concealment after reaching America. He would have been safe here, all the more because the French government did not want to catch him and was greatly put out when the marshal was arrested.

These stories make entertaining speculations and if some persons like to read them, regardless of their basis, what's the harm?

Handicaps.

This is a sporting nation and it strikes me that our leaders who are trying to make the people think they think have overlooked a graphic analogy in the case of the handicap system.

In our sports we have various ways of rating the handicap. In foot races the inferior runner is given a few yards of distance; in golf the better player concedes strokes to his opponent; the superior horse is loaded with weight to hold him back; in wrestling, sometimes, the weaker man is deemed to have won if the other fellow doesn't throw him within a certain time, and in pool the comparative shark spots his victim one or more balls as a starter.

In this way the contest is more or less equalized on the basis of the known or probable abilities of the principals—a ratio not much different from that which Mr. Roosevelt and, I suppose, Mr. Landon, too, would like to achieve between Americans in the struggle for existence. Surely that is the thought underlying the income tax which cuts down the winnings of the expert players and even, in some cases, tends to cool their enthusiasm for the game and all the efforts on behalf of the underprivileged.

The experts, thanks to their superior ability or their hard competitive instincts, have too great an advantage over the duffers or those who break a leg or drive into the trap and blow 16 strokes coming out, thus running up their scores to hopeless figures under conditions of straight competition from scratch. Moreover, the failures of the scratch man are visited upon his children in the lack of opportunity—a penalty more harsh than those in sport where the game is over when it's done and no man with a scratch rating can hand that rating down to his son.

Well, there is that, and, then, there is the failure of sportsmanship and the necessity for better police work by a referee in Washington to assure the little man a fairly even sort of break in addition to his handicap. The history of many of our big fortunes clearly shows that the referee was nodding to a swift blonde to meet him after the show while the founding fathers of our present aristocracy were getting in their dirtiest licks. It is all right to point now to the marvelous benefactions of the Rockefellers and the improved behavior of the current descendants of the richest and rudest New York families, but that doesn't obscure the fact that the old boys made heavy use of the blackjack when they were getting theirs and were not penalized for such.

It is too late to get sore about that now, but it isn't too late to tighten up the rules and put on some additional referees, because the stories of Al Wiggin and Big-Hearted Howard Hopson, of recent fame, have shown that chivalry in business is often honored in the breach. It is just a good idea to keep the contest under the firm control of the referee and to identify as foul play certain methods which were introduced by the experts and their attorneys and practiced against the dubs to their serious disadvantage long before the dubs knew what was going on.

It just seems that the game calls for revision if the dub players are to be encouraged to keep on trying against the experts. Once they quit trying en masse and decide to play another game which comes naturally to them there would be serious inconvenience for all, because the game they play best is a game called revolution, and that one is no fun.

It might be pointed out, too, that the theory of the inheritance tax is very much like that of the roulette wheel. Before the inheritance tax a man not only had the fun of winning while he was at it but had the privilege of taking his winnings off the premises. He handed them over, whole, to his heirs, who, in many prominent cases, thereupon became drunkards and imbeciles by vocation, although that is really none of our business, because class distinctions are bad and a rich man's son has the same fundamental right to be a drunkard and imbecile as the son of the poorest man in town.

In roulette they never let a man go home with his winnings. They let him enjoy the pleasure of riffling his stacks, but they watch him closely, and when he gets that look in his eyes which says he is fixing to quit they turn on the heat and grind him down. Maybe he does quit winner to some extent, but almost always they give him a few bad rolls and take down their tax.

The Once Over

Don't Worry About War.

Nothing has done more to promote world peace than the sudden appearance of women in war.

Even the most belligerent of males cools off at the prospect of going off to war and discovering that it is still nothing but a super-version of the same old row with "the little woman."

Who wants to go to war and discover that the general is a girl he used to go to school with?

• • • •

Who wants to enlist when there is a prospect that his top-sergeant may be the girl he threw over for Nellie?

• • • •

Where is there a man brave enough to go across No Man's Land with a squad of bomb-throwers including his former wife and a girl whose letters he stopped answering?

• • • •

How would you feel if you were the only ugly-looking soldier in the company and the lady lieutenant came to look over the gang and pick one man to go out and cut barbed wire under a barrage?

• • • •

What would be your sensations if you were prowling between the lines and you suddenly realized that the machine gun you suddenly encountered was manned by a couple of your old school teachers?

• • • •

Suppose you married into one of those families where nobody ever agreed on anything? And during the entire war your position was made all the more terrible by the fact you had women relatives in both armies?

• • • •

Who wants to be assigned to a job driving a tank and find his wife in the back seat?

• • • •

Imagine a great battle crisis in which you as a member of the general staff had to get a plan through, with your wife as a fellow member of the staff?

Landon Tonight

By Hilding Sverdsen,
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Des Moines.

THE ADDRESS on agriculture to be given by Gov. Alf M. Landon at Des Moines tonight may be the turning point in the campaign, since the Middle Western farm belt is now generally recognized as the chief battleground of the 1936 campaign. History of considerable magnitude may be in the making in this typical Middle Western city.

There can be no question that Gov. Landon appreciates the momentous nature of this event. During the past week he has been flooded with suggestions for his speech, and has held a number of conferences at Topeka with his advisers.

On Friday, his friend, Senator Capper—himself one of the outstanding legislative exponents of the agricultural interests of the Middle West—invited the farm editors of the Nation to be his guests at a luncheon conference in Topeka. Gov. Landon was present a part of the time, being compelled to interrupt his stay because of the intervening of another affair—the meeting of the National Young Republican League, the same day. Thirty or 40 farm editors and writers made brief speeches, each dealing with his own hobby, and Gov. Landon was exposed to the composite wisdom of the guests.

Farm Experts' Talk Not New To Governor.

IT WAS NOTED by those who attended, however, that the talk around the table was not startling news to the Republican Presidential candidate. He seemed to be perfectly familiar with all the topics discussed, and, in the brief time he occupied with his own remarks, offered some ideas of his own which demonstrated his grasp of the general subject.

Of course it is obvious, even to the uninitiated, for that matter, that no man could be active in business or political affairs in Kansas, and not become thoroughly familiar with farm problems, and Gov. Landon's own career and record is so inextricably bound up with the welfare of the farmer that it is second nature for him to talk and understand the farmer's language.

The chief point of interest, therefore, is not whether Gov. Landon is sympathetic toward the farmer's problems, but whether he will present a comprehensive program of his own, and an aggressive interpretation of the Republican farm plank such as will dramatize the Republican drive in the farm regions, and give renewed force and direction to this phase of the campaign.

It would be odd, indeed, if a typical New Yorker, steeped in the hereditary traditions of a wealthy and landed aristocracy, should be able to outtalk and outgeneral a typical self-made Midwesterner in his own section and in the realm of his own greatest interests. This unusual situation adds to the grip of the occasion.

Midwest Feels Wallace Is Cool To Regimentation.

THERE IS a growing opinion in the Middle West that Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, if left to his own devices, would prefer to abandon the regimentation idea and fall back upon a general land-use program, which would serve the same purpose of contracting productive cropland and pasturage. This is felt to be true despite Secretary Wallace's habitually academic and theoretical approached the farm problem.

However, it is also realized that Secretary Wallace's style is sadly cramped in this respect because other departments, and even some of the divisions of his own department, are constantly at war with one another and are defeating a general land-use program. Mr. Wallace, therefore, is compelled to "front" for the AAA and other features of regimentation, as the only politically feasible and convenient procedure.

The crop benefit feature, from a purely political point of view, is a "natural," since it provides the gorgeous opportunity of distributing, just before election, a prodigious amount of cash to farmers. It is ostensibly justified, from the theoretical point of view, by the presumed contraction of cropland acreage, by means of a conservation program wherein productive lands are retired to the planting of legumes, grasses, etc., and to erosion control. However, this doesn't work out in practice, for Iowa's corn acreage and Kansas' wheat acreage have increased instead of decreased under the AAA. There is no evidence that the AAA program has the effect of contracting crop acreage—it seems to work in reverse. Only the drought has kept up prices.

Because of the defects in the AAA and the objection of the farmers to Government employes supervising their individual farms, the best solution of the farm problem lies in the contraction of the total crop and pasture land area of the United States through retirement of Government-owned land and that which can be cheaply acquired by purchase from private owners. The potential in this direction is staggering—somewhere in the neighborhood of half a billion acres, or an equivalent of half a dozen of the largest farm States.

Strong Appeal Heard For Land-Use Program.

C. C. COGSWELL, master of the Kansas State Grange, who was one of the speakers at the farm editors' conference at Topeka, made a strong and convincing appeal for this sort of a land-use program. He likened the total crop and pasture acreage of the United States to a big farm, and suggested that if Uncle Sam were to superintend the production of farms he had better begin on his own farm, which includes several hundred million acres of grazing and reclamable land. He objected to penalizing the individual farmer while the biggest farmer of all—Uncle Sam—goes right on holding up his acreage and even increasing it.

He pointed out that right now Uncle Sam is opening up new lands for homestead entry, at the very time he is claiming to reduce farm acreage, and Tugwell's committee is denouncing the homestead expansion as unsound. He is also opening up new reclamation lands and turning over vast areas to pasturage by big commercial grazing interests and is giving crop benefits as high as $50,000 to large scale wheat farmers in the dust bowl. It just doesn't make sense.

The weakest part in the New Deal farm program is its failure to correct these glaring and inexcusable conflicts. It has an elegant land-use program, but it is all on paper, and when it comes to actual practice, the New Deal does precisely the opposite of what every dictate of common sense indicates, and what it is claiming to do itself.

The vulnerable nature of the New Deal land-use program furnishes the best bet for the Republican campaigners. They do not need to quarrel with the announced objectives of the New Deal, but they can shoot the actual performance toward these objectives so full of holes that it isn't even funny.

This fantastic and self-contradictory situation arises because of the lack of co-ordination in the New Deal land-use machinery. Co-ordinators have been appointed to straighten out the inconceivable mess, but they have run into political complications and have left parts of their pants hanging on the cruel cogwheels of the New Deal machinery.

Farmers' Union Editor Deserts New Deal Ranks.

IT IS INTERESTING in connection with the matter of the Republican platform to note that Editor Ricker, of the Farmers' Union Herald and Tribune of St. Paul, who attended the Topeka meeting, warmly indorsed the Republican farm plank. The Farmers' Union has been inclined to be radical, and has given the Republican Party very little aid and comfort in recent years, so his attitude is especially significant at this time.

Mr. Ricker is very much of an independent, who supported the New Deal farm program in its beginnings, but he frankly announced his disappointment in its operation. The editors' meeting was nonpartisan, but occasionally something cropped out which indicated that Gov. Landon would have nothing to fear as to his election if it were left to the men who attended this meeting.

In the meantime the matter of what Gov. Landon is going to emphasize in his Des Moines speech remains pretty much of a secret. He may stress the Canadian Treaty. He may hold up some of the more glaring examples of AAA maladministration, such as the huge benefits to commercial farmers. He may emphasize the needs of the family type farm. He may talk about land use. He may expound the Republican plank on tariff differentials. He may discuss the Republican technique of providing subsidies, emergency payments and crop loans. He is keeping his own counsel and will write his own speech—that much is certain.

The Ghost Of Ethiopia.

It is proving as difficult to liquidate the Ethiopian problem as it is to liquidate the Ethiopians.

The latter are proving in more than one ambush that the capture of a capital and the proclamation of an empire are not alone enough to insure the pacification of a country. The former is no less troublesome now that it is stalking through the shining new corridors of the League's Palace of Peace than it was when the League had higher hopes and less pretentious quarters. Ethiopia has disappeared as a name—at least from Italian maps—but the letters are burned too deeply in the consciousness of the world to be eradicated by an act of will or a legislative formula. The ghost of the last bit of free Africa refuses to be exorcised. It has taken up its habitation at Geneva, a spectral reminder of solemn pledges and lost opportunities.

It is not surprising that the delegates about to enter the council chamber or the hall of the Assembly shudder at the visitation. Modern men have not learned to live with ghosts; they simply cannot believe in them. Their view is, what is dead is dead. The Ethiopians in insisting that their country is alive though conquered (the Poles, the Czechs, the Yugoslavs and many another European people including the Italians should have a fellow feeling for them) disturb the sense of the League delegates and trouble their consciences.

• • • •

Does Ethiopia exist or doesn't it What Haile Selassie's answer would be is plain; as plain as the Italian denial. But the League's answer cannot be so simple. For it stands officially committed to both points of view. When at the instance of Great Britain and France sanctions were called off, this constituted an admission that Italian claims to Ethiopia would no longer be contested in fact. But the Gordian knot was not then cut. Italy's conquest was not recognized and there appears to be no intention of doing so. For more was tied up in that knot than Ethiopia's existence; for instance the security of a host of nations remote from East Africa but dependent in greater or lesser measure on that collective system which for better or worse finds expression in the League Covenant.

It remains to be seen whether, in the long run, non-recognition of a conquest achieved by force is a tenable policy. It may be argued that Japan has lost little by the fact that the creation of Manchukuo has not been approved by important nations. The point may equally be made that Italy stands to lose just as little if the other powers refuse to regard Victor Emmanuel III as successor to Haile Selassie I. Yet the very fact that both Japan and Italy are eager to have their conquests formally recognized shows that the non-recognition policy is not without teeth. Indeed in Italy's case the League's stand has certain dangerous aspects. In particular it creates a real difficulty in borrowing those sums which are necessary to exploit Ethiopia and which Italy itself does not possess. It is difficult to get a loan on property whose title is not clear.

That is why Italy is using every form of pressure at its disposal to compel the League to retreat if not the rest of the way at least another step or two. That is why, at the moment, the question of whether or not the Ethiopian delegation is to be seated, has overshadowed all other problems facing the Assembly.

• • • •

So far as Great Britain and France are concerned they are willing to shed tears over the fate of Haile Selassie and his empire. But their governments do not want Ethiopia, whether a reality or a ghost, further to complicate their relations with Italy. Italy as a force in European affairs is more important to them than Ethiopia as a principle of world conduct. And apparently they have found the formula to rid themselves once and for all of the Ethiopian problem. Employing the same technique they have used in the Spanish crisis, although it is clearly in violation of normal international practice, they believe they have found a way out of the mess they are in by refusing to recognize Ethiopia no less than Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. They can then get on to the principal business in hand which is somehow to tie the hands of Hitler.

Whether the other members of the League will follow their behest and refuse to seat the Ethiopian delegation (thus clearing the path for Italy's return to the League) remains to be seen. Temporarily Haile Selassie's representatives are to be given a place. But before long, it is expected, some flaw will be found in the credentials of the Ethiopian delegation to make it possible to unseat them. Thus Mussolini will have his additional pound of flesh from Italy's late allies and the League Assembly can proceed with the task of reforming itself. But the ghost of Ethiopia will continue to haunt the League Palace just the same. Ghosts cannot be buried.

Lees Of Virginia

A New Biography.

By William Lyon Phelps.

"The Lees of Virginia" is the title of a book published this year by Little, Brown & Co., Boston, and written by Burton J. Hendrick, one of the ablest biographical writers living. He has been awarded the Pulitzer Prize three times.

I remember Mr. Hendrick very well when he was an undergraduate at Yale in the class of 1895. He and his classmate, Lindsay Denison, were both on the editorial board of the Yale Literary Magazine. After graduation, Mr. Hendrick was for a time editor of the New Haven Morning News. Mr. Denison got a job on a New York newspaper and became a famous journalist.

• • • •

"The Lees of Virginia" is the history of one of the most distinguished of American families. Mr. Hendrick quotes the saying of John Adams of Massachusetts, "The family of Lee has more men of merit in it than any other family," which was a surprising remark coming from a New Englander, and an astounding remark coming from a member of the Adams clan.

Mr. Hendrick has the perfect equipment and temperament for a biographer. He is scrupulously accurate, devoted to research, has the temperament of a Supreme Court justice, a vein of ironical humor that sprinkles salt on his pages, and commands a literary style of high distinction.

• • • •

The recent publication of Douglas Freeman's splendid biography of Robert E. Lee has increased the already keen interest in this family. So that Mr. Hendrick's history of the Lees from the seventeenth century to the death of the great soldier is not only fascinating biography, it is an important contribution to the social history of America.

Perhaps the chapter in this book that will give more new and surprising information than any other is the one called the Lee Franklin feud, showing how Bancroft fooled the wisest man in the world, Benjamin Franklin.

• • • •

Mr. Hendrick's summary of the character of Robert E. Lee is one more tribute that helps us to understand that soldier-saint:

"If many of Lee's acts and words before and during the war savor of the Old Testament, his behavior afterward showed that the New had become his rule of life. And his statement must be understood literally . . . Probably those who actually embody in daily life its principles for forgiveness, love of enemies, human brotherhood and unselfishness are few. But Lee was one of them."

History In The Faking

By Felix Bruner.

St. Louis.

When President Roosevelt issued his executive order authorizing the National Park Service to spend the first $6,750,000 for the Thomas Jefferson memorial here he got his history considerably mixed. It is this project which has become the center of a vote fraud scandal that is rocking this community.

The President indicated that in the 37 blocks of river front, where the memorial was to be erected, now a busy industrial section, stood the courthouse where the Dred Scott decision was rendered, the spot where Lewis and Clark outfitted their expedition, the beginning of the Santa Fe and Oregon trails, the site of the old Spanish colonial house, the site of the Government House of Spain and the spot where LaFayette was received by the people of this city. It is said here that the site was represented to the President as having all of these historical associations as a build-up for making it a national shrine, more easily "sold" to the Nation's taxpayers.

As a matter of fact, the courthouse referred to is not on the site; the Santa Fe Trail began at Old Franklin, far west of St. Louis; the Oregon Trail began at St. Joseph, Mo.; Lewis and Clark outfitted at a point on the Du Bois River in Illinois. The Spanish colonel house and the Government House of Spain were the same building, but it is not now standing. The building in which LaFayette was received is on the site. It is now a saloon.

These things may be of minor consequence, but they are significant in indicating the type of build-up the scheme was given. The site is not particularly historical. It is just the St. Louis waterfront.

Promoters of the waterfront project were disappointed when President Roosevelt allowed them only $6,750,000 for the undertaking after they had succeeded in putting across a bond issue for $7,500,000 as the city's share of the cost. They had asked the Government for $22,500,000 and claimed to have every reason to expect it. President Roosevelt in his order gave the impression that only $9,000,000 was to be spent, of which the city would supply $2,250,000. The property to be purchased has an assessed valuation of $5,652,650. With $9,000,000 the construction work could not even be started.

Nevertheless, it was decided to attempt to go ahead. Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann undertook to sell $2,250,000 of the bonds. He made two attempts to sell them publicly. There were no bidders. The question has been raised as to whether the land could be acquired by condemnation for a purpose that was not a public necessity. Opponents of the project were confident they could show there was no such necessity. Dickmann finally, however, sold the bonds. The city bought $450,000 worth itself with money from the water department sinking fund. The remainder went to a private purchaser who was given a premium of $36,000, said to have been paid by the promoters.

The writer spent several hours going over the section that is to be razed if the project goes through. There were busy factories housed in substantial buildings. The whole district is served by railroad sidings on which switch engines were puffing. A considerable share of the business of the city was being transacted. Only four blocks away was a section of riverfront shanties, made of packing boxes. People were living in squalor. It was typical of the neighborhoods that sprang up in so many large cities during the depression. Neither the Government nor anyone else is planning to do anything about this section.

What has gone before is the background of the St. Louis vote frauds. The vote for the memorial bond issue was 123,239 to 50,713. The issue carried by the necessary two-thirds majority in 19 of the city's 28 wards. That was on September 10, 1935. Last month a primary election was held. In connection with that election it was charged thousands of names of persons who did not exist were on the registration list. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch demanded action. The election commissioners finally made a check. It was discovered that 46,252 registered voters could not be found! Hundreds were registered from unoccupied buildings. Scores were listed with addresses that were found to be parks and flower beds.

It is suspected that even this is not the whole story. A private check in one precinct showed 1,440 names on the registration list, of whom only 276 could be found. The election commissioners had reported they had found all but 228. In the precinct where 1,440 persons were registered, the latest census figures show that the total number of men, women and children was only 1,439.

During the Philadelphia convention Thomas J. Pendergast, Democratic boss of Missouri, made this statement to a reporter:

"The fundamental secret is to get the vote registered—and then to get it out after it is registered. That's all there is to it."

A grand jury started an investigation which resulted in more than 30 indictments. Although the primary election came nearly a year after the bond issue referendum, it was investigated first. The results of that investigation, however, strengthened the belief that there had been fraud in the bond issue referendum. This belief was strongly held by Paul O. Peters, head of a citizens' group fighting the memorial. Much of the preliminary work was done by Peters.

On September 8, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch "broke" the story, the result of a painstaking investigation. It carried pages of evidence. The revelation resulted in a new grand jury investigation, still going on, and in resignation of the election board. It is certain to have a considerable effect on the future of St. Louis and Missouri politics.

Following is a part of the first copyrighted story printed in the Post-Dispatch and reprinted here with permission of the editors of that newspaper:

"The Post-Dispatch begins today an exposure of gross frauds just discovered in the Jefferson Memorial bond issue election of September a year ago, at which, according to certified returns, the issue carried by 7,000 votes more than the necessary two-thirds majority required to pass.

"The full extent of the fraud could not be determined—only an honest, official recount could do that—but the evidence already gathered indicates there may have been enough ballot box stuffing and falsifying of the vote actually cast to invalidate the election.

"The Post-Dispatch has established that fraud was committed in at least 15 of the city's 28 wards.

Unused St. Louis waterfront which would be available for park purposes, but for which there is no Federal or local beautification plan.

"Instances of fraud have been found in all but four of the 19 wards in which the requisite two-thirds majority was recorded for the bond issue. (Note—Later investigation revealed fraud in the other four.) In some of these wards the majority was reported as high as 10 to 1, and one ward 30 to 1.

"In the 15 precincts, one in each of the wards mentioned, in which the Post-Dispatch has made a test canvass, a far greater number of persons have been found who voted 'no' than the total number of 'no' votes recorded in those precincts. The reported vote for the 15 was 'yes,' 5,467; 'no,' 136. But 309 voters have made affidavits that they voted no.

"One election clerk has told the Post-Dispatch that his associate officials in the polling place packed the boxes with false ballots, and, not satisfied with this, entered totals to suit themselves on the poll books at the end of the day, without bothering to count the mixture of fraudulent and valid votes."

The next and concluding article will give details of the manner in which one of the biggest of the New Deal boondoggles was fraudulently put over on the people of St. Louis, as well as the taxpayers of the entire country.

Weather Men Look to Radio As Storm Aid

Gregg Hopeful Over Tests of Scientists to Create Detectors.

With the hope that much-dreaded tropical storms that sweep up the Atlantic Coast from the Gulf may be prepared for long in advance of their arrival, research experts at Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology are developing two new scientific radio tools designed to chart the extent, severity and paths of approaching storms.

"At present we depend largely on reports from ships at sea for data to locate hurricanes and trace their paths and progress," Dr. W. R. Gregg, chief of the bureau, declared. "However, ships naturally get out of a hurricane area just as quickly as possible, making it difficult to follow."

In an effort to supplement this method, scientists are now attempting to locate and follow hurricanes with delicate radio sets which pick up "static rays" or discharges from the disturbance. Two or more land stations focus their receiving antennae on a disturbance and attempt to plot the direction from which the rays come, the point where the map lines cross being the approximate location of the hurricane.

Still Experimental.

This radio method is still in its early experimental stages and cannot be relied on entirely for some time to come, officials say. In view of this, much interest is being evinced in the second method, which proposes to make use of the new radio meteorographs, or miniature broadcasting stations attached to free balloons which broadcast by short waves the air pressure, temperature and humidity from instruments as the balloons ascend to the stratosphere.

By this means it will be possible for the first time to tell what action is taking place in a hurricane. The speed and path of the storm may be determined by tracing the balloon's progress by radio direction finders from the ground, scientists of the bureau explain.

While preliminary experiments with balloons are being carried on by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientists in Cuba, other research experts are ready at Augusta, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala., and Jackson, Miss., to release balloons with meteorographs attached during the progress of a hurricane which might strike in their vicinity. These instruments, which also record pressure, temperature and humidity, must be recovered later to yield their data, however, since they are not radio-equipped.

Hurricane Month.

The hurricane season normally lasts from June 1 to November 15 with the peak of activity generally coming in September, according to weather experts. The number each season averages about six or seven but may vary widely from year to year, they say.

A god of the Carib Indians, "Hurricane," is responsible for the name most frequently applied to tropical storms. Born in the belt of calm air over the Atlantic Ocean just north of the equator, hurricanes are greatly affected by the earth's rotation. Winds, which otherwise would blow directly toward the rainstorm center, are deflected to the right, and rotating winds begin to move at speeds from 50 to 120 miles an hour.

If present plans of the Weather Bureau to chart their paths are carried to completion, hurricanes of the future, lashing the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, will cause far less fear and damage.

Wells HasBirthday; Keeps Age Secret

London, Sept. 21 (AP).—H. G. Wells, known as the youngest of the "big three" of modern English literature, celebrated his birthday today—but refused to disclose how old he is.

The record book showed him to be 70, but the British author denied this, saying:

"It is not true. It is a false report spread about by that fellow Shaw (George Bernard Shaw) to disguise his own age."

Shaw was 80 last July 26. The third member of the literary triumvirate was Rudyard Kipling who died last January at the age of 70.

Exiled Indian Leader Is Allowed to Return

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Sailendra nathGhose, Indian Nationalist leader, who has been an exile here for 20 years because of his activities in behalf of Indian independence, today disclosed that the government of India had granted him permission to return to his native land. He said he would sail for India November 3 with his wife and two daughters, who also have been prominent in their political activity.

Ghose, who has been connected with Mahatma Ghandi, in the campaign for Indian independence, was refused permission to return in June, 1931.

Second Inquiry Slated In Air Travel Safety

By the Associated Press.

A second inquiry into methods of promoting safety in air travel was announced yesterday by Chairman Copeland (Democrat), New York, of the Senate Commerce Committee. First hearings will be held early in October, he said.

Returning from a month's inspection of European airlines and flying facilities, Senator Copeland declared that America is "lagging behind in safety developments."

A sharp criticism of the Bureau of Air Commerce was voiced in the committee's preliminary report on air safety, presented shortly before hte adjournment of Congress.

4-H Style Winner.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 21.—Miss Antia Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marian F. Stewart, of Wilsonburg, today held the distinction of winning the annual Harrison County Four-H style show held here at the end of the week.

Edith Maxwell Leaves Capital To Await Trial

Mountain Girl Will Live in Richmond Until Slaying Case Comes Up Again.

Edith Maxwell, freed on bond pending her new trial in the death of her father, Trigg Maxwell, in Wise County, Va., a year ago, returned to Richmond, Va., yesterday after two days of freedom in Washington.

Edith and her brother, Earl, will visit relatives there. Later she will join her mother and 12-year-old sister at the Maxwell home in The Pound, cross-roads hamlet in the Cumberland Mountains. The young school teacher's new trial will open November 16.

"It was so wonderful I can hardly believe it," sighed the pretty mountain school teacher yesterday, as she left Washington.

Meanwhile, their interest reawakened by the victory Edith won by obtaining a new trial and being admitted to bond, Post readers came forward yesterday with new contributions for her defense fund.

With this money Attorney Charles Henry Smith, of Alexandria, and his aids, retained by The Post, which has fought the case of the mountain school teacher since last autmn, will start their battle for acquittal.

One reader inclosed a contribution "in the interests of justice," and another because she did not think it right "to call what seemed just an accident a murder."

The Post Invites Contributions To Press Edith Maxwell Fight

Edith Maxwell is free on bail after 14 months in jail, following sentence of 25 years in prison on the charge of murdering her father.

Wtih the aid of money given by its subscribers, The Washington Post has won half the battle in securing justice for this girl.

Miss Maxwell must again face the court and there must be an acquittal before she is actually free to resume life as a country school teacher.

The fund subscribed to by readers of The Washington Post is nearly exhausted. All the legal expenses of the appeal to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals were paid out of this fund. Charles Henry Smith, noted attorney of Alexandria, Va., gave his services without fee, to assist The Post in its fight in behalf of Miss Maxwell.

A new fund of $1,000 is necessary to conduct the new trial, set for November 16, when a change of venue will be asked by Smith from Wise County.

Witnesses will have to be interviewed and medical depositions obtained. Expenses of witnesses will have to be paid. Smith again will contribute his services, which will make the amount needed the minimum figure.

With the fight half won and chances of complete victory bright, it is believed readers of The Washington Post will want to see it through.

The invitation to contribute to this fund therefore is extended again.

The only interest of The Post in this case is justice. It is the belief of this newspaper that there is no evidence in this case that the cause of death of Trigg Maxwell was the tap on the head from his daughter's shoe.

Enclosed find—as a contribution to the Edith Maxwell Defense Fund to be used by The Washington Post in her retrial.

G. O. P. Prizes Awarded; New Contest Begun

Hard Announces Winners for Roosevelt Letters; Seeks Other Side.

By the Associated Press.

Awarding prizes which he offered some time ago for best letters on "Why I Am for Roosevelt," William Hard, Republican commentator, last night announced another letter-writing contest in which the subject will be "Why I Changed from Roosevelt to Landon."

In his regular broadcast for the Republican National Committee, Hard said Prof. T. V. Smith, of Chicago University, "a New Deal Democrat," had selected the following winners among the pro-Roosevelt letter-writers:

First—Duncan Fraser, Chicago carpenter (4440 North Hermitage avenue), $500; second—Nat M. Dysart, farmer, Peoria, Ariz., $300; third—tie between Jean Oliver Macauley, housewife, San Maeto, Calif., and George G. Starr, jr., teacher, Beaver Falls, Pa., $200 each.

Explaining the contest, Hard said the points that political parties need to hit are arguments that the opposition regard as strongest.

Similar prizes were offered in the new contest for best letters on "Why I Changed from Roosevelt to Landon."

"Several million voters have already made that shift," said Hard. "Their reasons should be interesting and valuable to both sides."

Young Ickes Loses Right to Drive Car

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 21 (AP).—An automobile accident nine days ago tonight cost Robert H. Ickes, adopted son of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, temporary loss of the right to operate an automobile in Massachusetts.

However, shortly after registrar of motor vehicles suspended his license, Ickes, now employed on a Federal relief project in nearby Winchester, declared:

"I have no intention of driving my car in Massachusetts any longer. It is put up in a garage and it is going to stay there."

Goodwin said his inspectors found Ickes "entirely to blame" for an accident here September 12 in which five persons claimed injuries.

Only a month ago, Ickes, who was graduated from an Illinois college in June, was acquitted of a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. At that time his father charged police were "persecuting" his son.

Blues Singer, 25, Sues Pollack for Divorce

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP).—Doris Robbins Pollack, 25-year-old blues singer, sued her baton-wielding husband, Ben Pollack, for divorce in Superior Court here today.

Among the complaints listed in her bill was the allegation that the orchestra leader pushed her out of bed in Detroit last April

Presidential Poll

Contest Column

This column will be conducted daily until October 30, closing date of The Washington Post's 1936 Presidential Poll Contest. Questions of contestants will be answered and other information, helpful to the contestant in predicting the winner of the election and the States he will carry, will be supplied from time to time.

$1,000 in cash prizes will be awarded 34 contest winners, with $500 for first prize. The contest closes at midnight, Friday, October 30.

Q. When will the popular vote reaction to the Landon speech in Maine be shown in an AMERICA SPEAKS poll?

A. In the results of the poll which is now being taken and which will be published exclusively in Washington, in The Sunday Washington Post, October 4.

* * * *

Q. Is it probable, from the results of previous AMERICA SPEAKS polls, that Gov. Landon will have to carry Michigan, in order to win the election?

A. The last AMERICA SPEAKS poll, published September 20, showed eight States "safely" (States in which the poll indicated a 54 per cent, or better, majority for the leading candidate) for Landon and 25 States "safely" for Roosevelt. Four States (Wisconsin, Ohio, Michigan and Colorado) were classified as "borderline" Democratic. Mr. Roosevelt, with 223 electorial votes "safely" his, and 63 "borderline" electoral votes from the above four States, would have a total electoral vote, were the election held today, of 282—36 more than enough to win.

Thus, Gov. Landon — assuming that he could effect a shift to the Republican column only in one or more of the four "borderline" Democratic States—would have to win (in addition to the eight States that are, at present, "safely" Republican and the 11 States that are at present, "borderline" Republican) either: (1) Ohio and Wisconsin; (2) Ohio and Michigan; (3) Ohio and Colorado; (4) Michigan and Wisconsin; or (5) Michigan, Wisconsin and Colorado.

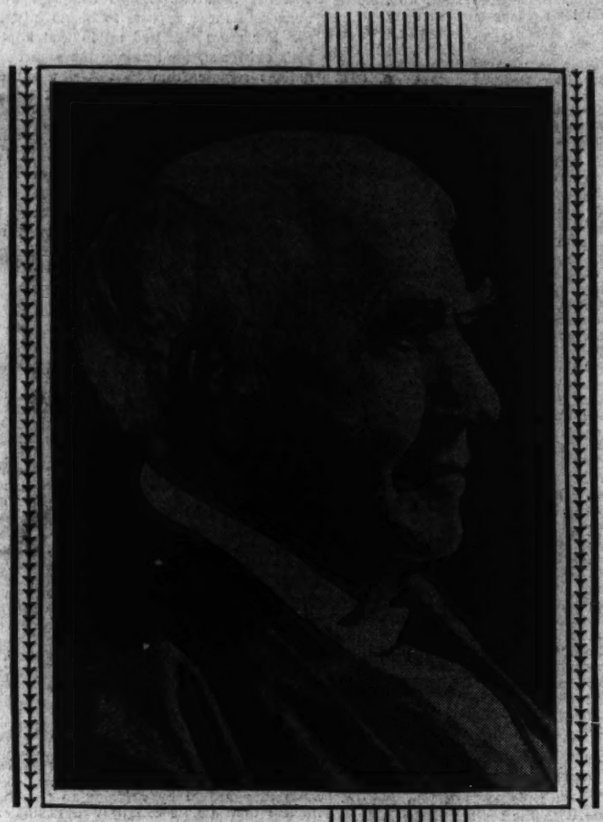
NEWSPAPER BOYS OF TODAY ARE AMERICA'S LEADERS OF TOMORROW



THOMAS A. EDISON
1847 to 1931. World-famed wizard of electrical science, and most prolific inventor civilization has yet seen. His more than 1200 patented inventions have literally revolutionized life. His rise to fame dates back to his boyhood experiences in selling newspapers.

World's Greatest Inventive Genius Got His Start as a Newspaper Boy!

BACK in 1859 twelve-year-old Thomas Edison needed two things; funds to finance experiments in his little home-laboratory; and a constructive outlet for his youthful energy and ambitions. Like millions of other red-blooded boys, before and since, he found BOTH money and experience, in selling newspapers.

Obtaining a job as "newsboy" on a Grand Trunk Railway train running between Detroit and Port Huron, Michigan, young Edison made the most of his new opportunity to learn salesmanship and business methods. Soon, he was able to buy a small hand-printing outfit with which, in his spare time, he published a tiny weekly paper containing news of towns along the railroad, selling the copies at 3c each.

Thus, in this practical school of newspaper selling, did Edison earn the money he needed for his scientific studies and experimental work. But, what is far more important, it was here that he began to build the sound foundations of character and develop the amazing creative ability which later brought him both fortune and world fame as the wizard of science and invention.

Today, who can measure the value of Edison's great contributions to the comfort, convenience and machinery of modern civilization? Or, who can estimate the potential achievements of the 600,000 ambitious young Americans now getting their first taste of business experience, by serving a newspaper route. Among them may be an "Edison" of the future. It's more true now than in 1859—"The Newspaper Boys of Today Are America's Leaders of Tomorrow."

PARENTS—If your boy is 14 or over and you are desirous of having him secure the practical business training offered through this new, approved plan, write to the Circulation Manager, The Washington Post, for full particulars. Give age, address, phone number and school grade of your boy. There are several routes in various sections of the city now available for the right type of boy.

Hamilton Lays Trade Revival To Gov. Landon

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Sept. 21.—John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman of the Republican Party, tonight said nomination of Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, as the Republican choice for President had started a surge of business recovery in the United States.

"There has been the beginning of a real recovery during the last three months through all the avenues of American enterprise and endeavor," Hamilton declared in an address prepared for delivery as part of the Republican campaign in Maryland.

"I do not think it is by coincidence that this recovery began at exactly the same time that the character and principles of Gov. Landon became widely known and appreciated. * * *

"Gov. Landon deserves credit for creating throughout this Nation a new confidence. A confidence that there are still men in public life who believe that promises should be performed. A confidence that the old and basic faiths which for the last three and a half years have been belittled and betrayed, still carry meaning."

Hamilton accused the Roosevelt Administration of broken promises and betrayal of Democratic Party principles and platform, and said he wished to "pay my tribute" to the newspaper, the Baltimore Sun, for its "courage and integrity" in deciding "it cannot support in this election the principles and implications of Mr. Roosevelt's philosophy."

Hamilton offered the Republican Party as "the one unit around which can rally many other Democratic papers and thousands upon thousands of independent Democratic voters throughout the Nation who have taken a similar stand."

"The Democratic Party and the Republican Party are as one on the great fundamental points to be decided. Both stand, as they have always stood, for the preservation of the essential framework of American Government.

"The theories which the Republican Party questions and which many lifelong Democrats question are the theories of a new party and ticket in our history—a one-man party and a one-man ticket—the party and the ticket of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

"One of the basic issues of the present campaign * * * is the question of whether any one man or any small group of men acting in the name of the Federal Government, however great their abilities, and however high their intentions, can give to the 130,000,000 people of this Nation a greater security than these 130,000,000 people have been able to build for themselves.

"It is right that we—our people and our Government—should seek higher standards not only of physical comfort but of spiritual freedom. * * * But security is not achieved through governmental decrees nor overnight. The securities we hold we gained through the struggles and privations of generations of those before us. * * * They are not to be surrendered for the illusion of security which may either be the product of new ideals * * * not yet tested or of old ideas whose defects were proved long ago."

Rev. Bradley, Emmitsburg, Dies Here at 69

The Rt. Rev. Bernard James Bradley, president of historic Mount St. Mary's College at Emmitsburg, Md., for a quarter of a century, died here yesterday in Providence Hospital. He was 69.

Mgr. Bradley was stricken with pleurisy Saturday when he returned from the funeral of the Rev. Carl M. Rauth at Hagerstown. His condition became progressively worse, and he was brought to Providence. Hypostatic pneumonia developed. He died at 12:10 p. m. yesterday.

Mgr. Bradley was born at East Braintree, Mass., the son of the late James and Mary Allen Bradley. He attended Mount St. Mary's College and upon his graduation in 1886, began studying for the priesthood. He was ordained in the Brooklyn diocese in 1892, and two years later was recalled to Mount St. Mary's as a teacher of logic and liturgy.

In 1897 his administrative ability having become apparent, he was made treasurer of the college. He became vice president in 1901 and president in 1911.

On the recommendation of the late Cardinal Gibbons he was named a monsignor by the Pope in 1914, and in April of that year was invested with the honor by his sponsor in Mount St. Mary's Chapel.

Under Mgr. Bradley's administration, the enrollment of the college was doubled, and many new structures added to the campus, including the seminary building, the college church, the gymnasium and the present administration building.

The body was returned to the college yesterday. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. and burial wil be in the college cemetery.

'Death Valley' Scotty Divides Birthday Repast With Mules

Eccentric 61-Year-Old Desert Character Still Lives in Shack Five Miles From Elaborate Canyon Castle; Has Spent $8,000,000.

Death Valley Ranch, Calif., Sept. 21 (AP).—Death Valley Scotty spent his sixty-first birthday with his closest companions, two old mules, he related today.

Betty, who has carried his ammunition and medicine for 15 years, and Slim, who in 38 years service has "carried a million and a half in plunder," so the prospector says, shared his birthday breakfast yesterday of flannel cakes and bacon.

The main event of the day was the shoeing of Betty by Scotty at his desert shack on the northerly edge of Death Valley, 5 miles from his castle in Grapevine Canyon.

Then he went up on the plateau above his shack and made some repairs on the 22 miles of fence that enclose his mystery domain.

Scotty was born at Synthiana, Ky., September 20, 1875, named Walter Scott. He ran away and entered Death Valley as a mule swamper when 11.

After a decade with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show as a premier rider, he returned to Death Valley at the turn of the century. Since that time fantastic tales have been told about him.

"I've spent $8,000,000," he said today, "including $1,000,000 for booze." The source of his wealth is a mining mystery.

He does not often visit his $2,381,000 castle up in Grapevine Canyon, which he started building in 1922.

"I know it's there, so why bother?" he says. He would rather sleep out on the rocks than in the luxurious beds of the elaborately furnished castle.

Appealing Radio Saved.

Kansas City, Kans., Sept. 21 (AP).—Into the smoke and fire of a drug store charged Fire Capt. Arthur Mercier. "Help, help!" someone appealed frantically. Almost suffocated, he groped his way toward the source of the cry, finally locating it behind a counter. There a radio, tuned to a crime story, was going full blast.

Three Under Bond In Girl's Abduction

Three youths pleaded not guilty yesterday when arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of abducting a 12-year-old girl.

They were released under $1,000 bond each for a hearing Saturday.

The youths, Julian Shane, 20, of 400 block Maryland avenue southwest; Robert Kirk, 21, of the 200 block Third street northwest, and Woodrow W. Easton, 20, of Elizabeth City, N. C., were returned here from North Carolina last week by the United States Marshal's office.

According to police, the three youths took the 12-year-old girl, whose father is a District policeman, to Elizabeth City. Two other girls, 15 and 16, also are alleged to have been with them.

Police yesterday said the two youngest girls, with the help of Easton, managed to escape from the men and get as far as Richmond when they were found by police. The 16-year-old girl is alleged to have been with the men at the time of their arrest and may be charged as an accessory

Mexico Bestows Medal On Senor Julio Lozano

Dr. Najera, Called the Most Decorated by Foreign Governments of Any Diplomat in Washington, Pins 'Aztec Eagle' on Honduran Envoy.

By Dudley Harmon.

The Mexican Ambassador, Senor Dr. Don Francisco Castillo Najera, who is reputed to possess more foreign decorations than any other diplomat in Washington, yesterday bestowed a medal upon the Minister of Honduras, Senor Don Julio Lozano. The ceremony took place at the embassy on Sixteenth street, and the order bestowed was that of the Aguila Azteca, or Aztec Eagle, which was created four years ago by the Mexican government and which is only given to foreigners. Senor Lozano received it because of his service in Mexico City as Honduran Minister there.

The bestowing of medals is a ceremony dear to European and South American hearts, but rarely practiced in this country. At state functions and military and naval balls, foreigners always are far more splendidly bedecked with glittering metal and pieces of varicolored ribbon than are Americans, with the exception of our Army and Navy officers. The medal-less state of our diplomats and officials is owing to the clause in the Constitution which forbids anyone holding a position under the American Government to accept any decoration from a foreign government.

"We can hold a medal in trust, however, until the recipient retires from public service," said Mr. Eddy, the medal expert of the State Department, yesterday. "In fact, we have one for President Roosevelt, and another for Secretary Hull."

Dr. Najera has so many medals that it's a real problem to find space for all of them upon a gala occasion at which the full panoply is required. At embassy or legation functions, however, he manages to cope with the situation by wearing only the miniature medal of the country represented.

Most foreign countries allow their diplomats to receive decorations from other countries after a consultation between the two governments, as do France and Italy. But the British are like us—they don't permit it except on some rare occasion when an important dignitary is making a state visit to another country.

Unlike the United States, however, where Army and Navy decorations, and the Congressional medal virtually are the only such honors bestowed, the English government gives medals to outstanding subjects of the Crown. That is why his Britanic Majesty's Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, is never at a loss when it comes to competing in decorations with ambassadors from other countries. On state occasions he is resplendent with orders of the Grand Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, the Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath, and the Commander of the Victorian Order.

Mrs. Springs 1,000th to Ride On Hindenburg

Wife of Air Ace in War Returns From Europe Aboard Zeppelin.

Mrs. Elliot Springs, wife of the war ace and author, has gained the distinction of being the 1,000th passenger carried on the German Zeppelin, the Hindenburg. She landed in Lakehurst from Europe on Sunday.

Although Mrs. Springs makes her home near Charlotte, N. C., she is well-known in Washington, where she and her husband are entertained from time to time by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert. Mr. Springs, who served as an aviator during the war, is the author of "War Birds," and is owner of one of the largest cotton mills in the South.

The Springs home in North Carolina has been in the family for several generations, and is an outstanding example of colonial architecture. Not the least interesting feature of the place is the two trapezes hung at either end of the swimming pool, and Mr. Springs, fully dressed, frequently leaps from one to the other to the amusement of his guests.

The Hindenburg is fast becoming a favorite means of transportation among socialites. Count Laszo Szechenyi traveled back to Europe on it after spending the summer in Newport, and Miss Gloria Baker, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Emerson, of New York, and half-sister of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, will board the Zeppelin this week to return to her studies in Europe.

Robb-Woolley Nuptials Oct. 10

Quiet Ceremony Planned Because of Death of Bride-Elect's Kin.

Miss Frances Howard Woolley, daughter of Mr. Robert Wickliffe Woolley and the late Mrs. Woolley, has selected October 10 for her marriage to Mr. James Spittal Robb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Robb.

Owing to the death of the mother of the bride-to-be in July, the wedding will be small, attended only by the two families and near relatives.

It will take place at 4:30 p. m. at the residence of Miss Woolley's father, 3401 Prospect avenue, the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, rector of Saint John's Episcopal Church, Georgetown, officiating, and will be followed at 5 o'clock by a small reception.

Miss Florence Trenholm Woolley, sister of the bride-to-be, who is a member of the Junior League, will be the maid of honor. Mr. Charles Stuart Robb, of Tucson, Ariz., is to be his brother's best man. There will be no other attendants.

Anne Bullitt Sails Tomorrow for Paris

Going With Father to Take Over French Embassy.

When the new United States Ambassador to France, Mr. William C. Bullitt, sails tomorrow on the liner Washington to take up his duties in Paris, he will accompanied by his daughter, Miss Anne Bullitt. She has crossed the ocean many times, as she used frequently to visit her father when he was Ambasssdor in Moscow, but this winter she will remain with Mr. Bullitt in Paris.

Miss Mary Logan Bullitt, a niece of the Ambassador, was presented to society at a tea given over the week-end by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Logan M. Bullitt at their home in Philadelphia. Miss Bullitt attended the Sacred Heart Convent at Noroton, Conn.

Jamesons Send Out Cards for Wedding

Mrs. Theodore Horace Jameson, of Pultneyville, N. Y., has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Miss Lois Adelaide Jameson, to Mr. Thomas Hopkinson Eliot, grandson of the late Charles Eliot, president of Harvard University. The ceremony will take place October 10 at Emmanuel Chapel on Seminary Hill in Alexandria, and there will be a reception immediately following the ceremony at Seminary Hill.

During the summer Miss Jameson occupied a summer home adjacent to the chapel together with Miss Barbara Donald, Miss Rachel Campbell, Miss Eileen O'Daniel, Miss Sara Jenkin Smith and Miss Elizabeth Morrison. They are now living for the winter at 2740 Thirty-fourth street, in Washington.

Foibles and Folks

By Marylyn Reeve.

A triangle, it was, and one over the telephone at that. Mrs. Alben W. Barkley and her daughter, Mrs. Max O. Truitt, were on the end of the line here, one upstairs and the other on the extension, while the former Wawse Barkley held up the western end of the conversation in Vancouver, British Columbia, where husband, Doug MacArthur, is Vice Consul. Chief among the gleanings was the fact that the popular couple will be coming East within a few months, perhaps, in time for Christmas. Now that the young career man has completed the required length of time for his first post, he is due here for a three month's assignment at the State Department. This is one time when school days are quite welcome, for it means precious time with both of the families before dashing off to the far corners of the earth for duty.

The impeccable Henry B. Gwynn is in constant sunshine these days, no matter what shade of weather the rest of us are having to contend with, and all because Helen Fish is returning for another visit. She has, we understand, two very interesting packages awaiting her, that came all the way from the Canal Zone! They might contain almost anything, but being from Panama—more than likely are either china or perfume.

The "Last of the Mohicans" has nothing on the Fechets. Kay Fechet soon is going to be the only representative of her family in this section. The General and Mrs. Fechet have long been in Florida and already have reserved seats in the cheering section for the Southern resort State. The Robert Cardells—before her wedding at Fort Myer last year she was Mary Fechet—are about to pack up their belongings at Edgewood Arsenal and set sail for Panama and two years in the tropics.

Mary Senate Howes has joined the ranks of those who dare go hat-hunting in this, the season of towering and Alpian toppers. Among her debut trousseau she has one that is of black velour, sticks out at odd but becoming angles and boasts a gay pheasant quill across the top. Two new frocks that will see much action in the days to come include a demure princess affair of black velveteen finished at the neck with a high round collar, buttons down the front and has a graceful bell skirt. Another is of cocoa brown crepe, a streamlined frock with the fullness in the back and brightened up with a touch of orange and green braid at the neck and waistline.

It won't be long before that long gray and crimson roadster and its pretty driver, Kay Pearson, are again seen whizzing around DuPont Circle and down the avenues. The Pearson family is expected to reopen the Wyoming avenue home at the end of the month, but in view of the recent activity along the coast with Neptune and his cronies lashing the beaches and shorelines, it is our guess that they will linger on at Bay Head, because they love excitement, and gales and house wrecking storms hold no fears for them.

Driving out Massachusetts avenue the other afternoon we spied a bright yellow coupe at the curb on Thirty-fifth street. The trouble with driving anywhere is that one passes so quickly, there is never any time really to take things in. But, unless we are mistaken, there is something to the rumors that one of Washington's most attractive blonde widows is being seriously courted by a dashing artilleryman.

• • • •

Of all people—Jack Gregory! He has arrived for a brief visit and yesterday afternoon was spending the pause that refreshes at one of the younger set's favorite lounges. He deserted Washington last year for Harvard, and some of its post-graduate courses. Also taking advantage of the late afternoon and frosted glasses were blonde Carol Mathis, in a becoming brown sports outfit, and her escort.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

When Girl Detests Boy's Lovemaking but Would Hold His Friendship, What Stand Can She Take?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am in a mess and want you to help me if you can. I am a young girl boarding in a strange town with a family beneath my intellectual and social level, simply because I cannot afford any better living quarters. I have been desperately lonely because my financial circumstances rse too poc to permit contacts with my own kind, and I don't care to have my name associated with the other sort.

Some time ago I met quite casually a boy of my own age. And you know a girl is always older than a boy the same age. Immediately he began asking me for dates, and I have been seeing him nearly every night. Now, I am one of those unfortunate persons who cannot talk unless they meet with some response and this boy says (truthfully or not, I do not know) that he never talks much to anyone. I have no conversational "line" and have never been clever enough to contrive one. When, in desperation, I put questions to him, of one sort or another, he mumbles "yes" or "no" or uh-huh," and no more.

He says he loves me and I think he does, as much as 20 can be in love—but here's where the mess comes in. He wants to make love to me all the time we are together. I have, of course, been kissed and made some love to in my time, but I haven't gone with many boys and the ones I have had dates with have not been so possessive (I reckon that's the word). If I try to hold him off and get things down to a more rational basis he gets sulky and hurt and says he loves me so and I've never said I love him; and then he starts the age-old plaint of "the woman tempted me and I fell."

• • • •

I haven't led him on to make love to me. I think that's a despicable thing to do, and besides, I feel so much older than he. If he loves me it is not my fault. I don't love him. I like him, but I wouldn't have dates with him if I had anyone else. It's horrible to sit home night after night eating. I'm sick of getting life second hand, but still I'm sick with myself for letting this child make love to me when I don't care for him. I reckon the best thing to do is to say I won't see him again, but the prospect of being alone, and of losing the prestige (small though it is) that having dates brings one, seems too much to bear. And yet I don't feel that I can stand more of this love making. It makes me so nervous. I'm all to pieces and then it frightens me.

• • • •

This isn't the way I want my life to be. I asked him once what kind of a person he thought I was; if he had a wrong idea about me and he said "no," but that he loved me so much. Please advise me as soon as possible what I can do to change things and still keep him. He seems to be my only escape from utter loneliness at the moment, and he has meant a lot to me in some ways. Sincerely yours, NEW ENGLANDER.

Lay Down the Law.

DEAR NEW ENGLANDER: Lay down the law to this boy. If he loves you so much, he'll abide by it. And if he can't take it, he's a poisonous person who should not be permitted to bloodsuck the decency out of your clean and wholesome outlook on life. Tell him you don't love him and that his lovemaking makes you sick at your stomach. Tell him if he expects to make any headway in your affections, he'll have to conduct himself more in accordance with your ideas of how a man should act. Tell him you've gone more than half way in an effort to meet him on common ground, and now he'll have to make a similar effort or you are through. Tell him if he doesn't know how to make conversation, it's high time he was learning how.

• • • •

Lash out at him with a good healthy display of rage and disgust. Don't be mealy mouthed in your resentment. Don't express your sentiments in sugar-coated terms. Let him have it with both barrels, just as you feel it. Any man worth his salt appreciates a show of spirit in a woman, particularly when she's defending her essential principles. Humor him and he'll probably despise you, deep down in his heart, even though he may never fully realize that fact himself. Make him toe the mark or get out, and he'll be eating out of your hand, if he cares one whit for you or your good opinion.

• • • •

The boy needs to be shocked into taking stock of himself, and if you have such an electrifying effect upon his emotions, you are the person to throw the switch. If he gets the right slant on himself, he ought to be deeply grateful for the opportunity of associating with such a girl as you. I think you write a splendid letter. It reveals wit, dry humor, intelligence, decency, resourcefulness and intellectual awareness.

• • • •

The best way to hold this boy, and on your own terms, is to make it quite clear that you don't give a hang whether he goes or comes. And if I were in your boots, that is exactly the way I should feel and act about it. M. H.

In Re Picnic Grounds.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I would appreciate your telling me if the picnic grounds in Rock Creek Park have drinking water. Very truly yours, V. L.

• • • •

DEAR V. L.: Eleven of the 18 picnic grounds in Rock Creek Park do have city drinking water, provided by hydrants or fountains, but mostly fountains. Those having drinking water, and also ovens or fireplaces, are grounds Nos. 2, 5, 8, 10, 11, 14, 16, 22, 24, 26 and 30. This information was given me by the Rock Creek Park police, whose headquarters are at Beach drive and Military road northwest, telephone GEorgia 2483. It was suggested you get in touch with Miss Dorothy T. Mayfield if further information is desired. Miss Mayfield, who is in charge of picnic permits, is at Room 1046, Navy Building. Her telephone number is NAtional 2530, branch 1222. Permits are not absolutely necessary unless one plans a campfire picnic, but park supervisors prefer to issue permits, as a method of checking on the number of persons using the park privileges annually.

Children Quick To Note Break In Their Home

By Alice Clarisse Richmond

CHILDREN are very quick to sense disharmony in their environment. They cannot always say what the trouble is, and may not even be actively conscious of it, but they are unhappy and nervously tense if there is any trouble in the household.

Very tiny babies will lose their appetites and grow pale and fretful, older children will be sleepless and may even become seriously ill as the result of a conflict between their parents, even though they may never have seen any active quarreling or disagreement.

Divorce or separation are generally bad for a child, but they cannot be as bad as constant friction between his parents. If a man and woman cannot be sufficiently adult to agree to differ without rancor, and to control not only the outward, but also the indirect, inward expression of their feelings, they had better separate for the sake of the children's health and peace of mind.

In every marriage there come crises when the whole structure threatens to crash. There never was a marriage which did not at some time need adjustment. When there was a stigma attached to divorce, and marriage was supposedly made to last, men and women tried to overcome the problem of fitting two points of view into a common understanding, and worked out a possible and often a happy solution.

It is the children who must be considered first. The children did not ask to be born, and once here have no choice of action. If parents could think of this instead of harping on their own differences and disappointments, and would accept and fulfil the responsibility which they have incurred, there would be fewer unsophisticated and neurotic children growing up.

Women Again Turn To Red Fox for Fur

The red fox lives in a great big way again, vying for popularity with the silver. A stunning outfit in Louise Latimer's bridal trousseau consists of a beige suit with swallowtails sumptuously trimmed with deep epaulets of red fox.

Leopard and the American ocelot will also answer the rollcall for high style. Margaret Lindsay combines leopard with a brown suit, wearing leopard gloves with long slim gauntlets and a trig leopard ascot at the neck.

Joan Blondell Wears Ocelot Street Coat

The coat, which is part of an ensemble, is made on simple swagger lines with Peter Pan collar and is lined in golden brown silk crepe. Under the coat is a dress of matching brown crepe with flared skirt and the Alix Arabian treatment of twisted belt and cuffs.

Gray—An Accepted Fall Tone

The popular princess lines developed in a smart coat of gray nubbed wool with pockets and new flattering collar of gray Persian lamb. Black turban with skyrocketing feather, slip-on gloves, handbag and shoes are of black suede, emphasizing the smart trend—gray with dull black accessories.

Store 'Clinic' Shows How Styles Get Their Currency in America

'Headlines Make Fashions' First Demonstrated by Newspaper Clippings of Significant News—Paris Designer's Studio and Its Technique Also Traced.

HOW MUCH does it cost to launch a new fashion? How is it done? What are the sources?

These questions were answered in detail, accompanied by illustrations, at the reproduction of the Amos Parrish Fashion Clinic, last night at the Hecht Company, by Arthur Meyer, divisional merchandise manager in charge of Ready to Wear.

"Headlines Make Fashions" was first demonstrated by newspaper clippings of significant news which has influenced the coming fall and winter style scene. Next was shown a Paris designer's studio where ideas are created. Then, the famous Rodier Woolen Mills, demonstrating the importance of fabric in connection with new designs. The original model is then imported into the United States and adapted to American needs, as shown in an American manufacturer's organization.

Store buyers then go to the market to purchase these American-made, Paris-inspired clothes. After they reach the stores, there is the cost of promotion and then presentation of the smart costume to their customers. The finale of the evolution of fashion launching was the appearance of a model dressed in a lovely gown of the coronation influence. The total expenditure runs around $250,000.

Among the highlights of the Amos Parish Clinic reproduction (which is a fashion clinic given in New York for store executives to acquaint them with the oncoming style trends and merchandising of same), was the importance of the coronation influence, the emphasis on gray as a popular color, black touched with color, the new idea of matching accessories rather than contrasting with the costume, as formerly, and the tremendous vogue for broadcloth in both daytime and evening wear.

All of these salient fashion features, interpreted on living models, were demonstrated and discussed to acquaint the store people with all that is new and acceptable in fashion, to better serve the customer. The show was opened by C. B. Dulcun, sr., general merchandise manager.

'Princess Line' Gets Hollywood

Hollywood (AP).—The "princess line" with short circular skirts that require yards and yards of material, is a popular one in Hollywood at the moment. All sports clothes have a swing with skirts flaring all the way around and many jackets flaring in back. Cutaway jackets, such as Patricia Ellis wore in a recent film, and tunics, with the length of the peplum depending on the wearer's height, are in the promenade.

Every ensemble seems to have its own special cape or coat, while the pencil-slim silhouette shares honors with full skirts, outstanding peplums, swagger lines and even bustles for evening.

Women Often Ill-Mannered With Smoking

Certain Proprieties Should Be Observed in Public, Parties.

By Margaret Wallace.

WASHINGTON hosts and hostesses have problems in this cigarette smoking generation that never confronted those of their forebears.

Adherence to rules of politeness in cigarette smoking by both men and women has become as indicative of good breeding as table manners are. It is surprising how many well bred people depart from the rules of good form when they smoke.

A young women who would never think of putting her knife in her mouth at the dinner table, will flick her ashes all over the floor instead of using the ash tray provided, or will throw back her head and let the smoke come out of her nose or some other such smoker habit. The girl who would never think of taking a stick of chewing gum out of her purse or a bag of candy and proceeding to eat it when she is dining with a young man in a restaurant will take out her cigarettes and matches and proceed to smoke.

One young girl who likes to smoke and frequently dines in a restaurant with a man who does not smoke asks if it is proper for her to smoke when she is dining with him. He always orders cigarettes and ash tray for her.

Of course this is correct as the young man is her host and has invited her to smoke. If he does not offer her cigarets she should not smoke unless she knows him well enough to say she would like a cigarettes.

Query. Every time I invite a certain woman to a formal dinner she calls me up in advance to find out all about the guests and what they are interested in. She also asks me many questions about the private affairs of my friends. I must acknowledge that she seems to have a good time at the dinners and everybody seems to like her. It it good form for her to do this? She is not an intimate friend of mine at all. Her husband is a business associate of my husband and that is the reason we invite them.

Answer. It is rather clever, if somewhat impertinent of the lady to call you up to get information of the kind you describe about the guests she will have to talk to at your dinner. Many people try to find out something about the other dinner guests before a dinner and even go so far as to read up on the topic they are interested in. It is not good form, however, to call up the hostess. If every prospective guest did that the hostess would have to establish an information bureau before each dinner.

Query—I use a very distinctive stationery—pale yellow paper with the envelopes lined in a deeper yellow. Will this be proper to use for engraved invitations to a dinner for my daughter?

Answer—It is not considered proper to use note paper for invitations other than invitations to a wedding or commencement exercises, and so forth. A card is much better form. The usual size is 6 inches in width and about 4½ inches in length or a little smaller. This card is used for both engraved and written invitations. Distinctive stationery such as you mention is not good form for formal invitations of any kind.

Query: I have been told that visiting cards are used for invitations in Washington. What entertainment can they be used for?

Answer: The visiting card may be used for an informal dance, a buffet supper, a musicale, a bridge party or a tea. Some Washington hostesses use them for informal dinners and luncheons, but this is not correct according to the strict letter of good form.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Pressure Troubles of the Feet.

Most of us have heard the paraphrase, "Great aches from little toe-corn grows," and but few have failed to experience "corn" distress. Whenever and wherever the skin is subjected to undue pressure it thickens and forms a callus in an effort to protect the tender area. The difficulty lies in the fact that the pressure probably continues or is even increased because of the outgrowth of hornlike tissue. As a result, nature's shield (the corn) becomes a weapon of offense.

For most of these painful regions we blame tight or poorly fitting shoes, but there is one type of toe deformity for which the footgear is not guilty. This is called a hammer toe. Nevertheless many of those afflicted will relate that in childhood they were compelled to wear shoes that were too short. As a rule this explanation is erroneous. The chances are that the affair is hereditary, at least the tendency. The downward turn of the end joint of the toe generally manifests itself in early life. It runs in families.

Because of the right-angle bend which the toe assumes, no modern shoe can fail to exert some pressure, as the tip is forced against the inner sole. In addition, a painful corn forms on the head of the joint. The tip also becomes swollen, broadened and flattened. If the condition is discovered early it may be corrected in young children by stretching, followed by the application of a small splint that is worn during the night. In older children a splint will often be as successful as in youngsters, but in adults surgery is demanded for correction.

The most commonly affected toe is the second (next to the great toe). The contracted member is usually overlanped by those adjacent to it, and the tip particularly is compressed by the adjoining toes, assuming a hammer-like form. Furthermore, the nail is frequently distorted and may give trouble. A true hammer toe is always single—limited to one on either foot. Whenever several toes are involved some other cause should be sought.

Treatment consists in shortening the toe so that it can be straightened. This destroys the joint, and a rigid, stiff toe results. It is necessary frequently to divide one of the tendons. Operation is not recommended, however, except in those cases in which the use of splints has not been attended with success.

Another pain-producing affair—also brought on by pressure—is the so-called ingrowing toe nail, which causes no small amount of disability. The trouble ordinarily appears on the outer edge of the great toe nail, although it is sometimes found on the inner margin. Tight shoes and stockings are largely responsible, together with the pernicious custom of trimming the corners of the nail, creating a neat looking, smooth, rounded edge. While this may create a desirable cosmetic effect, it constitutes an invitation to disaster, as the skin at each corner may grow up over the nail edge. The result, in all too many cases, is ulceration and infection.

Prevention consists in wearing proper shoes and hose that are not too short. In addition the nails should be cut straight across, so that the corners project slightly beyond the skin.

If infection occurs—and pain will usually warn of the true circumstances—soaking the foot daily in hot water and wearing an old and comfortable shoe will bring about healing promptly. Allow the nail to grow out until it projects well beyond the end of the toe. The generous use of sterile talcum powder before donning the hose is advised. An antiseptic solution of perchloride of iron may be helpful in stopping the spread of the infection. In neglected cases it may be necessary to remove the nail surgically under a local anesthetic.

'Make-Up' Moderates Its Colors In Key With the Victorian Mode

Ultra-Sophisticated Face Giving Way to the Pink Lady Vogue.

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

THE VICTORIAN influence so rampant in the present mode has brought the "pink lady" back into the style scene. It is obvious that one can not wear smartly demure period frocks and top them with an ultra-sophisticated face and bright red finger nails. They simply do no harmonize!

Regal, feminine appearing clothes have inspired the return of the "lady;" the smarty - sophisticate will soon be relegated to the background, for the coming fall and winter seasons at least. Make-up has taken on a rosy outlook—soft glowing powders, mellow rouges, lipsticks nearer the natural blood tones and dusty rose polishes for the nails.

There will be less evidence of make-up on the face and more on the eyes. Eye shadows and mascara are of extreme importance; new delicate colors of eye shadows for daytime and iridescent shadows to make the eyes more glamorous for evening. Mascara subtly applied, to give a starry-eyed effect and still not obvious; color as well as application are essentials for the desired effect.

Blended Is Mode.

"Blended" make-up is the order of the modern Victorian complexion. This means two different shades of powder and rouge and this is the way it is done: First, a cream rouge in one of the new pink tones, then powder in hue to harmonize with the skin, next dry rouge the same color as the cream version, and last, a lighter-toned powder with a pinkish cast. The desired results are naturalness—one should aim to appear in the "pink of condition" with no obvious trace of having used make-up at all. It takes judgment in the selection of cosmetics and careful application.

If you think you can't wear all of the high-fashion shades, this prejudice can be overcome by subtle cosmetic study. The old slogan, "it isn't becoming" is no more—any color may be worn successfully by any woman; it is done with the correct wearing of powders, rouges, foundation, and eye-shadows. One may change her complexion as she changes her color scheme and type of costume, in these times.

Another cosmetic fashion this season is the "high hat make-up," to wear with the popular sky-rocketing hats. It is a very snooty affair consisting of raised eyebrows, aristocratic lipsticked mouth and rouge-tilted nose. The eyebrows are managed with tweezers and eyebrow pencil; the mouth with a clear, full-colored red coral lipstick that's carefully applied to outline the lips sharply.

Rouge Effects tilt.

The tilted, impudent nose is attained with just a hint of rouge under the tip. Clear gazing eyes are also essential to carry off the smart high hats with the proper air.

Before you even think of purchasing your fall wardrobe or donning one of the "Revolutionary" tall Napoleonic or stove-pipe hats, consider your face and complexion! The present styles are young, the new silhouettes are romantic, which means young lines in costumes, and youthful looking faces, adorned with the make-up in complete harmony as to color and period influence. No costume in the world, be it made of cloth of gold or silver and bordered with diamonds or sables can make a woman look beautifully chic and lovely if her face is out of harmony with the general picture.

Fashions in Complexion.

The Victorian for Period Costumes — Blended make-up in pink and light theme; powder, rouge, nails in rosy hues; delicate colored eye shadow; general feeling of naturalness.

Willoway Fan Due For Comeback Soon

A suppressed desire of many a lass is about to be realized. From all appearances she is going to have the chance to cast flirtatious glances over a willowy fan as her grandmother did. Of course, it is the anticipated coronation of King Edward that is bringing the long-forgotten ostrich feather fans into view, but they will fit in with the current fashion trend to perfection.

The original and modish thing at the moment is to get a mount of mother-of-pearl or carved ivory which has long been in the family. Have ostrich plumes fastened to the frame and fully garbed in your Empire frock you'll be as intriguing as Sally Rand with two fans but without the Empire frock.

The revival of the formal fan mode is such a very recent decree of Dame Fashion that so far we haven't even seen a citizen of Hollywood taking it up. However, our eyes are glued on such famous daughters of Great Britain as Merle Oberon, Binnie Barnes and Benita Hume to be taking it up.

Leaves Capital.

Miss Marie C. Noone, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Eckels, of Bridgeport, Conn., who has been the guest of Mrs. Francis B. Landsdale, in her home on Blagden avenue, has returned to her home in Connecticut.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

HERE WE ARE, well along into the second day of autumn, and from now until November 1 this town will be at its very finest. Now, with the sunshine so bright and the sea-breezed air so clear that you can see almost to the Azores from the top of the Empire State Building, Gotham is really glamorous and vivid. Even the harassed citizenry loses that strained look which is the hall-mark of the Manhattanite.

KATHARINE BRUSH.

Theaters and night clubs pop open like a string of firecrackers, Madison Square Garden opens its doors to the sportsmen, florists begin to lay in 'mums for the football girls, and the stores are cacophonous and jammed with eager sisters snapping at new raiment. Whatever its flaws and drawbacks at other times, at this period of the year New York is truly one of the world's great towns. If you're planning a visit, do try to make it in October. You'll see us at our best. In January, of course, we try to give the place back to the Indians, but they won't take it.

• • • •

Katharine Brush addicts will be glad to know that this colorful scribe is putting the final polish on a new book of long short stories. She lives and works in a huge modernistic apartment with her present husband, Banker Charles Winans, and a 14-year-old son, Tommy Brush, by her first marriage. In her two-story living room hangs a 7-foot portrait of herself, wearing a black dinner gown. Key is a bit embarrassed by this heroic picture, but her men-folks won't have it moved.

• • • •

"Young Man of Manhattan" was the book that made her famous. People used to say that the hero was modeled from Dick Vidmer, who broke into newspaper business writing sports in Washington, and is now on the Herald-Tribune here. This Kay denies. She says he was a composite portrait of several bright young men of journalism. Well, Katie, like mother, knows best!

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—One of our most prominent spinsters will celebrate her fiftieth birthday on October 28, and already a hundred civic groups are getting set to honor the old girl with band music, red fire and orations. She's Miss Liberty, who has stood on Bedloe's Island in the bay all these years holding up the torch, saying howdy and bidding good-by to millions. We take her for granted, but thousands on the Lower East Side still regard her as a symbol of every American ideal of liberty, equality and fraternity. I made a trip over to see her one hot afternoon, in July, and can report she's looking mighty fit—all joints holding together.

Times Square is made richer by the arrival of the stately and beautiful Helen Gahagan, who is being starred with High-Hat Hoofer Clifton Webb in a Theater Guild drammer. Helen now spends much of her time in Hollywood with her movie-actor spouse, Melvyn Douglas . . . I waved good-by the other day to Margaret Speaks, the fine radio singer, off for a brief European holiday before starting her season's trilling. Also on the Normandie, that trip, was big Alan Hale, the movie actor.

Appeals Court.

With the creation of a civil service court of appeals certain to be proposed at the next session of Congress, the experience of conciliation committees in three Government agencies should prove valuable.

These conciliation committees which have been set up at the Civil Service Commission, the State and Labor Departments, are entrusted with much the same functions within their respective departments that the proposed court of appeals would be charged with for the entire civil service. They hear all cases of supposedly unfair rating, alleged discriminations by supervisors, classification problems and any other employe complaints that may arise.

In every case the personnel of the committees has been evenly divided between supervisory officials and employe representatives. At the Civil Service Commission and State Department the committee has six members while at the Labor Department there are eight. In general employe representatives have been chosen with the advice of the different employes union.

The Civil Service Commission's committee has been in existence the longest—about three years. During that time roughly 30 cases have been heard, most of them dealing with efficiency ratings, grades, requests for better assignments and demotions. In about half of the cases, according to C. C. Hathaway, personnel officer of the commission, some remedial action has been taken. Although the commissioners are not bound to accept the committee's suggestions, in practice all recommendations have been adopted.

A similar attitude of making the committee's recommendations practically mandatory has been followed by the Secretary of Labor, Richardson Saunders, secretary to the Secretary explained. In the slightly less than two years that the labor conciliation committee has been in existence "a little more than a dozen cases" have been heard "with action favorable to the employe being taken in almost every case."

By favorable action, Mr. Saunders explained, was meant not only that the complaints of employes were judged founded on fact, but that where supervisors were found not to have discriminated against the employe, transfers were arranged. By an order of the Secretary all records of the department are accessible to the conciliant committee.

Although the State Department conciliation committee has been in existence for almost three years, only one case has been brought before it and that case is still pending.

Drawing conclusions from such limited experience in so few agencies would be risky. The administrators who were asked for their opinion said they thought the chief advantages of the conciliation committees were three-fold, that it acted as a safety valve for employes, that the presence of such a committee served to temper the acts of administrators, and by working on such committees employes gained a greater appreciation of the difficulties and problems of personnel administration.

What do the employes in these three agencies think of their respective conciliation committees? We will welcome any comment and, of course, will keep the identity of letter-writers confidential.

Walter L. Disbrow, of Navy Yard Lodge, No. 93, has volunteered to take it on the chin at Friday night's meeting of the District Department when President James G. Yaden runs for re-election.

Kitchen Herbs.

Winter is coming, but if you want to have a never-failing supply of such savory herbs as parsley, mint, watercress, chives and rose geranium on your own kitchen window, it's not too late.

W. R. Beattie, plant specialist of the Department of Agriculture, offers this formula. Plant your herbs immediately in the garden or in a flower box in the open so they can get a good start before the first frost arrives. When the cold does begin to set in, transfer the plants to a roomy box on a sunny window. The soil should consist of one part sharp sand, one part well-rotted cow manure and two or three parts of good garden loam, at least 6 inches deep with an inch layer of broken stones at the bottom for drainage. Although care should be taken not to crowd the plants all varieties of herbs may be grown together.

Amendments:

For the benefit of those A. F. G. E. members who are curious about the many changes written into the constitution by the convention, this in the main is what the new amendments will accomplish.

1. Abolish all provision for referendums or recall.
2. Give the executive council the power to oust any member of any individual lodge, to pass upon new applicants and virtually to approve the election of officers.
3. Enable the executive council to act through sub-committees.
4. Set up as grounds for suspension of any lodge the engaging "in any activity such as the contacting of individual members or committees of Congress, issuing statements for publication or distributing material to persons outside the federation or calculated to influence legislative measures directly affecting the employment conditions of members of the federation" except when approved by council.
5. Permits any individual member of the council to issue a "cease and desist" order against such actions by an individual lodge. Refusal to obey such an order being grounds for suspension.
6. Limits powers of president by a possible two-thirds veto by the council and to "by and with the advice and consent" of the council.
7. Sets up the convention as the final court of authority with no higher appeal to the membership provided.
8. Permits the election of the presidency to be moved up from the stipulated time on the last day of the convention by a majority vote of the convention.

Central Union Cheers Bakery Strike Accord

Month-and-Half Walkout Is Terminated by Efforts of Opposing Counsel.

A demonstration resembling a small scale political victory rally greeted the announcement at the Central Labor Union last night that the month-and-a-half-old strike at the Dutch Baker Boy, Inc., had been settled.

Robert Lester, busines agent of the bakers' union, told the delegates an agreement had been signed a few hours before which would end the strike of 18 drivers who had been out since August 6.

A joint statement issued by Paul Hannah, attorney for the bakery, and John Keane, attorney for the union, who engineered the settlement, said in part:

"We are glad that the labor trouble which has lasted over several years has been terminated. The company is gambling in making the settlement in the hope that union co-operation will enable the company to prosper and to pay the union scale of wages."

Co-operation was promised by all those present at the meeting last night and to that end the bakery was ordered stricken off the Central Labor Union's unfair list. The settlement was hailed by all those present as an outstanding victory for labor.

D. C. Dow, chairman of the educational committee of the Central Labor Union, presented a report in answer to the action of the Board of Education last week in its ruling against certain vocational teachers.

A movement was started at the meeting to have a new workers compensation bill passed by the coming session of Congress. The present law was attacked as being too dependent on findings of the insurance companies.

Bogus Bill Charge Holds 4 Suspects

Four colored men were held for the grand jury yesterday when they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of possessing counterfeit $20 bills.

According to testimony before Turnage, Richardson was arrested and identified as the passer of several bogus bills. He was held under $3,000 bail.

Amebrs, held on $2,000 bond, is alleged to have had about 30 of the $20 bills in his home at the time of his arrest. The others, each found with two bills, also were held under $2,000 bond.

'Good Samaritan's Friendship Ended By Death of Chum

Death, which lurked in 3 feet of water off Hains Point, has ended a beautiful friendship.

For, as police and the coroner yesterday continued their investigation of the mysterious drowning of George L. Shinker, 26-year-old hotel doorman, who succumbed in the shallows off the seawall Sunday on a midnight party, his pal of six weeks looked sorrowfully at his body.

"He was my friend," said J. J. Leonard, Post newsboy. "He was a fine boy and lived up to his obligations."

Leonard said he met Shinker on a rainy night about six weeks ago. Shinker had just come to town. He had no place to stay.

"I offered him half of my bed and fed him. He appreciated it and paid me back every penny I had lent him. He was good to me. He is the only man I've ever helped who thanked me for it."

As Leonard sorrowed for his buddy, both park and metropolitan police reported there were no bruises on Shinker's body. He was an expert swimmer, and officials said there was very little water in his lungs.

84,500 Answer School Bell; Gain of 1,342 Augurs Record

A Peak of 90,000 to 95,000 Is Forecast on Basis of First Day's Enrollment; Overcrowding May Force Shifts at Three Institutions.

Boys and girls in the District, 84,500 of them, reported to school yesterday. This indicates that first-day attendance exceeded that of last year by 1,342, and that the enrollment this year may reach a record peak of between 90,000 and 95,000.

Although authorities were prepared to make transfers of either teachers or pupils if such changes were warranted, none of the schools was overcrowded to this extent yesterday. First Assistant Superintendent of Schools Robert L. Haycock pointed out, however, that as enrollments continue to come in, the Barnard and Whittier schools may be inadequate to meet the demand and transfers will have to be made.

1,800 at Roosevelt.

Roosevelt High School is another facing the problem of overcrowding. Built to accommodate 1,600 pupils, it has already enrolled more than 1,800.

Because a large number of pupils entering the system for the first time, failed to obtain certificates of admission last week, some delay was encountered in enrollment in all schools. Admission certificates were given out the last three days of last week.

At the Anacostia Junior High School, where a "no home work" plan is to be carried out, students reported for work half an hour earlier than at other schools. The experiment designated as one for "supervision study," was conducted for the last six weeks of the spring term and probably will be continued throughout this year.

A new school, the Bundy, on O street between Fourth and Fifth streets, was opened. Classes to be held there will eliminate 18 part-time classes in other colored schools in that area, but there were 18 on part-time there and the schools affected will be obliged to take classes transferred from Cardozo.

Another colored school was opened in Southwest Washington, where an addition to the Randall Junior High School began operating yesterday.

In all schools, classes and enrollment will continue without interference except tomorrow, which the Board of Education has decreed as a holiday so that youngsters may see the Grand Army of Republic parade. Since the holiday comes almost on the heels of the opening day, officials said they did not expect a full enrollment until Thursday.

Health Work Begun.

Meanwhile, the District Health Department began its most serious job of looking after the health of school children with a staff of 21 short of Congressional authorization.

Officials explained that the inability of the Civil Service Commission to submit an eligibility list had retarded the appointments.

Commission Not Blamed.

No blame was placed on the Civil Service Commission by Health Department officials. It was said that the demand for a high-caliber nursing personnel slowed up the program.

All nurses available, however, yesterday started their program of visiting the homes of children who are found by medical inspectors to be ill.

The city has been divided into four districts, and the nurses are divided among these areas.

All of the 49 nurses are not available for school service, however, as many of them are assigned to public clinics on tuberculosis and venereal diseases and to maternity stations.

512 Cases Cut Off Relief Roll During August

A total of 512 active cases was dropped by the District Public Assistance Division last month for varied reasons, but the number of families receiving direct aid was reduced only 18.

Miss Alice M. Hill, director of the division, reported to Elwood Street, welfare director, that general relief cases numbered 4,777 in August as compared with 4,795 in July.

The transfer of many cases from relief rolls to old age and needy blind pensions were chiefly responsible for the reduction, although employment was obtained for some.

Applicants certified for old-age pensions numbered 796, as compared with 582 in July. New names placed on needy blind pension rolls amounted to 64 as against 47 in July.

"There is still a long waiting list of applicants for both old-age assistance and aid for the needy blind," Miss Hill said, "on which the public assistance division, limited by Congressional appropriation, is making slow, if steady, progress."

The 512 cases that were closed were dropped for the following reasons:

Employability, 149; employment or other adjustment, 123; substitution of old-age or needy blind pensions, 75; development of adequate income or other resources, 49; assigned to WPA, 24; deceased, 22; service completed, 22; referred to other agencies, 21; lack of co-operation, 3; insurance adjustment, 3.

The public assistance division also rejected 1,514 applications for unemployment aid for various reasons.

J. C. Rodgers to Head Chevy Chase Civic Unit

J. C. Rodgers was nominated for president of the Community Association of Chevy Chase, Md., last night. He will succeed H. B. Atkinson, who declined another term.

Other officers nominated are Mrs. E. F. Erk, vice president, and H. G. Lloyd, secretary and treasurer. Atkinson, Rodgers and Lloyd were appointed delegates to the third District Maryland Civic Federation.

Pin Game Owners Face ABC Action

Three hundred liquor dealers in Washington will be warned this week by inspectors of the Alcohol Beverage Control Board to remove all claw and pin ball machines from their premises under threat of loss of license.

Mrs. Agnes K. Mason, a member of the A. B. C. board, explained that the board has ruled the game machines illegal under a provision of the liquor law which states that holders of on-sale licenses for beer and liquor may not conduct any other activity that is not linked with the selling of food.

The licensees will be granted a reasonable period to remove the machines.

Trial in Crash Fatal to 3 Opens

Beaver, Pa., Sept. 21 (AP).—District Attorney Robert E. McCreary charged today brakes had been disconnected on the front wheels of a truck which plunged down a steep hill and overturned on an automobile killing three persons.

McCreary made his assertion in opening the trial of W. Mason McCullough and Alfred E. Brain, of Detroit, on charges of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of Mr. and Mrs. Bert M. Bromley and their son Bertram, August 6.

Msgr. Gavin in Hospital, Suffering From Cold

The Right Rev. Mgr. Patrick C. Gavin, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, is in Georgetown Hospital suffering a "severe cold," it was learned yesterday.

Mgr. Gavin, one of the most widely known priests in the Capital, was taken to the hospital a week ago on advice of physicians, who feared pneumonia might set in. He is 64.

About a year ago the prelate was stricken with bronchial trouble. It was thought he had fully recovered, but last week he suffered a slight relapse.

Former Janitor Held in Slaying Of U. S. Typist

John Williams Is Arrested for Questioning; Clews Nearly Exhausted.

Admitting they had practically exhausted all clews in the brutal slaying of Mrs. Florence Goodwin, 43-year-old Government typist, police arrested John Williams, alias Norman Robinson, colored, a former janitor, for questioning.

Police have sought Williams since Mrs. Goodwin's battered body was found dead in her room at 1102 Sixteenth street northwest, early Friday morning. Williams was being questioned secretly in the Twelfth Precinct Station late yesterday.

Acting chief of detectives, Capt. Ira E. Keck, said Williams' activities will be checked and an effort will be made to learn if the man has a set of keys to the Sixteenth street rooming house. Williams was employed as a janitor by Mrs. Goodwin about three months ago. Police refused to comment when asked if Williams had been discharged as a result of a disagreement with Mrs. Goodwin.

Statements from Roomers.

Meanwhile, Detective Sergt. Jerry Flaherty began the task of taking statements from all the roomers in the house. He questioned Alphonzo Billups, roomer in the house, who knocked on Mrs. Goodwin's door shortly after 6 a. m. and received no response. Billups, Flaherty said, accounted for all his movements, signed a statement clearing up several minor details, and left Police Headquarters.

Statements were taken from the other roomers last night.

Capt. Keck said the investigation was practically at a standstill until the results of chemical analysis of the material under the fingernails of Mrs. Goodwin and Carl D. Chase, colored, 28, a janitor in the house, were turned over to police.

Results of this analysis probably will be the turning point in the case, police said. Experts will be able to determine if the slayer is white or colored from any particles of skin that may be under fingernails.

Chase, whom Keck says has "many things to explain," still maintained his innocence yesterday.

Police Secret on Arrest.

Police refused to divulge where they had arrested John Williams or under what circumstances. It is thought, however, his whereabouts was learned from Harry Tipton, colored, who was seized Sunday morning on Ninth street northwest. Tipton was arrested when he made several inquiries about Williams. He probably will be released soon, police stated.

A coroner's jury was sworn in over the body of Mrs. Goodwin and the body was released to be shipped to her home in Lansing, Mich.

The dead woman's will, dated July 1, 1935, was filed in District Court yesterday by the Police Department.

In the will the proceeds of a $2,000 insurance policy were left to her father, Frank F. Dougherty, of Los Angeles; another insurance policy for the same amount was left to a brother, Walter, of Detroit, and the money accumulated in her Government retirement fund was left to her husband, Benton Goodwin.

Efforts are being made by police to locate Mr. Goodwin, from whom, friends told police, Mrs. Goodwin was divorced. Mrs. Goodwin's will stated her husband was "traveling around the world at the present time."

Men U.S. Workers Outnumber Women By 25,000 in D. C.

Almost 25,000 more men than women are employed in the Government service in the District, it was revealed yesterday in the semi-annual report of the Civil Service Commission.

Of the 117,103 on the Federal pay roll here, 70,105 are men and 46,998 are women.

The ratio of women to men in the District is higher than in the rest of the Nation, where there are more than 5 men to every woman employed.

District agencies employing more women than men are Treasury, Civil Service Commission, Employes Compensation Commission, Veterans' Administration, Farm Credit Administration and Social Security Board.

D.C. Woman, 70, Killed by Auto, Bringing Toll for Year to 60

Colored Cab Driver Faces Inquest Today; Two Youths Held for Manslaughter; One Motorist Absolved, Another Charged.

An aged woman was struck and killed by an automobile here yesterday, bringing the District's 1936 fatalities to 60.

The accident occurred at almost the same time the District grand jury was indicting two youths, one 17 and the other 20, for manslaughter as the result of fatal injuries inflicted by their automobiles in crashes in the metropolitan area.

Another motorist was absolved as the result of a traffic death, while a second was held under the negligent homicide act.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gordon Bailey, 70, of 1604 Q street northwest, was struck by a taxicab operated by Oscar Turner, colored, 33, of the 1200 block of S street northwest, who was driving south on Eighteenth street. She was taken to Emergency Hospital and pronounced dead. The body was identified at the Morgue by her daughter, Miss Marguerite Bailey.

Turner was held at the Third Precinct Station for a coroner's inquest today.

Two colored men were arrested yesterday in Leonardtown, Md., in connection with a hit-and-run accident Sunday in which Mrs. Josephine Muswick, 60, of Little Rock, Ark., was probably fatally injured.

Hit While Crossing Street.

Mrs. Muswick was knocked down by an automobile while crossing Louisiana avenue at First street northwest. She is at Emergency Hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull and internal injuries, and physicians yesterday held little hope for her recovery.

John W. Hamilton, 19, the 1700 block of Eighteenth street northwest, was accused of causing the death of George F. Awalt, 29, Naval Hospital pharmacist, at Lanier place and Ontario road, September 1.

Witnesses declared Hamilton fled in a stolen car after the accident. Hamilton also has been charged with violating the national motor vehicle theft act.

Bernard Lee Newsom, 20, of the 1200 block Girard street northwest, was the other accused on a manslaughter charge. His car allegedly struck Daniel Spaulding, 32, of 1003 I street southeast, at Eleventh and K streets southeast, August 27. Witnesses said Spaulding was knocked 75 feet.

The motorist released after an inquest was Mark P. Sullivan, 43, Indianapolis salesman, whose car figured in an accident resulting in the death of William O. Baker, 42, Clarendon, Va., cab driver.

Testimony to a coroner's jury revealed that Sullivan's car collided with Baker's cab while being backed out of an alley at Fourteenth and K streets northwest. An altercation ensued and Sullivan drove away. Baker leaped to the side of the car and was thrown off when the car came to a sudden stop at Fourteenth and N streets northwest. He was taken to the hospital in a passing car with Sullivan following. Sullivan said he lost the car and, being a stranger here, did not know where to go. He left town for Buffalo, N. Y.

Sullivan read of Baker's death in The Washington Post and communicated with an attorney here. He returned for questioning September 5. The jury held the death was due to an accident.

Held in Death of Woman.

In the second inquest, the jury held Louis Lombardy, 43, of the 900 block Jackson street northwest, under the negligent homicide act in the death of Mrs. Mary Maguire, who died in Casualty Hospital August 24. Mrs. Maguire, who was 79, lived in the 3100 block Tenth street northeast.

Witnesses testified Lombardy's atuomobile ran over the sidewalk and struck Mrs. Maguire while she was mowing the lawn in front of her home July 8. Lombardy said he lost control of the machine and could not stop.

The driving privileges of 20 out-of-town motorists were suspended yesterday by the revocations board.

Thirty-day suspensions went to Crisfield E. Kearns, LaPlata, Md., 45 miles; Walter A. Keyser, Baltimore, 45 miles; Martin W. Schlising, Catonsville, Md., 44 miles; William W. Smith, Reeistertown, Va., 42 miles; Gilbert Schat, Baltimore, 42 miles; Seymour Williams, Wayne, Pa., 48 miles.

Fifteen-day suspensions went to Asa E. Tuttle, Alexandria, 32 miles; Robert H. Clark, Rochester, N. Y., 38 miles; Charles E. Dement, Takoma Park, Md., 30 miles; Vivian Faulkner, Brookmont, Md., 32 miles; Harold E. Filbert, Baltimore, 40 miles; Joseph B. Frey, Baltimore, 40 miles; William H. Howerton, Moorhead City, N. C., 38 miles; William R. Kruse, Baltimore, 40 miles; Thomas Moody, Lakeland, Md., 39 miles; Donald J. Moser, Alexandria, 40 miles; Earl H. Plummer, Kensington, Md., 26 miles; William A. Posey, Chickamuxen, Md., 40 miles; Mabel Robinson, Jenkintown, Pa., 40 miles; Wilson W. Tobin, Fairfax, Va., 38 miles.

Traffic Chief Issues Warning For Children

School days started yesterday—and "danger days" will follow.

This came as a warning last night from William A. Van Duzer, traffic director. More than 100,000 youngsters, he cautioned, will be on the streets during daily periods from now until next June.

In class, these children are taught the dangers of highway traffic. And District motorists, Van Duzer said, must be taught the dangers of highway carelessness.

To protect Washington's young pedestrians the traffic director said, drivers must be ever alert for the unexpected. Numbered heavily among the city's traffic death toll last year were heedless children who darted into the streets from behind trees and parked automobiles.

Parents, Van Duzer continued, must do their part to safeguard their children. Each youngster should be instructed in the home to cross streets only at crosswalks and confine their play to the sidewalks and playgrounds, he said.

The traffic "danger period," Van Duzer declared, started last month, and according to previous records will continue through December. Accident deaths last month totaled eight—with six during the last nine days of the month. A total of 1,025 accidents was reported during the same period.

Last Saturday, police recorded 50 accidents within the city limits. This is the greatest number in a single day in recent months, it was reported.

'Last Veteran' Dies.

New Britain, Conn., Sept. 21 (AP).—Dr. Thomas Mullivan, 95, the last of New Britain's Civil War veterans, died tonight. He continued practicing medicine until his death.

Party Brought Her Unwanted Spouse, Wife Tells Court

After a party she attended, Jean H. Johnson, 1923 S street northwest, found herself with a husband, rather than just the usual headache, she declared in a suit for annulment filed yesterday in District Court.

"She did partake of certain alcoholic beverages wherein she became very dizzy and was unable to clearly comprehend what was transpiring about her," Mrs. Johnson's bill of complaint said.

Mrs. Johnson asked the court, through Louis Shapiro, her attorney, to put an end to her marriage to Luther C. Johnson, of Clinton, N. C., alleging in her petition that from the time of the party until after the ceremony was performed at Dillon, S. C., she "had no idea of what was taking place."

She learned she was a married woman for the first time the next day when friends told her of events of the previous night, she alleges in her suit. She left Clinton and returned at once to the District, she said.

Commissioners To End Budget Slashing Today

Education Board, School Officials Will Defend Estimates for 1938.

The District Commissioners today expect to conclude the task of slashing departmental estimates preparatory to submitting their 1938 budget to the Budget Bureau.

Members of the Board of Education and public school administration will come before the Commissioners to plead for the $17,638,619 estimates for schools, including new buildings and grounds.

While a substantial slice in this total is certain, school officials hope to obtain indorsement of many of the new building requests for inclusion in the supplemental budget that will be dependent upon a generous Federal contribution.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, president of the board, explained that the District heads are sympathetic with school requests but that they are confronted with a serious fiscal problem which necessitates strict economy.

"A considerable reduction in the school estimates will be necessary," he said, "but I am not prepared to say how much at this time."

Thirty-one school projects, including drafting of plans for unauthorized buildings and alterations to present structures, are listed in the school estimates. The total request for buildings is $4,024,000. The current year's appropriation was but $1,541,500.

Seventeen land purchases are recommended at a cost of $1,468,000. The appropriation for this year was only $26,000.

Editor Marries Nurse He Met in Hospital

Marion J. Rich, editor of the Young Democrat, and Martha E. Keith, who nursed him back to health through an attack of pneumonia at Garfield Hospital, were married Saturday, it was learned yesterday.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. H. Zerhusen in the rectory of St. Mary's Catholic Church. The couple will live at 1310 Fairmont street northwest.

2 Actors Miss Drowning and Publicity, Too

Producer Nearly Swoons When He Sees 'Rushes;' Other Film Items.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, Sept. 21.—Trem Carr's solicitous henchmen scared the producer stiff by breaking the news via daily rushes that two of his actors had just missed drowning.

Carr eased into a projection room chair to see a scene from a logging picture under way on the Stanislaus River in northern California, in which John Wayne was required to "save" 9-year-old Tommy Bupp from drowning.

On the screen young Tommy dropped into the water and disappeared. A moment later Wayne dived in—and also disappeared. For almost a minute nothing was visible but tumbling water. Then the boy's head appeared, gasping, eyes popping.

"Good Lord," shouted Carr, "that isn't acting—the kid's drowning!"

Then Wayne appeared, struggled to Tommy's side and towed him with difficulty toward shore, four production men wading into the picture to help him the last few feet.

A few minutes later Carr was on the long distance telephone demanding of an assistant director why they took such chances, and why he had not been notified of the near accident.

"We didn't want to worry you, Mr. Carr," the assistant explained.

"There was a bad under-current there we didn't know about, and Wayne and the boy almost drowned, but we got 'em out all right."

"Why, then," Carr asked, "was there nothing in the newspapers about it?"

"Aw, no paper would use that," he was told. "That drowning gag is the oldest publicity stunt in the world."

Actor Errol Flynn, a fair amateur tennis player, who entered the men's doubles at the Pacific Southwest tournament just for the fun of a few competitive sets, is busy reflecting on the irony of fate. First opponents drawn by Flynn and his partner, Elmer Griffin, were Fred Perry and Francis X. Shields.

Producer Edward Chodorov halted before a white-garbed man in a corridor of Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, puzzled a moment, then ventured:

"Haven't I met you somewhere, doctor?"

"Yes, I think you have," replied the young man. "But I'm not a doctor. I'm Irving Kline, your assistant cameraman."

Enterprising David O. Selznick will preview "Garden of Allah" before a few selected admirers in an airliner bound for San Francisco, because he says, "It will demonstrate the feasibility of motion-picture projection in the air." But most of all it demonstrates Mr. Selznick's flair for publicity.

About The Showshops

(With Gerald G. Gross, Batting for Nelson B. Bell)

THE film future of Robert Stevenson, differences between English and American screen children, potentialities of the union of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Twentieth Century-Fox and Gaumont-British—these are a few of the interesting discussion topics suggested by "Nine Days a Queen."

This week's motion picture at the Earle, brief and unostentatious though it may be, is juicy argument fodder. Maybe it will be a box-office hit here and elsewhere and maybe it won't, but there can be no doubt that this 78-minute picturization of an exciting chapter in pre-Elizabethan history offers a splendid excuse to do some plain and fancy speculating.

Will Nova Pilbeam successfully bridge the gap between child and adult roles without interruption of her movie career, a feat which is almost without parallel?

Can the American public find a place in its affections for the picture that places the story above all else, as in "Nine Days a Queen," or is it hopelessly wedded to our "star" system in which the screen play is fashioned with the performers uppermost in mind? (Gable pictures, Garbo pictures, Crawford pictures, etc.)

Why are the English better than us at historical drama; can an inexpensively made film hope to compete with lavish productions; will American moviegoers continue, as a whole, to look askance at those products which have slight love interest and unhappy endings? And who is Robert Stevenson?

William Lewin, writing in the New York Times, gives an interesting sketch of this 31-year-old distant relative of Robert Louis Stevenson who is chiefly responsible for the consummate artistry of "Nine Days a Queen."

The author-director of this picture began film work in 1928, writes Mr. Lewin, who recently returned from an inspection tour of British studios in his capacity as chairman of the motion picture committee of the National Education Association's Department of Secondary Education.

Interviewed by Mr. Lewin, Stevenson expressed the following revolutionary ideas, all of which are put to the test in his first directorial assignment, "Nine Days a Queen": (1) A "star," or two or three "stars," is not necessary, that is, acting honors may be divided among half a dozen or more characters; (2) a costume picture does not have to be expensive and elaborate, "with a cast of thousands;" (3) history need not be distorted to creat drama; (4) characters taken from history need not be reshaped to fit the personalities of the performers; (5) prolonged conferences and author collaborations are not requisite to scenario writing; (6) patrons are not averse per se to pictures ending unhappily and containing scant love interest, and (7) the technique of scenario writing should not be curbed by convention but, rather, be allowed free play to conform with the subject.

Stevenson was born in London, educated at Shrewsbury and St. John's, won the John Bernard Seeley prize for aeronautics in 1926, is married to Anna Lee, an English actress, and lives in the last house remaining on Bankside, Southwark, a region associated with Shakespeare.

You should be hearing a lot, a whole lot, more of him in the future but right now he is a rank unknown in this country. ("Nine Days a Queen," incidentally, has not yet opened in New York.) In fact, there is not a photograph of him in all Washington.

At the tail end of our Palace review in last Saturday's Post, we said the Our Gang comedy entitled "Bored of Education," which is one of the supplementary shorts on "The General Died at Dawn" program, is "pretty bad." So we were taken down several pegs Sunday night when, returning for a second helping of "The General," we ran into an avalanche of b-l-y laughter caused by the words and antics of Spanky McFarland and his confederates.

The reason we were disappointed in "Bored of Education," seemingly the only one who was, is that the director's command is altogether too noticeable in the actions of his juvenile players. They strain too much to get the desired effect, their motives and pranks being natural ones but overly exaggerated in the execution.

So here comes the postman with a Hollywood letter in which Gordon Douglas, director of Hal Roach's "Our Gang," gives a few of his views on kid pictures.

"In my opinion," he says, "comedy revolving around children is composed of gags which are not only possible but quite probable to occur in a group of children in any neighborhood. (True enough).

"To be sure-fire, a gag in a juvenile cast picture must have a double edge, appealing to children and adults alike . . . To appeal to an adult, these stories must be so natural and so true that they bring back the adult's own childhood."

But is your desire to produce "Our Gang" comedies "so natural and so true" fulfilled by making your child prodigies screw up their faces ridiculously and quote proverbs, Mr. Douglas?

Joe Lewis, the clown, is planning another fling at Chicago cafes. Lewis, is the comic who was knifed during Capone's night club war. Before then he was warned that he'd be shot if he dared take the floor to entertain. Joe took the floor, a waiter dropped a tray—and Joe fainted.

Julie Jenner, whose name was mentioned in the front pages recently, opened at the Paradise Restaurant the other night. Julie receives feature-billing, and is extremely proud of her new station. Last night, attired in her silver-fox cape, she left the cafe in company with a friend to whom she had promised a lift home in her private car . . . They walked to the corner where the car had been parked, and couldn't find it. The elegantly attired Miss Jenner then proceeded to the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station, tilted her nose aloofly, and told the lieutenant, "I wish to report a stolen car." The officer jotted down all the details and broadcast the alarm—while Julie smoked a perfumed cigarette. Ten minutes later the police report was complete. . . . "We've located your car, ma'am," the officer informed . . . "Excellent work, my good man," Julie complimented, haughtily, "where is it?" . . . "It's in the hands," she was told, "of the Finance Company!"

The Red Pavilion

By Pauline Stiles

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

Confronts Reporter.

Mal had a rough hewn Mexican table placed between two columns that gave on a wide, arched view of the desert. They sat in Mexican chairs painted yellow, red, purple and green, and ate an excellent luncheon as gayly as possible under a barrage of whispers and stares. Ellen was thrilled with pride to be thus seen. David sulked a trifle. Pam ate her luncheon as serenely as if she were alone on a mountaintop. And Mal, missing nothing that took place throughout the dining room, brought to the task such an array of skilled alertness that Pam began to understand something of the strain and effort his work cost him.

As they were leaving to wander out into the sunlight across the garden, he autographed menus for most of the people he passed, and was then approached by a brisk young man, bent on collecting an interview for his local paper. An unheard of thing! Mallard, the recluse, lunching with friends in a public place, and succumbing more than graciously to autograph hounds.

"Beg pardon," he coughed as he hurried after Mal, who neither stopped nor turned. "Can you give me a statement, Mr. Mallard, about the recent scare over your——"

"Mr. Mallard's guests would appreciate it, if they were allowed to enjoy a desert outing in at least some privacy."

Pam swept by him, took Mal's arm and walked hurriedly forward in an effort to overtake Ellen and David, who had preceded them down one of the walks.

"If you are made unhappy by coming out to this place," Pam said, "I'll never forgive myself——"

"Pam, I could never be unhappy on a jaunt with you—even if I have to share you. . . . But to have the whole world oggling at and speculating about you, because of me—that would be intolerable to me! Miserably shackled as I am. Unable to be free—human——" He walked on a few paces in silence. Then, vehemently: "Pam, I've got to talk to you. I thought I could wait. I can't. Let us steal off somewhere alone. Look at me. Are you——"

Tosses Away Cigarette.

"Mal—Ellen's calling you. Wants you to join her in the swing."

He flung away a cigarette as if he were flinging away his continually frustrated desires with it.

"Would it be a lie if I told her you called me first?"

"No, Mal, it wouldn't, I think I'm always calling you. I'll meet you later——"

"Where?"

"Down by that gate—under the tamarack trees. . . . Don't forget that you made this a foursome" Pam added dryly.

"I haven't forgotten. But I overestimated my strength!"

Inwardly fuming, Mal followed Pamella across the lawn to join David and Ellen at a ring of chairs grouped about an iron table. Before he knew it, he found himself seated beside Ellen in a swing, very much the center of her attention. The afternoon drifted on in sun and haze and creeping violet shadows. Mal joined less and less in the talk, retiring at last behind a wall of silence. During an argument between Ellen and David about taking a walk, he got up abruptly and excused himself.

He hurried to the far outskirts of the La Quinta oasis where an open gateway gave on a path that led off across the desert. It was flanked by two curved cement seats over which drooped some branches of the tamarack trees growing along the garden wall.

Mal dropped down on one of the seats. It was here that he was to meet Pamella. Let her not be long! He sat at such an angle that he couldn't see her coming toward him over the desert path beyond the gate. And suddenly Pam made it impossible for him to see her from any angle, by slipping from sight on the other side of the wall separating them, to stand uncertain what to do among the smoky trees growing there.

Mal bowed forward, resting his head in his hands propped by his elbows on his knees. He felt his self-control crumbling and had some notion of trying to recapture it and get hold of himself in this moment of quiet and sunshine. He was mad with longing to take Pamella into his arms—this first woman he had ever known whose spirit faced his and responded to it without the difficulty of putting thoughts into words that had to be spoken and heard.

Then he felt a hand laid upon his head. He looked up, his thoughts blazing in his face along with a desperate hope. He saw Ellen leaning over him.

"This is nice," Mal said quickly and brushed a hand over his face as if to wipe out what was written there. "I thought you were off on a tramp with David."

"David! While he stopped to buy some cigarettes, I slipped out—to find you—to be with you——"

Tough for David.

"That is good luck for me, my dear, but a little hard on David."

"How can you be so wonderful and so unselfish when you're so lonely?"

"O, but you're mistaken," Mal said lightly, while his eyes took on a wary look. "I'm neither wonderful, nor unselfish. How can I be lonely or forsaken—which—believe me, I certainly am not—when I've constantly so many agreeable things to think about." He made her a mocking little bow.

"Don't!" Ellen whispered. "Stop treating me like a child to be indulgently laughed at! You've just a notion that David's got a first claim on me. Why, I only knew him a few hours before I met you. He was just a sort of destiny that brought us together."

"Ellen, how old are you "

"Now, don't begin that!" Ellen replied, almost sobbing.

"It makes a good place to begin," Mal said so seriously that Ellen was silenced. "You're about 20, aren't you? When you were a baby, I was going off to war and getting pretty unpleasantly battered up. Almost 18 years older. When you're my age, I'll be a deaf old man, losing my teeth——"

"Don't laugh at me!"

"Believe me, I don't feel in the least like laughing. Ellen, why did you want to lunch in the dining room today in the midst of everybody? And why did I hanker for a quiet corner where I could kick off my shoes? Because you're young and love dash and excitement. And I'm getting along to middle age and daily becoming more enamoured of ingle nooks and carpet slippers."

"Don't be silly! Didn't I meet you in the liveliest New Year's Eve crowd in the city?"

"And do you know why I was there?"

"You were there because you'd lost your best friend and were so sick of grief and loneliness you couldn't stand seeing the New Year in alone with just your precious inglenooks and carpet slippers."

"Ellen," Mal reached over and took her hand, "you have surprised and touched and, yes, distressed me very greatly. You see, Ellen, I'm walled in by some insurmountable difficulties. These make it impossible for me to allow myself to care for any woman—no matter how much I might wish to."

Swiss Brewers Fight Tax.

Geneva, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—The League of Swiss Breweries circulated a petition today against a proposal to raise the tax on beer 9 centimes—roughly 3 cents—and citing as one of the most important arguments the "tragic consequences of prohibition on health and morals of Americans."

Culbertson On Bridge

Clever Card Locating.

An intimate knowledge of opponents' bidding tendencies is invaluable, not only as a guide in the bidding itself, but in the play that follows. It goes without saying that any player, expert or average, can make better decisions (whether to double for penalties or to go on with his own suit) if he knows from experience just how much credence he may place in the opponents' bids.

But the average player too often fails to translate his opponents' bids into the terms of his own correct line of play. That the two bear a close relationship to each other is undeniable. The fault probably lies in the philosophy of the average declarer. Once the dummy is spread before him, the bidding (except the final contract) is deliberately put out of mind—on the vague theory, I suppose, that it has served its purpose and now must be effaced to allow full concentration on the play. Any one who subscribes to that theory would not find the key to the proper play in today's hand.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 heart*	Pass	2 hearts	2 spades
4 hearts	4 spades	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

*East-West were not using the two-way three-bid.

East's four spade double was not the best bid at his command. A pass, virtually forcing under the circumstances, would have been correct. West could have made five hearts by guessing the diamond distribution.

West opened the ace of hearts and, when he saw the dummy, was hard put to it for a second lead. But two things convinced him that declarer had two hearts: the fact that East doubled four spades instead of passing the decision to him; and that East played the nine of hearts on the ace. So West continued with the heart queen. Dummy ruffed and led a low diamond; East ducked and declarer's queen went to West's ace. West returned a diamond; dummy played the nine, East the ten, and declarer ruffed. Now the spade king was laid down; West showed out; East took the ace and returned the three of spades. Dummy's eight took this trick and now another low diamond was led and ruffed by declarer, who then drew East's remaining trump.

At this stage, three tricks having been lost, the success of the contract pivoted on losing no club trick. Normally, of course, there is only one logical way to play the North-South club combination: a lead to the ace and a finesse back to the king-jack. But the declarer had been watching the fall of the cards with an eagle eye, and now proceeds to fill in the gaps from inference. West had led the heart ace. There could have been no reason on this hand for him to conceal an ace-king holding; therefore he didn't have the king (which his second play of the queen confirmed) and that card was in East's hand. East had actually shown the ace-ten of spades and the series of diamond plays clearly established that East had started with the king-ten of diamonds. That was all declarer had to know! Why, East couldn't have the club queen; If he had held it, he would have had 2½ honor tricks, plus at least two tens, and 4-3-3-3 distribution—he would certainly have responded to a heart bid with two no trump, rather than a mere single raise.

Once declarer had satisfied himself that West must hold the club queen and that a normal finesse could not succeed, there was only one alternative left him—a backward finesse. He therefore led the club jack; West covered; dummy's ace won, and then a club was returned and the nine spot finessed. Declarer was lucky to find the ten in East's hand, but it must be noted that if West had held it with the queen, nothing could be done about it. The sound reasoning that located the queen deserved a little luck!

Red Sox Here Today, Seek Revenge

Hopes to Jolt Harris' Club Out of First-Division Dream.

With nothing to lose and scenting the sweetness of revenge, Boston's Red Sox will inhabit Griffith Stadium for the next three afternoons fanatically intent on jolting the Nats out of the first division.

Manager Bucky Harris for two years now has made no secret of his delight whenever his Nats beat the team that discharged him as manager, and against the Red Sox the Nats always played the game to the limit in an effort to blight any pennant hopes the Sox may have harbored.

Eleven times in 19 games this season the Nats have triumphed over Joe Cronin's Boston Club to play a leading part in the collapse of the Sox pennant hopes. Counted out of the running themselves, the Nats took great joy in despoiling the chances of the Boston Club.

Situation Reversed.

But the situation now is strangely reversed. The Red Sox, out of the running, virtually, for even a first-division berth, encounter the Nats at a time when Washington is struggling for second or third place. Any little thing the Sox can contribute to the Nats' failure will be a source of great satisfaction to the Boston Club.

Manager Joe Cronin thus will pull no punches against the Nats in the series starting today. At the stage of the season when managers of most second-division clubs experiment with rookie pitchers, Cronin will employ only his regular hurlers against Washington.

The Nats confidently expect to see only Cronin's aces—Lefty Grove, Wes Ferrell and Fritz Ostermueller—on the mound here. If they get a look at a rookie Boston pitcher, it will be only in a relief role, they hear.

Today's game and the remainder of the six games on the Nats' home schedule will start at 3 p. m. instead of 3:15 p. m., club officials announced yesterday.

Two and a half games out of second place, but only a half game out of third, the Nats will send Pete Appleton to the mound against the Sox in the series opener. Joe Cascarella and Jimmy DeShong are slated for future pitching assignments against the Sox.

School's Grid Hero Dies From Injuries

The 15-year-old sophomore collapsed in an automobile Saturday a few minutes after plunging over his opponents' goal line in the final 60 seconds of play. His team won, 12 to 6.

Physicians said death was from a fractured skull and a hemorrhage of the brain but officials said they were uncertain when he received the injury. They asserted he showed no indication of having been hurt during the game, playing the full time.

Indians Smash Bucs In Exhibition, 11 to 2

Cleveland, Sept. 21 (AP).—The American League Cleveland Indians crushed the Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National League, beneath an 11-to-2 score in an exhibition game here today. Bauers and Welch hurled for Pittsburgh, while Hudlin went the route for the Tribe.

The score:

Dudas Restrained.

Cards Defeat Cubs, 5-4; In 2d Place

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP).—The battling gas house gang from St. Louis bounced back into second place in the National League today by licking the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 4, and at the same time further aided the New York Giants championship cause.

The Cardinal triumph, achieved with the aid of an error by Billy Herman in the ninth inning, left them six full games behind the Giants, with the Cubs another half-game back. The Giants need to win only two of their remaining eight games to finish ahead of the Cubs, even if the latter should win their final six. The best the Cubs could do would be a tie if they won their five remaining contests while New York lost eight.

The Cubs not only dropped to third place, but left themselves work to do to keep out of fourth. They finished the day two games ahead of the Pittsburgh Pirates, with whom they open a three-game series tomorrow.

Perry and Budge Reach 3d Round

Los Angeles, Sept. 21 (AP).—Frederick J. Perry, of England, and favorites to reach the singles final J. Donald Budge, of Oakland, co-of the Pacific Southwest tennis championships, advanced to the third round today.

Perry defeated Louis Wetherell, of Santa Ana, Calif., national public parks titleholder, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4. Budge, the No. 1 man in America, defeated Frank Stewart, U. C. L. A. team captain, by scores of 6—3, 6—1.

Two Frenchmen survived second-round skirmishes. Jacques Brugnon, Davis Cup veteran, defeated Nelson McInnich, of Kansas City, 8—7, 6—1, 6—1, while Yvon Tetra was conquering 18-year-old Bernie Coughlan, of Santa Monica, 4—6, 7—5, 6—1.

Miller Appointed To Ring Committee

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 21.—Maj. Harvey L. Miller secretary of the District Boxing Commission was today appointed to membership on the championship rating committee of the National Boxing Association at its seventeenth annual convention here. Others of the committee are Joseph Maloney, of New Jersey; S. L. Marburger, of Indiana; Frank Hogan, of Canada; Charles Reynolds, of Rhode Island.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

It's finally true what they've been saying about George Washington University football. School spirit is rife among the squad, no kidding.

It wasn't always thus. Despite the claims of Press Agent Jack Espey, the profound attention-calling of the student council presidents and the hefty pronunciamentos from the office of Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin proclaiming the sizzling school spirit of their football players, a doubting public has had its own ideas for several years.

POVICH.

That strike of the freshman squad a few seasons ago, and continual charges that George Washington imported its talent from seasoned teams served to cloud the scene and cast serious doubt as to the G. W. player's willingness to die for dear old G. W. or even fling themselves into the fray with the 100 per cent zest of the proverbial college boy.

But all is calm and orderly at George Washington this season. The prima donna player is as extinct as the buggy whip. Shiny, boyish faces, some of 'em beardless, now look out from under the blue and gold helmets of the G. W. squad. The truck-driving profession or the riveting gangs appear as foreign to these lads as a Civil War citation.

That's why Coach Jim Pixlee is smiling through the loss of even such as Tuffy Leemans, his super star of last year. He's got a gang of flaming, fighting youth down there on the Tidal Basin grounds, fighting like hell for the eleven jobs on the team—the potential fulfillment of a coach's dreams.

"This is my kind of a squad," Pixlee was saying yesterday. "It's the first year since I've been at G. W. that I haven't had a half-dozen seniors who were so far out in front of the rest they didn't have to worry about regular jobs on the team. But you couldn't make a substitution without spiting yourself, that's how tough it was.

"They didn't come here with reputations and they're hepped up about George Washington football. You may not see the best football team G. W. ever had, but you're going to see a team with more zip and hell-bent stuff than you ever saw before. And when it comes to that, this squad has a chance to become the best football team G. W. ever had—even this year.

"It's a different kind of a squad, I tell you. They're young. School spirit still means something to 'em. It may sound like bosh, but it's real stuff to a gang of college sophomores and juniors. And the few seniors on the team are the earnest kind of guys who delight a coach. That kind of a football team will listen, and learn and go out there and give you a heluva football game."

Pixlee is a sworn disciple of the theory that converted backs make the best linemen. To that end he has maneuvered into his line a slew of players who came to G. W. with reputations as backfield stars. Because, as he says:

"High school and prep school coaches either don't know or don't bother to teach their boys the niceties of line play. They concentrate on the backs and pick out the biggest, hardest-running fellow to do the ball playing. Consequently, the boy who comes to a college coach as a lineman usually has never been grounded in the fundamentals of line play. He's as green as a shamrock.

"But those boys who have been in the high school backfields usually have some football sense, at least. The average schoolboy back is a back because he was a better football player, with more native ability and more football instinct. The lads in the high school line were usually big lugs placed there because of their bulk alone. If they had been good football players, the coach would have used 'em in the backfield.

"Any coach who doesn't tell you that a good fullback won't make a better center than a lad who played center all his life is lying."

Stars Lacking On Sailors' Grid Team

Coach Hamilton Relies on Fighting Spirit of Navy Eleven.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Sept. 21.—Lieut. Tom Hamilton, Navy's young football coach, says there isn't a blazing star on his roster, but the squad is full of courageous, hard working, hard fighting boys and carry the spirit of John Paul Jones into battle—and keep plugging away.

It's a sort of coincidence that a boy called "Bulldog"—Rivers J. (Bulldog) Morrell, a rough, tough guard—leads this sailor team whose mentor characterizes it as a bunch of "pluggers."

The boys are just like their captain, the bulldog type, explains Hamilton. They'll keep boring in, figuratively swimming from their heels and hanging on to any advantage they may claim.

Facing their most difficult schedule in years—Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Notre Dame, Harvard and Army in a row—the Tars have fair material, but perhaps not enough to carry them through unbeaten.

"We're pretty well fixed in the line except for guard and center," Hamilton says. "The backfield also shapes up satisfactorily, although we really haven't one of those 'poopf—and he's gone' boys. It looks like we're going to have to win the hard way."

The schedule:

September 26—William and Mary.
November 7—Notre Dame at Baltimore; November 14—Harvard at Cambridge; November 28—Army at Philadelphia.

Camera Is Failure At Havre de Grace, Ordered Removed

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 21.—The "Jones Camera" installed here before the start of this meeting was ordered out of operation today by General Manager Edward W. Burke, who said that the camera had proven unsatisfactory. The camera, used at Saratoga during the summer, was called upon three times during the first two days of the meeting. Opening day, the judges required 16 minutes to determine the official placing.

The so-called "Adams Camera," in operation at Suffolk Downs early in the summer, will be installed by Wednesday, track officials said today.

Virginia Pope Has 84, Wins Post Medal

Only Four Break 90 in Annual Golf Play for Women's Cup.

By Dave Herman.

Virginia Pope, 21-year-old physical education instructor, and former all-around athlete at George Washington University, carried off double honors in the 18-hole qualifying round of The Washington Post match play women's handicap golf championship at Kenwood Golf and Country Club yesterday.

Pacing a field of more than 70 women starters, the Kenwood challenger scored an 84—7—77 to win both low gross and low net prizes for her best showing in a tournament since she won the District junior crown a few years ago.

Low Scores Rare.

The gently rolling Kenwood course was so deceptive and tough yesterday that only four other feminine swingers broke 90. They were Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, of Congressional, 1934 Post champion, with 88—3—85; Mrs. J. O. Rhyne, of Congressional, with 89—5—84; Mrs. J. Franklin Gross, of Columbia, with 89—10—79, and Mrs. Jack Scott, of the host club, with 89—4—85.

Although she was exempt from qualification, Miss Louise Claytor, of Chevy Chase, yesterday sent word that she would be unable to appear here in time to defend the title she won last season at Congressional. Miss Claytor has been summering in Maine. Illness in her family, it was learned, will prevent her from competing in The Post's fourth annual tournament.

Thirty-two qualified for match play rounds with seven-eighth stroke allowance opening this morning.

Miss Brown Falls.

Mrs. Gross, outstanding contender from Columbia, placed second to Miss Pope with a 79 net. She and Miss Pope were the only golfers in the field to record low nets below the 80 mark.

The day's chief qualifying casualty was 18-year-old Marion Brown, of Manor, who shot a brilliant 79 last week to win the Corby Cup at Columbia. Miss Brown, who leaves the latter part of this week to compete in the National Championship at Summit, N. J., finished with 92-3—89, three strokes out of the charmed circle. A seven on the short seventeenth blew her chances higher than a kite.

The life-saver as far as the athletic looking young lady was concerned came on the seventeenth—where Marion Brown came to grief

Spiders Beat Apprentice Team, 6-0

Newport News, Sept. 21 (AP).—The University of Richmond defeated the Newport News Apprentice School, 6 to 0, here tonight in the opening football game of the season for both. Climaxing a 50-yard march in the first and second periods, Richmond scored when Vaughn crashed over from the one-yard line.

The Apprentices staged a spectacular rally in the last half but failed by narrowest of margins to push over a touchdown. Twice, Sanford, towering Richmond end, was called out of the line to kick from behind his own goal line.

Richmond started off with a drive which carried immediately to the Apprentice 23-yard line, with Robertson and Vaughn doing most of the ball-carrying. A fumble stopped the march at that point, however, and Hyatt kicked out to midfield.

Richmond promptly renewed its powerful running game, with Vaughn and Robertson knifing the tackles and Pendleton smashing the middle of the line. Just before the first quarter ended, the Spiders completed two more first downs which took them to the Apprentice 20-yard stripe.

A pass from Vaughn to Robertson netted 14 yards after an off-side penalty and Pendleton hit the middle for a first down on the nine-yard line. Four plays later, Vaughn smashed the line for the touchdown.

Golfer's Lusty Swipe Fractures Own Leg

Jenkins Seeks Auto Record In Utah

By the Associated Press.

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Sept. 21.—Ab Jenkins pointed his slender yellow racing car out across this saline desert late today for another assault upon world land speed records.

The Utah driver was eager to recapture racing laurels that went overseas twice when Capt. George Eyston and, later, his fellow Briton, John Cobb, rolled up new marks on this salt-paved lake bed this summer.

Jenkins planned a 48-hour grind. The first 24 hours, he announced, he will remain at the wheel himself. Thereafter he may alternate with Babe Stapp, of Los Angeles, a veteran of the roaring road.

The circular speedway upon which Jenkins rolled his $40,000 "Mormon Meteor"—a veritable land plane—was near the straight-away down which Sir Malcolm Campbell, of London, thundered with his famous "Bluebird" at 301.129 miles an hour a year ago.

Three Tracks.

Three 10-mile tracks were prepared for Jenkins, the driver shifting at will should the going become rough.

The veteran Utah speedster, who has driven nearly 2,000,000 miles without an accident, scheduled his evening start to overcome a whim of Nature.

The hot sun of afternoon brings moisture to the surface, softening the track. Jenkins, expecting the roughest driving with the takeoff, hopes to make up for lost time when the cool night hardens the glistening dry lake bed.

Youthful Heavies Will Carry Power Punches Into Stadium.

By Bill McCormick.
A Staff Correspondent.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—Joe Louis, the sensational 22-year-old colored heavyweight, and Al Ettore, a rugged 23-year-old Italian, will attempt legalized mayhem upon each other in a scheduled 15-round boxing bout here tomorrow night.

The engagement will take place in the old Sesquicentennial Stadium—renamed the Municipal Stadium—in which Gene Tunney Lifted Jack Dempsey's heavyweight crown exactly 10 years ago come next Wednesday.

A crowd of 50,000—a bit less than half the number that can be jammed into the massive fight site—is expected to witness the contest. The gross gate receipts are expected to reach at least $200,000, the largest amount a fight has drawn here since the Tunney-Dempsey "Battle of the Rain Drops."

D. C. Represented.

Special trains from Atlantic City, New York, Baltimore and Washington will bring many out-of-towners to the brawl. The District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia are expected to be well represented when the gong rings for Louis' first fight south of New York.

Louis rules a 1-to-3 favorite in the early betting, but it is probable that the odds will lengthen even more in his favor by ring time, as has been the case in most of his previous important engagements.

Louis, a product of the Golden Glove ranks, has engaged in 29 professional punching bouts since July 4, 1934. As a professional he has scored 24 knockouts, won four decisions and been knocked out once. Max Schmeling, a terrific prefight underdog, scored the lone knockout against Jarring Joe, dropping the coffee-colored clouter for the full count in the twelfth round in New York last June.

Ettore—also an amateur at the start of his career—has answered the gong 78 times since his professional debut in the little Cambria Athletic Club here in 1930. He has been beaten many times since then, but like Louis has been flattened for the full count only once. Charley Retzlaff, who was knocked out by Louis this year, put the chill on Al in two rounds early in 1935.

Best In Years.

Louis is hailed—or was hailed before his loss to Schmeling—as the greatest fighting machine of this generation, perhaps of all generations. While winning from such fighters as Primo Carnera, Natie Brown, Max Baer and Paolino Uzcudun, Joe seemed to justify all the praise heaped upon his head.

Then came Schmeling, who, with true Deutsch methodicalness and precision, had discovered every little weakness in Louis' form. For 12 rounds Max kept pecking at these weaknesses, shooting lethal wallops through the minute chinks in the Negro's armor until he finally had completely disarmed the Brown Bomber.

With each carefully planned

"Packey" McFarland Near Death

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Patrick "Packey" McFarland, member of the Illinois State Athletic Commission and one of the greatest lightweight boxers of all time, tonight was fighting his toughest battle.

Stricken two months ago by a baffling illness, McFarland was in grave condition at his home in Joliet, Ill., with two heart specialists in attendance since he lapsed into delirium early last night. They hold out only slight hope for recovery. A streptococcic infection has settled near his heart, they believe. He has lost 50 pounds in weight.

McFarland is 48 years old and the father of three children.

Born of sturdy Irish stock in Chicago's famous "back o' the yards" district, McFarland brought to the ring a lightning brain and fists of magic 25 years ago. He was a master strategist of the ring. Always a thought or two ahead of his opponents, he could feint them wide open and then smother them with unerring punches.

Never a champion, he nevertheless won recognition as the uncrowned titleholder. His chances to gain the title were always hampered by the doubt that he could make the lightweight limit, then 133 pounds. He was matched with Ad Wolgast, then title holder, three times. But the bout always fell through. McFarland never lost a decision and was only knocked down twice in battles from 1904 until 1915. McFarland's most famous battles were two draws with Freddie Welsh, the Englishman, and his ten-round no-decision bout with Mike Gibbons, the famed St. Paul Phantom, which was fought in New York in 1912, and drew the first big gate of the lighter boxers, $59,000.

The speedy, black-haired Irish youngster started boxing when he was 16, whipping neighborhood youngsters. Blessed with natural ability, McFarland rarely exerted himself, and he frequently talked opponents out of getting rough with him. If they showed too much aggressiveness, McFarland would whisper during a clinch:

"Say, you, don't get fresh or I'll knock you out in the next round. Take it easy."

A friendship brought sudden wealth to McFarland in 1908 while training for Jimmy Britt in San Francisco. An oil magnate took a liking to McFarland and urged him to invest in prospective oil fields. He turned over his entire purse of $4,000, oil spouted and Packey received $200,000.

Alexandrine Captures Feature Sprint for Fillies at Graw

Vanderbilt's Entry Is 2d By a Neck

Dabson Pilots St. James Filly to Neck Triumph Before 8,000 Fans.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Havre De Grace, Md., Sept. 21.—Responding to the pressure of Jockey Hilton Dabson's whip in the late stretch, J. B. J. Townsend's Alexandrine asserted her superiority over Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilts Irrepressible in the running of the Prospect, a six-furlong sprint that featured the day's program at this course. The St. James filly had a neck margin over her rival at the wire, with Veiled Lady a determined third, a length behind. Seven other fillies composed the "also rans."

The ordinary Monday card served to lure a crowd of 8,000 and although clear weather prevailed, racing was conducted over a track slowed by yesterday's rains.

Alexandrine won her fifth race in 17 starts this year and her second straight in three days of the meeting. She was only lukewarm in the betting and rewarded with a $9 mutuel while running the distance in 1:45 4-5. Irrepressible was installed the public choice.

Irrepressible was first to show in front at the break, but Alexandrine was a member of the first flight. After Timber Lady and Tonianna had made brief challenges, Alexandrine came up on the outside to menace the Vanderbilt pace-setter. At the eighth pole the two engaged in a duel that lasted to the end, with Alexandrine developing the necessary punch.

First Pigeon, a $5 favorite, made a show of her field in the first race of the mile and 70 yards course. Taking the lead after three furlongs, the filly drew out farther and farther as the race progressed and was eight lengths in front of Mariolet at the finish. The latter was an easy second over Belleek. The event drew a field of eight and the winner was clocked in 1:47 2-5 over the drying out track.

Makalaw Never Headed.

Mrs. M. Eslick's Makalaw, a sprightly daughter of Constitution, forged to the front with the opening bell and was never headed in the second race over the 6-furlong route. The filly took a length verdict from a fast-closing and favored Reckless with Addis Ababa five lengths away in the field of eleven. Makalaw, capably handled by Jockey H. Dabson, was clocked in 1:15 3-5 and paid a substantial $19 mutuel.

J. E. Simmons' Steel Toes gained a thrilling head decision over Sea Gull in the third race, another 6 furlong dash. The heavily played Waterman was third. Ridden by Eddie Decamillis, Steel Toes ran lapped on the side of Titian Kiddie, the favorite, to the stretch where the latter faltered and Sea Gull threatened. However, Steel Toes, under a heavy drive, lasted to the wire. The Sir Greysteel filly provided a $42 mutuel and stepped the three-quarters in 1:16 1-5.

The Mauler Is Back.

The Mauler, owned by Charles Taylor,' and making his first start since the Suffolk Downs meeting, defeated seven claiming routers to win his third purse of the year in the fifth race over the mile and 70 yards course. A half length away came Sylvia G., to take second money from Infilee. Sylvia G. shook off the fast-starting Tiempo to take the lead as the group left the backstretch but could not resist the winner's driving finish. The track remained slow and The Mauler, ridden by Jockey J. O'Malley, went the route in 1:48 1-5 to pay an $11.60 mutuel.

Apprentice Jockey R. Morris rode his second winner of the day aboard Shot and Shell in the sixth race. The gelding, owned by W. Zakoor, forged to the front at the clubhouse turn and made the remainder of the race a mere formality, winning by five lengths from Indian News. Third money went to Penrill. Shot and Shell, timed in 1:47 3-5 for the mile and 70 yards, paid a $4.10 mutuel.

Canimar won the finale, over the mile and a quarter course, to pay a $6.60 mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIRST PIGEON, $5.00, $3.60, $3.20; MARIOLET, $11.30, $6.30; BELLEEK, $5.20.

FIRST PIGEON assumed command entering the backstretch, was steadied along while drawing far out and was being taken in hand through the stretch. MARIOLET gained sharply when put to pressure leaving the backstretch and easily was best of the others. BELLEEK rained steadily on the outside to the stretch, but was tiring slowly thereafter. OUR SHIP, rushed to enter the early contention, went evenly. FAMOUS CLAYTON was used up pressing the pace. OUT OF FIRE had a flash of early speed.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:51½. Off at 2:54½. Winner, M. Eslick's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAKALAW, $19.00, $7.10, $6.10; RECKLESS, $4.20, $3.30; ADDIS ABABA, $10.00.

MAKALAW, tipped to the front at once, shook off early challenges from MAX B., saved ground and withstood the closing rush of RECKLESS while under pressure. The latter, sent to the outside for racing room leaving the backstretch, rallied when put to a drive and was wearing the winner down at the end. ADDIS ABABA showed an even effort, but could not menace the leader. MISS GRAVITY closed with a belated rush. MAX B. faltered after pressing the pace to the stretch.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:25½. Off at 3:28½. Winner, J. E. Simmons' ch. c. †Corrected weight.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE MAULER, $11.60, $6.80, $4.60; SYLVIA G., $6.70, $4.60; INFILEE, $5.60.

THE MAULER, allowed to settle into best stride, worked his way to the leaders along the backstretch, came around horses to engage SYLVIA G. in the stretch and easily drew out in the final sixteenth. SYLVIA G., taken under slight restraint when unable to outrun TIEMPO going to the far turn, came through on the inside to take command, but could not resist the winner. INFILEE, a trailer to the backstretch, gained sharply on the swing for the stretch, but hung in the last eighth. MASKED QUEEN dropped out of it gradually after running forwardly for three-quarters.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 5:06½. Off at 5:12. Winner, Zakoor's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SHOT AND SHELL, $4.10, $3.60, $2.60; INDIAN NEWS, $8.90, $4.30; PENRILL, $3.10.

SHOT AND SHELL went to the front in the opening furlong, saved ground while being steadied along with a commanding lead, was being taken in hand in the final sixteenth. INDIAN NEWS, fractious at the post and starting from outside the gates, went out at the first turn to be closest to the pace, but had to be shaken up in the closing eighth to hold PENRILL safe. The latter, outrun for 5 furlongs, went into contention on the inside at the far turn and finished gamely. ROSS could not threaten. The others were outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:40. Off at 5:41. Winner, P. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANIMAR, $6.60, $4.60, $3.70; DEARZIN, $4.40, $3.70; HUPPY, $12.30.

CANIMAR, within striking distance of the leaders from the start, began bettering his position along the backstretch, circled the leaders to take command at the eighth pole and was running easily at the end. DEARZIN took the lead from JIMMY D. after a half and continued gamely, but was no match for the winner. HUPPY came willingly in the final drive and showed a good effort. BAY WRACK gained sharply leaving the backstretch, but hung thereafter.

Cox Wins Pros' Stake With 68 At Kenwood

Two Under Par With Pair of 34's; Barnett 2d; Walper Is Third.

Clipping par by two shots, Wiffy Cox, Kenwood professional, cracked out a 68 yesterday to win an informal sweepstakes for local pros at his home course. Cox showed the way with two 34's, scoring four birdies. There wasn't a single five on his card.

Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase pro, was next with 37-35—72, and Leo Walper, Bethesda driving range professor, who burned up the first 9 in 33 only to soar to a 40 on the back side, won third money with a 73.

Tied with 74's were Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam; George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring and Mel Shorey, of East Potomac. Roland Mackenzie, of Congressional, tallied a 77.

Cox's card:

Italians and Jews Play Game Tonight

Primed with the additional practice secured as a result of last Friday's postponement, the Jewish and Italian all-star baseball teams clash in Griffith Stadium tonight at 8 o'clock, Frank DiNenna and Frank Baroni are expected to start as the Italian battery, while Doc Driefus and Jake Fradin will serve the Jewish team.

Team line-ups will be disclosed only when the teams take the field for the game, the proceeds of which will go to Italian and Jewish charities.

Jockey H. Le Blanc will have nothing to do for the next five days. The stewards suspended him for beating the gate in the second race yesterday with Grand Duke and for rough riding on Play Off in the last race. Nine of C. V. Whitney's horses, including Piccolo, candidate for Saturday's $10,000

PWA Downs Pepco, 9-4, to Lead the Post Association Series

Naval Air 6-2 Victor Over Treasury

Murphy in Star Role; Investigation Plays Greenbelts Today.

By John R. Vosburgh.

One team ascended and another descended, clear out of the series, yesterday as the Post Association week-day sandlot championships neared completion of the quarter-final bracket. Public Works Administration defeated Potomac Electric Power Co., 9-4, on the South Ellipse, and Naval Air Station took a 6-2 decision from Treasury Accounts and Deposits, on the North Ellipse.

PWA ascended to undisputed possession of first place in the tournament. The champions of the Departmental League won their third game in three starts with Big Jim Murphy, former St. Louis Card pitcher, proving a deep puzzle to the Pepcos, particularly with men on bases. Errors injured the Pepco cause, partially nullifying the pitching of Lefty Joe Sullivan.

Treasury Accounts and Deposits was eliminated from the series in losing to Naval Air Station. The combined pitching of Lefty Rosenberry, and Johnny Botzko set the champs of the Sports Center Government League back on their collective ears, especially in the ninth inning when they filled the bases and Botzko then proceeded to strike out three men in a row.

Investigation vs. Greenbelts.

Today's schedule finds Bureau of Investigation playing the Resettlement Greenbelts, champions of the Federal A League, on the South Ellipse. Naval Air meets Procurement Division on the North diamond, both games starting at 4 p. m. The G-men, champions of the U. S. Government League, are undefeated while a defeat for either Naval Air, the Greenbelts, or Procurement Division will eliminate it.

A fluke home run by Jake Farrell with the bases full gave PWA a 4-0 lead in the first frame. With Koenig, Hudson and Jewett on base as the result of consecutive singles, Farrell smashed one of Sullivan's curves for a terrific drive which took a bounce over Frank Cumberland's head in centerfield, going for four bases. The Pepcos filled the sacks in the first also but nobody did anything more about it.

Naval Air Station's first three runs were homers by Hall and Garrison in the first and another by Suggs in the third. Accounts and Deposits' only runs came in the fourth on a fielder's choice to Pickett, a single by Batton, and a double by Wade.

Capital Pros Greet Post Cup Tourney Medalist—She Surveys a Crucial Putt on 17th Green

Washington's outstanding professionals, among the gallery in the annual tournament of women golfers for The Washington Post Cup, greet Miss Virginia Pope after she won the medal at Kenwood yesterday. Left to right (rear): Roland Mackenzie, Congressional Club; Miss Pope, Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam Club; (sitting): Wiffy cox, Kenwood, and Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase.

Colonials Plan Aerial Attack Against Wasps

Tanned, toughened and still trying for regular positions after a two weeks' training expedition to Camp Letts, Md., George Washington University's gridmen resumed practice yesterday on the Tidal Basin field in preparation for Friday night's curtain-raiser with Emory-Henry at Griffith Stadium.

Although "Gentleman Jim" Pixlee's starting line-up remains very much of a mystery, George Jenkins, quarterback, and Herb Reeves, halfback, are virtually certain to be on the first team, so he had them going through their passing paces yesterday. Joe Kaufman and Vic Sampson, who will see heavy duty in the backfield, also tossed a few, Kaufman sharing top honors with Jenkins.

They took their time and were tossing bull's-eyes with almost every peg, whereas the others were a trifle too fast getting the ball away and, consequently, were not as accurate.

Although Emory-Henry was tied by Randolph-Macon last Friday night in its debut, Pixlee figures the Wasps have lost none of their sting and is preparing the Colonials for a real battle. Although a top-heavy favorite last year the downtown school was hard pressed to gain a 12-0 decision over its Virginia rival and the approaching game should be even closer as G. W. is without Leemans and Emory-Henry has a squadron of veterans.

Bill Laval, a new coach, probably saved something from the first game for George Washington and will shoot the works. Laval has a penchant for upsetting bigger rivals and G. W. looks dangerously enticing to him. Tickets for the game are on sale at Spaldings and will be on sale at the university cashier's office tomorrow. Prices begin at 80 cents.

Kenwood Golf Team Risks Honors

Kenwood Golf and Country Club's team will defend its Maryland State championship Sunday as the annual matches sponsored by the Maryland Association open on eight golf fronts in Baltimore and the District. Six District clubs have entered teams.

Kenwood will meet Baltimore Country Club at Five Farms in the opening round, while Indian Spring plays host to Woodholme.

Chevy Chase Club, former champions, will play host to Argyle.

The teams will consist of 12 men, with the professional playing number one. Scoring will be on the Nassau system—three points for each team, one point for first nine, one point for last and one point on the match.

Pairings for first round follow:
Kenwood at Baltimore Country Club (Five Farms).
Woodholme at Indian Spring.
Argyle at Chevy Chase.
Green Spring Valley at Suburban.
Beaver Dam at Rolling Road.
Rodgers Forge at Sparrows Point.
Catoctin at Hillendale.
Manor at Elkridge.

Capital Red Sox Beat Waynesboro, 9-5, 14-3

Waynesboro, Va., Sept. 21.—The Washington (D. C.) Red Sox took both games of a double-header from the Augusta All-Stars, 9-5 and 14-3, here tonight. Pohl and P. Turner, District moundsmen, limited the local boys to 15 hits between them, while P. Jenkins led the invaders' hitting with four out of four.

MacPhail Seeks Browns, Is Report

Cincinnati, Sept 21 (AP).—A Nashville, Tenn., Banner report that Larry S. MacPhail, resigned general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, planned to purchase the St. Louis Browns went unconfirmed and undenied today.

MacPhail could not be reached. He went to New York Friday night after announcing his resignation from the Reds and had checked out of his hotel there, presumably to return to Cincinnati.

Powel Crosley, jr., president of the Cincinnati National League Club, said he knew nothing of MacPhail's plans for the future.

Elk Bowlers to Open Pin Season Tonight

The Elks Bowling League, with ten teams in the fold, is scheduled to open its season tonight at 8, at the Recreation alleys. Joseph Niani, newly elected president, extends an invitation to all lodge members to be present at the opening of the league, after which all will adjourn to the Elks Club for refreshments and entertainment.

with a 7. Here Miss Pope's iron sailed to within 10 feet of the pin, and she rolled in her putt for a birdie deuce.

Match play with handicap opens this morning at 9 o'clock, with Mrs. Rhyne facing Mrs. E. R. Henning, of Army and Navy, in the inaugural match. Mrs. Rhyne has a 5 handicap, Mrs. Henning a 16, and thus the former will have to spot the latter 10 strokes on holes as indicated on the Kenwood score card.

Miss Pope, with a seven handicap, draws Mrs. Wilda Martin, unattached golfer, and must give away five strokes.

Creel Shoots 71-70, Leads 'Lefties'

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—Displaying none of the traditional tendencies of southpaws, Howard Creel, of Pueblo, Colo., added an afternoon 70, one under par, to his morning par 71 to win medal honors in the 36-hole qualifying round today of the first national left-handed golfers tournament.

Creel, whose reputation as the country's leading left-handed amateur made him a favorite from the start in the tournament, shot two birdies and 14 pars in his morning round. During the afternoon 18 holes, he had three birdies.

Creel so dominated the field that his nearest competitor was 9 strokes back of him.

Playing steady golf to add further proof to the falsity of the erratic tradition, Spencer Brainard, of New Haven, Conn., the New England champion, put together two 76's for a total of 152 against Creel's 141.

Clarke Rolls High Set as Loop Opens

Astor Clarke, the Nation's highest ranking pinman, opened the Men's Federal League auspiciously last night by scoring top set of 414 to aid his Bureau of Investigation team to take two games from G. P. O. at the Arcadia Alleys.

George Miller, with high game of 152, led the National Capital Parkmen to a three-game victory over Hydrography, while a new entry, U. S. Senate, rolled a high-team game of 603 to take two from Civil Service. High-team set went to I. B. E. W., whose 1,728 beat the Navy Department.

The Orientals took most of the honors in the Procurement Division Bowling League matches last night on the Lucky Strike Alleys. They rolled high-team game of 576 and high-team set of 1,656 in the process of taking three games from the Dorics. Other teams winning three games were the Imperials, Corinthians, Romans and Normans. S. Donaldson rolled high individual game with a 147, while Sauls had high individual set with 392.

Mat Group Selects 19 To Vie for U. S. Crown

By the United Press.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 21.—The National Wrestling Association decided at its convention today to unravel the tangled heavyweight championship situation by holding an elimination tournament.

The decision was reached after Fred Nichols, Texas labor commissioner and head of State wrestling and boxing, sought to establish Leo Daniel Boone (Whiskers) Savage, Houston claimant, as the recognized champion.

Nichols and T. P. Gilmer, Tulsa, chairman of the N. W. A., argued heatedly over the Texas commissioners suspension of Danno O'Mahoney, Ireland, former champion, for failing to go through with a scheduled match with Savage in Galveston last winter. The Texan's motion to recognize Savage was voted down, 10-2.

Gilmer designated 19 wrestlers to compete in a round-robin to be held next November. Everett Marshall, Colorado matman, was designated as the No. 1 contender, with Savage second and Dave Levin, New York, protege of Tom Packs, St. Louis promoter, third.

The 16 other matmen chosen for the tournament were Ed (Strangler) Lewis, Jim Londos, Dick Shikat, Gus Sonnenberg, Ray Steele, Ed Don George and Vincent Lopez—all of whom at one time held the title or claimed it—and Orville Brown, Henry Deglane, Ernie Dusek, Earl McCready, Jim McMillan, John Pasek, Yvonne Robert, Steve Savage and Hans Steinke.

Little Generals Priming for Trainers

With the start of the season only four days away, Washington-Lee High, of Ballston, Va., is buckling down to intensive practice sessions under the critical eye of Coach Johnny Baker, former George Washington University star quarterback.

Of the 60 or more candidates available, six saw first string service last year and Coach Baker is taking steps to give them a worthy supporting cast. Two of the more outstanding veterans are Jimmy Fixx, versatile backfield ace, and Joe Minnick, another backfield star of the same caliber.

In the line, Howard Badden and Billy Oran, tackles, are back in uniform, while Clarence Welsh, guard, and Harold Wheeler, end complete the squad of six veterans on hand. Among the more outstanding line candidates are 208-pound John Wells, George Welsh and Lundquist Robertson, while Bill Mansfield, James Milks and Horace Kemp comprise the end aspirants.

A keen struggle has developed in the backfield for the two vacant berths. Carrol Rader, an 185-pound fullback; Tommy Simpson, James Downes and Jack Golden, also are giving the 1935 lettermen a torrid test to keep their positions.

Facing a difficult nine-game schedule, which includes two of the three schools who stopped the Little Generals last year, Baker is resting his hopes on the above forces. The season opens Saturday against National Training School at Ballston.

Schedule.
September 25—National Training School at Ballston.
October 2—Central at Central; 9—Western at Ballston; 16—Winchester at Winchester; 23—Luray at Ballston; 30—Woodberry Forest at Orange, Va.

Golfer Repeats Ace, Same Hole, Year Later

Del Monte, Calif., Sept. 21 (AP).—Paul Winslow, of Pebble Beach, Calif., made a hole in one on the seventh at the Cypress Point golf course exactly a year ago. He repeated the feat today on the same hole. It is a par 3 of 155 yards.

All-Stars Surprise In Brooklyn Game

Washington's College All-Stars, who will oppose the New York Giants October 1, at Griffith Stadium, gave on indication of the attack they will hurl against the Eastern pro champions when they held the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 14-7 score in a game played over the week-end. Washington gained eight first downs to Brooklyn's six and more than held its own in passing, but lost when one of Bomba's punts was blocked and recovered behind the goal line for the winning touchdown.

The team lined up with Wright and Benefield at ends, Farrell and Fleegle, tackles; Heckmen and Lee, guards; Rathjen, center; Jones, quarterback; McDonald and Dunlap, halves; and Bomba, full.

Silver Spring Lions Will Hear Davidson

Berger, Star of Bees, Suffers Broken Hand

Boston, Sept. 21 (AP).—X-ray examination disclosed today that Wally Berger, slugging outfielder of the Boston Bees, suffered a broken right hand when he was struck by a pitched ball in Sunday's game with the Phillies.

The bone was broken in three places, forcing Berger out of action for the last week of the season. The Phillies' pitcher who hit Berger was Rookie Hugh Mulcahy.

2 for Virginia White Sox.

The Virginia White Sox defeated the White Haven Athletic Club, 5 to 0, and the Annandale, 6 to 3, in a double-header at Bailey's Crossroads. Lefty Stant, pitching the first game for the White Sox, allowed two hits, while Bob Bellman permitted four.

Those players wishing to try out for the 150-pound Ballston football team are asked to report to the Ballston Baseball Field, 8 p. m. tonight.

Maranville Quits After 24 Seasons

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 21 (AP).—Walter (Rabbit) Maranville, manager of the Elmira team which today lost the New York-Pennsylvania League season championship to Scranton, said after the game he had finished his career as an active player.

After more than a quarter-century in baseball—24 years in the major leagues—the little infielder quietly announced:

"That was my last day out there today. I'm through—finished as a player. Baseball has been good to me. I have no regrets. I'll continue in the game as a manager. If I can find something better, I'll move up. Otherwise, I'll try to continue my job at Elmira."

punch tossed by Schmeling, Louis' stock dropped lower and lower on the fistic market. When he crashed, most of the illusion concerning his being the perfect fighter crashed with him.

Last August Louis was tossed a sacrifice in the form of pudgy—and never too good—Jack Sharkey, who apparently made no attempt to beat Joe, but seemed very intent on keeping from getting hurt as he was knocked out. After three rounds of feeble resistance, if any, Sharkey took the ten count.

Favorable Copper Trade Predicted

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—S. R. Guggenheim, a director of Kennecott Copper Corp., said today on his return from Europe "business in general is very good, which naturally affects copper prices."

His summation of foreign business conditions dovetailed closely with those yesterday of Louis S. Cates, president of Phelps Dodge Corp., a major copper producer, who also expressed complete satisfaction with the present domestic copper price following a trip abroad.

"There is a good healthy copper market in the United States so why try to stifle it," Cates said in answer to questions concerning a possible price boost. He declared domestic copper consumption would increase as utilities re-enter the market."

Cotton Makers Still Operate Above Capacity

August Spinning Figure Is 115.8 as Against 76.4 Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

The cotton spinning industry was reported yesterday by the Census Bureau to have operated during August at 115.8 per cent of capacity, on a single shift basis, compared with 119.8 per cent during July this year, and 76.4 during August last year.

Spinning spindles in place August 31 totaled 28,065,518, of which 23,433,658 were active at some time during the month, compared with 28,157,094 and 23,249,572 for July this year and 30,014,994 and 22,046,652 for August last year.

Active spindle hours for August totaled 7,573,009,997 or an average of 270 hours per spindle in place, compared with 7,859,348,920 and 279 for July this year, and 5,545,241,375 and 185 for August last year.

Spinning spindles in place August 31 in cotton-growing States totaled 19,038,542, of which 17,269,442 were active at some time during the month, compared with 19,032,036 and 17,145,596 for July this year, and 19,333,046 and 16,274,032 for August last year.

Active spindle hours for August in cotton-growing States totaled 5,853,804,413, or an average of 307 hours per spindle in place, compared with 6,058,855,873 and 318 for July this year, and 4,323,341,849 and 224 for August last year.

By the Associated Press

London.—Stock prices were strong and active yesterday, the industrial section, especially steels, tobaccos, silk and shipping issues, commanding most attention. Transatlantic shares sold at higher prices with Woolworth, Ltd., being in good demand. Home rails, German bonds and the mining group also scored advances.

Paris.—The bourse closed with a firm tone, maintaining a general improvement in prices. French rentes finished 90 to 140 centimes above Friday's quotations and Bank of France shares were quoted at 6,425 francs compared with 6,310.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures established new high prices for the year and closed 1⅞ to 2⅝ pence advance. Millers' purchases of Canadian wheat showed substantial increases and exporters' offerings also strengthened. Cotton closed quiet in a narrow market, hedge selling being absorbed by Bombay and trade buying on the decline.

The Market By Carlton A. Shively

A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Improve in Heavy Trading, Public Utility Shares Active, France Loses Gold.

New York, Sept. 21.—Stocks failed to fulfill early promise, but the majority closed a little higher in the largest turnover since last July. Bonds were good in the second-grade section and little changed elsewhere. December wheat rose ⅝ of a cent to 114¾ cents a bushel. In the foreign exchange the franc quotation held at the gold export point.

The long run before the next holiday, aside from a one-day Jewish holiday this week, began with a continuance of favorable trade news, a slight tightening of political lines and more pronounced indications of the fall of the Spanish Government. Opinion varies on the benefit or harm that might befall the rest of the world on the outcome of the Spanish rebellion. Granted that the rebels for the most part seem to be on the side of property, as opposed to the strong communistic flavor of the existing government, they also have made deals, or accepted help, from Fascist governments that, when the price is demanded, might conceivably bring Europe nearer a general war.

Worry Over France.

On another troubled European front the retreat continued, namely in the fight of the franc to stay on gold. Further large exports of the metal, over the barrier of semi-official embargo, were reported. If France goes off gold the cause for stable currencies may be helped, no early withdrawal of funds from our markets may take place and at least the anxiety over the matter will subside. On the other hand, the event may possibly bring an increase in prevaling uncertainty over currencies and retard world trade recovery. Traders here can't make up their minds about the matter, but probably are giving too much weight to the probable immediate effects on American stock prices and on the price of gold.

Steel Advances.

Trade developments at the beginning of the week included an estimated rise to 74.4 per cent of capacity in operations of the steel industry, putting the output at the top in many years for this season and around the best for any week this year. The rise in steel is against a seasonal trend, partly because of the advance in the date for new motor car production. Other factors are the greater activity in railroad equipment orders, the slowly rising building activity and general use.

The steel industry could not maintain so fast a pace were it not that business improvement were widespread. Meanwhile retail trade, above a year ago, has slackened a little by continued warm weather, according to the weekly survey of the Department of Commerce.

Utilities Active.

Here and there a stock would break away from its group and attract a speculative following, and at the beginning the low priced public utility stocks more or less made up the market. However, the steel group continued as the mainstay of confidence, and especially so in the afternoon after the estimate of operations was made for the week by the American Iron & Steel Institute. The rate was placed at the best on record. Steel opened a quarter higher and then settled a little under profit taking. Crucible sold at a new high price.

Metals were well liked, but none had the consistent strength of International Nickel, strongly supported in the London market. Gains among the utilities ranged from a fraction to more than a point. Consolidated Edison and Columbia Gas rose a point. The group made up about 20 per cent of the entire turnover. Motor stocks enjoyed a rise in popularity, Chrysler led with a climb of over a point. General Motors gained a fraction. Auburn was given a play.

Public Utilities.

The burst of buying in the public utility market is another sign of the times. It follows the cumulative evidence of various straw vote polls, the Maine election, the Michigan primary and other indicators of the trend against the New Deal. With the propect that the Administration, even if returned to office, will be unable to overthrow entirely private enterprise as carried on in the public utility business, the time is seasonable for a strategic retreat. President Roosevelt has called a conference of utility officials operating in the territory covered by the TVA with that idea in view. It is hoped that the TVA will find it can, without obviously appearing to surrender, come to a working arrangement with the private utility companies.

New Lease On Life.

For a long time some traders have regarded the purchase of public utility shares as a good bet on the election, but now it looks as though the utilities will live through it anyway. Probably many of the cherished New Deal policies of a communistic nature have gone by the board with recovery in business, as when people are making money they won't give much heed to suggestions that to the State belongs everything. Selling ex claptrap, nearly all the utility stocks today moved forward on heavy trading. Commonwealth & Southern, being directly affected by the proposed peace treaty in the Tennessee Valley, was a favorite. It opened with 30,000 shares at a quarter of a point advance. A number of other utility stocks began with blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares.

French Gold.

More than $100,000,000 in French gold has been exported or engaged for export since the present movement began early in August. Today the French frans was quoted around 6.58 5-16, at which gold can be shipped here in increased volume at a profit, but the market was extremely dull and such shipments as were reported to have been arranged again were the result of Paris initiative. Franc futures were quoted at a discount of about 40 points from spot for three months while sterling was little changed on the day. The British control fund was reported to have done little intervening.

Corn Tumbles 4 Points, Wheat Rises, Then Dips

Chicago Learns of Possibility of Acute World Shortage.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Huge export purchasing of Canadian wheat accompanied record high prices at Liverpool and elsewhere today, but was largely offset here by 4-cent corn market smash.

Late estimates were that three to four million bushels of wheat had been taken today for export from Canada, with Liverpool cables suggesting an approach to acute world scarcity.

Wheat after a rise of nearly 2 cents in Chicago reacted at the last, closing nervous ⅝ to ⅞ above Saturday's finish, Sept. 1.14⅝, Dec. 1.13⅝ to ⅞, May 1.12⅝ to ⅞, corn ⅝ to 4½ down, Sept. 1.11 to 1.11½, Dec. 94⅝ to ¾, May 89½ to ⅝, oats ⅛ to ¼ off, Dec. 42¾, and rye unchanged to ⅛ higher, Dec. 81½. Provisions results were unchanged to 27 cents lower.

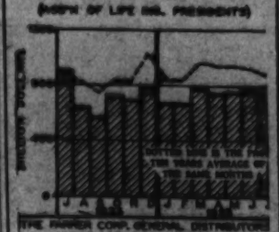
August Business Declines Slightly

Reaction from July's sensational gains brought a slight recession in business during August, the national index dropping from 10 per cent to 12 per cent below normal, according to the monthly survey of 147 trading areas of the United States conducted by the research division of Brooke, Smith & French, Inc., New York and Detroit national advertising agency.

The decline, according to the report, was felt in the majority of the 147 areas, 85 of which showed small losses in business activity. Gains were registered in 51 areas while 11 remained without change.

"Of all sections of the country, the South was best able to withstand the reaction which was due to slackening of bonus spending and the influence of drought conditions," the report states. "Most all areas show a substantial improvement over a year ago. At that time, the national index stood at 29 per cent below normal, 17 points under the present standing."

Sales of Insurance At Seasonal Level



THE PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF AMERICA, HOME OFFICE, NEWARK, N. J.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 21.—Life insurance sales in July and August dropped off just about equal to the seasonal trend. The average ordinary life insurance policy written in July of this year was $2,000, or an increase of about $180 over that written a year ago. While the primary function of life insurance companies is insurance, some forms of policies bring in an investment angle. Straight life insurance is always important, but for investment, many are today finding that other methods are secure and more profitable.

Trading in Cotton Generally Lower

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Cotton worked gradually lower during today's trading under near-month liquidation and continued heavy hedging against the new-crop movement. December sold off from 11.91 to 11.80 and closed at the lowest with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 9 to 14 points.

Hide Markets Sales Increase During Month

Tanners', Shoe Manufacturers' Orders Swell Fall Demands.

Boston, Sept. 21.—After a period of hesitation in the spring in which there was a falling off in shoe production and a softening in hide markets, shoe manufacturers and tanners have entered the autumn with a heavy volume of business. Predictions are now made that shoe production for 1936, which is was feared might run behind 1935 in the second half, is now likely to exceed the record-breaking output of 353,761,000 pairs in 1935, which in turn surpasses 1934 production by 26,840,000 pairs, or a 7.4 per cent gain.

Purchasing of hides by tanners and shoe manufacturers since mid-July has been heavy and consistent. Sales in the principal packing markets during last week are placed at around 100,000 hides. Sales in the week ended September 12 were about 111,000; in the week ended September 5, approximately 175,000; in the preceding week 173,000 and in the week to August 22, purchases from packers were about 311,000.

In addition to these purchases, the Government has been disposing of hides from time to time out of the surplus taken over as a result of the heavy cattle slaughter in the 1934 drought. At the peak the Government agency, the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, held around 2,250,000 hides and skins, but these have been reduced to about 1,000,000.

Hides have moved up to the highest prices of the year under the impetus of the buying wave of the past eight weeks. Light native cow hides are now quoted at 12 cents a pound, up one-half cent from last week, while branded cows have sold at 11¾, likewise up one-half cent. Sales of heavy native steers have been made at 15 cents in the Chicago packer market, an advance of one-half cent, while in the New York market they have moved at 15½, up a full cent.

1. Find the apartment that meets your requirement—in the section in which you want to live.

2. Note the key letters and the number at the end of the ad. For example: D-5.

3. Then find the letter of the alphabet (in this case, D) at the top of the map. This means the apartment is located somewhere between the D at the top and the D at the bottom of the map.

4. Then look for the numeral (in this case, 5) at either side of the map. Where the D and 5 meet is the vicinity in which the apartment is located.

Personal Loans Of Banks Urged At Conference

Consumer Credit Safe and Offers Lucrative Field, Association Told.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Sept. 21.—Bank credit in the form of personal income loans for the average wage earner was described to the American Bankers Association today as a "safe and sound" business policy "with great profit possibilities."

E. A. Mattison, vice president of the Bank of America, National Trust and Savings Association, told a round table conference that this type of consumer credit is safe and offers a lucrative field for increasing bank loans.

"The public wants bank credit," he said. "Where it had been made available, Mr. Average Citizen has promptly availed himself of it because of the advantages over the ordinary avenues of personal credit." credit."

Can Be Profitable.

Even at rates greatly reduced from those charged by finance and loan companies," Mattison declared, "the business can be profitable. Using the Federal housing act title 1 rates of 5 per cent discount, the business yields 9.7 per cent on the money employed."

As a background for his statement that banks need more loans, Mattison said deposits increased more than $3,000,000,000 from 1931 to 1935, while loans decreased $10,000,000,00.

Hundreds of banks are offering personal income loans—credit in which the chief collateral is the borrowers' income.

"Experience has shown that the average individual respects his obligations," Mattison said. "He will pay if he can, providing the terms of repayment are suited to his income."

Mattisons' talk was one of several before various round table sessions at the association's annual convention. The first session will be held tomorrow.

A forecast of rising trend on interest rates was made today before the clearing house round table session of the convention by J. Harvie Wilkinson, jr., Richmond, Va., banker.

His forecast was for a gradually rising trend—not a steep upturn. He said his statement "does not mean 5 per cent and 6 per cent time money.

"For the purposes of this discussion I am not considering that increase of interest rates which would be brought about by a breakdown in Government credit from endless budgetary deficits.

"My guess is that the trend will be toward slightly higher levels."

Reasons he gave were: New demands for funds for residential building, revived demand for heavy equipment and transmission lines by power companies, and railroad equipment modernization.

"Hurried" Bills Criticized.

Philip A. Benson, of Brooklyn, while expressing sympathy with the aims of social security laws, said he regretted "hurried passage of the legislation."

He said he was concerned over the possibility "that the progress we have voluntarily made in social security so far may be adversely affected if involuntary savings through Government edict go beyond the capacity of the individual in further providing for his own security or that of his family."

Common Stock Safety Upheld By Dr. Sprague

By the Associated Press.

Common stocks were said yesterday by Prof. O. M. Sprague, former Treasury adviser and once economic adviser to the Bank of England, to offer greater safety at present than preferred stocks or bonds.

Testifying in the securities commission's inquiry into investment trusts, Sprague, who resigned from the Treasury after a break with the New Deal, said the full force of dollar devaluation had not been felt. He upheld the value of common stocks also on the theory that they best reflect recovery.

Sprague appeared before the commission as a member of the advisory group of Massachusetts Investors Trust, the concern now being studied. He advocated an investment trust of which the prime object is "income" rather than "appreciation" of the investment portfolio.

"It is the income we are realizing from the securities in our portfolio that we regard," he said, "and not the appreciation of the shares.

Cites Rise of 100 Per Cent.

"I have seen securities appreciate 100 per cent in value in a year's time, but they are still many years removed from paying dividends. Our barometer is income we are receiving and prospects for the future."

"An investment trust operated from the standpoint of appreciation alone should be conducted by one man who overshadows all other members of the operating body.

"Ours is not like that. Our plan makes for slow action, probably for hesitation, if you please, for caution, and with a resultant failure to secure that degree of appreciation, that quick action, which might be very well expected if an investment trust were conducted, let us say, by Mr. Barney Baruch."

Sprague conceded under questioning by James Austin, committee counsel, that his appointment to the advisory board might have been actuated by a desire of the trust's sales agency to spur sales. He volunteered that he had received a "certain amount of advertising" in Washington, referring to his resignation from the Treasury.

Lone Officer Seizes 8 in Hunt For Gamblers

Eight men were arrested late yesterday when a lone policeman raided a reputed gambling establishment in the 900 block Fourteenth street northwest.

Seven of the prisoners later were released, while one, who gave his name as Leo Quentin Wallock, 30, of Cabin John, Md., was held under $2,000 bond on a charge of permitting gambling.

The policeman, J. G. Austin, was patrolling his beat when he became suspicious and went to the second floor of the Fourteenth street address. After knocking at the door, he kicken it in and took the men he found inside, clustered around what were said to have been racing charts, into custody.

He then leaned from the window to call for a scout car. Pedestrians below thought he had called for help, and spread the alarm. Three scout cars hurried to the scene through heavy late afternoon traffic.

Inside the small gaming room police said they found three wall sections, on which were fastened slips, bearing alleged racing results.

A telephone was disconnected and a radio confiscated by police as they searched the place. They met no resistance, but it was reported a woman fled down an alleyway as the raid was being made.

Hull Receives Palestine Data From Copeland

Senator, Back in U.S. After Tour, Blames Britain in His Report.

By the Associated Press.

Contending the British government is responsible directly for the grave political unrest which he said now agitates Palestine, Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, yesterday gave Secretary of State Hull a first-hand report of conditions there.

The New Yorker, recently returned after a two weeks' tour of the principal cities of the Biblical land—now a British mandate—told Hull that violent clashes between Arabs and Jews had caused more than 1,000 deaths since April and they were continuing.

He was accompanied on his tour, which he described as an unofficial inspection, by Senators Hastings (Republican), Delaware, and Austin (Republican), Vermont.

"I heard frequent outbursts of sniping from my hotel window," Copeland said. "I saw armed soldiers and police marching through the streets, barbed wire entanglements, trenches along the railroad track and all the paraphernalia of guerilla warfare.

"That literally is what is going on in Palestine today. I talked with all types of officials and people there, including Arabs, Jews and Christians, and I have reached the firm conclusion that the British government is not doing its duty under the mandate."

He said the Arabs, striving for discontinuance of Jewish immigration and sale of land to Jews, had embarked on a campaign of violence against the Jews in an effort to bring the situation more forcefully to the attention of the British mandate officials.

"But so far," he continued, "the British government has refused to take any action until the Arabs discontinue the atrocities.

"There are 10,000 or 12,000 American Jews in Palestine, and I felt that our Secretary of State should have the benefit of my first-hand study of the situation."

Soil Aid Explains U. S. Land Erosion

The United States has not enough good agricultural land in the country because of the deprivations of erosion, Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, last night told a meeting of the District of Columbia Society of Professional Engineers.

"Through the Piedmont section south of the Potomac River to central Alabama," he said, "we have 15,000,000 gulleys and 18,000,000 acres of clay land, all because of the exploitation of our wasteful methods of farming. Before the white man came there was not one gulley nor one acre of clay land in that whole area."

Both he and Morris L. Cooke, administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration, the other speaker of the evening pointed out that unless soil and water conservation were carried out on a large scale from now on, we would be in grave danger of losing the major part of our top soil.

Strikes Close 33 Chain Stores In Minneapolis

By the Associated Press.

Minneapolis, Sept. 21.—Thirty-three chain stores were closed today as conferences were carried on to seek settlement of the labor dispute between wholesale grocers and truck drivers which store officials said had made it impossible to obtain adequate supplies.

Meanwhile, Robert Mythen, a Federal conciliator, prepared a proposal he said he hoped would end the strike of flour, feed, cereal and elevator workers, which, like the truck strike, is a fight for union recognition. Both disputes are in their second month.

Closing of the chain stores, their managers said, added more than 250 workers to the 275 union officials previously estimated were involved in the truck strike, called by General Drivers Union, No. 544. Twenty-five stores with 200 employes operated by the C. Thomas Co. did not open for business today. Eight shops of the Quality Foods, Inc., closed last week.

Parley Fails.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 21 (AP).—A series of conferences between upstate New York milk strike leaders and independent dealers aimed at reaching a compromise to avert a promised milk "holiday" broke up tonight without agreement.

Milk strike leaders insisted the "strike is still on for Thursday," but plans were immediately made to resume the conferences tomorrow.

Patrol Highways.

Canton, Ill., Sept. 21 (AP).—Pickets patrolled highways, but no trouble was reported today in the strike of Fulton County milk producers to obtain higher prices. Sunday deliveries were estimated at one-third of normal because of the strike in which 62 producers have engaged.

Vote to Strike.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—About 3,000 Manhattan garage workers, members of the Garage Washers and Polishers Union, voted tonight to strike for higher wages and a shorter work day.

Jack Pollard, manager of the Union, asserted the strike would tie up 300,000 cars. Many of the strikers perform duties necessary to the operation of larger garages, such as elevator operation.

Gambling Assailed By Citizens' Group

Open gambling on the streets, particularly card playing and "crap shooting" was deplored by the Lincoln Citizens Association last night.

On information from the police committee that several disorderly and gambling houses were being operated in the Western section of the city, a resolution to make a report to police was adopted.

The group adopted a resolution urging school authorities to strictly enforce the attendance law for school children.

Charles H. Flagg, A. D. A. official, gave a talk on proposed improvement projects in the associations' territory.

L. G. Hoover Urged For Central Post

Indorsement of Lawrence G. Hoover for principal of Central High School was made last night by the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association.

The resolution for Hoover, assistant principal of Central, was adopted after his name was recommended by the school committee.

The association elected Samuel B. Loveless as president for his third term. Earl W. Sapps was elected vice president. Other officers chosen were James I. Turner, secretary; Mrs. Mary E. Smith, financial secretary, and Joseph H. Wilson, treasurer.

Members appointed to the executive council are Oliver Sweet, James R. Kirkland and O. T. Ritenour. J. Preston Swecker and Mrs. H. M. Phillips will represent the group at the Federation of Citizens Association.

Out of Your Income

It pays to modernize! It pays any one who owns or leases an income-producing building to keep it up-to-date and in good repair.

We are making modernization loans to repair, remodel or to install modern equipment in your home or in business and industrial property.

Low cost and convenient repayment plans provided by Title I of the National Housing Act, which section expires on April 1, 1937.
